BYSTANDER SHOT, ROBBER CAPTURED IN HOLDUP

Intruder Opens Fire on Two Patrolmen Called in After 20 Are Lined Up in Handbook Shop at 4061 Olive Street.

MAN HIT MISTAKEN FOR AN ACCOMPLICE

Thomas Moss, Laundry Driver, Is Seriously Wounded After He Follows Fleeing Robber Out the Back Door.

A robber was captured and a bystander wounded seriously yesterday afternoon when two policemen interrupted the holdup of a handbook shop at 4061 Olive street.

Patrolman Thomas A. Brown and Probationary Patrolman Roy Young, were at the nearby corner of Sarah and Olive streets when a Negro shouted to them that the handbook shop was being held up.

"Young heard him first," Brown related, "and called to me. I followed him, not knowing where we were going. When we got into the store there were about 20 men lined up against the walls, holding their hands in the air.

"Before we could say anything, three or four shots were fired at us. Each of us fired back several times at the robber behind the counter. He ran toward the back door and Young went out the front door to head him off in the gangway."

Man Mistaken for Robber.

The man who was shot, Thomas Moss, followed the robber out the back door and the policeman mistook him for another robber. In the gangway Moss encountered Young and called to the policeman: "Don't shoot! I'm not the robber."

But Young fired, and Moss fell. The bullet passed through the upper part of his left arm, and pierced his chest, passing through the lung. Moss, 32 years old, a laundry driver, of 4105 Westminster place, was taken to the Missouri Baptist Hospital.

Meanwhile, Brown, pursuing the robber out the back door, slipped in a pool of water and his pistol was accidentally discharged. Crouched against the wall, in a blind areaway a few feet from the door, he found William Raymond Rickart, an ex-convict.

Young came up at that moment, and aided Brown in subduing Rickart when he resisted arrest. They beat him with the butts of their pistols.

Rickart protested that he was not the robber. He had just entered the areaway, he said, when a man came runinng out the back door of the handbook shop, thrust into his hands a roll of bills, a handkerchief and a pistol, and said: "Hold these, I'll see you later."

Stolen Money Recovered.

In his pockets the police found the stolen money, about $75, and a fully loaded .38-caliber revolver. They searched the vicinity for another weapon, but did not find one.

When the robber entered, about :30 o'clock, the shop was in charge of Lynn Carmichael, who said he lived in the 4000 block of Taft avenue. Flourishing his pistol, the robber ordered those present to line up against the walls. Then he went back to the front door and called, as if to a confederate, "O K, it's all right to come in."

But so far as could be learned, no one else entered the shop. The robber went to the counter, behind which Carmichael stood and commanded, "Come on, lay it on the line!"

Carmichael reached into the cash drawer and withdrew some $1 bills.

"Never mind the aces," the robber ordered, "let's have the rest of it." Carmichael had just given him some more money when the policemen rushed in.

When the robber entered, Hyman Laiderman, news dealer at the corner, was standing in back of the shop near a drinking fountain. He slipped out, unnoticed, and called to the Negro, who gave the alarm to Brown and Young.

Laiderman also telephoned to the Newstead Police Station, but Brown and Young had the situation in hand by the time the emergency squad arrived.

Police were handicapped in their

PRESIDENT PRESENTS PLAN FOR REORGANIZING SOME OF GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS

Submits Orders Estimated to Save $25,000,000 —Shipping Board Abolished Purchasing Agency Established.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—President Roosevelt sent to Congress tonight his executive orders reorganizing the Government, estimated to save $25,000,000 a year.

The series of orders called for consolidations, regroupings and abolishments of numerous Government agencies.

The $25,000,000 savings was estimated by the White House to bring the total cut in the Federal budget for the next fiscal year to $900,000,000. With this savings the President was represented as being confident of balacing the budget.

The reorganiaztion program abolishes the Shipping Board and transfers its functions to the Department of Commerce. It sets up a single unit for the purchase of all Government supplies. Many other realignments of Government agencies are contemplated by the President and will be put into effect later.

President's Covering Message.

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 1, Title 3, of the act entitled "an act to maintain the credit of the United States Government," approved March 20, 1933, I am transmitting herewith an executive order for certain regroupings, consolidations, transfers, and abolitions of executive agencies and functions thereof.

Please let me tell you very simply and frankly that in transmitting this executive order at this late hour in the special session, I have had no thought of taking what might be considered an advantage of the Congress.

The very urgent demands of the public business, both legislative and administrative, during the past few weeks have made it literally impossible to complete the study of consolidations.

Many other changes are in contemplation and I have selected only those which I believe should be put into effect as quickly as possible. These additional changes I do not feel it right to submit until the next regular session of the Congress.

May I suggest that if the changes proposed in the present executive order are not concurred in by the Congress they can be restored or otherwise changed at the beginning of the next regular session a few months hence.

The justification for sending this executive order up, even at this late hour, is that it will effect a saving of more than $25,000,000. This is well worth while.

Other Points in Program.

Other high points of the reorganization plan are:

Consolidation of all functions of administering public buildings, national parks, national monuments and national cemeteries in the Department of Interior.

This means the abolition of the following commissions: Arlington Memorial Bridge Commission, Public Buildings Commission, Public Buildings and Public Parks of the National Capital, National Memorial Commission, and Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway Commission.

Confining to the Department of Justice the responsibility of prosecuting and defending court actions to which the United States is a party.

Consolidation in the Treasury Department of the present Bureau of Internal Revenue and Bureau of Industrial Alcohol.

Abolition of the National Screw Thread Commission.

Consolidation in the Department of Labor of the bureaus of Immigration and Naturalization.

Transfer to the Department of Interior of the Federal Board for Vocational Education.

Abolition of the co-ordinating service.

Consolidation in a division of investigation in the Department of Justice of the investigatory functions of the bureau of Prohibition and transfer to the division of Internal Revenue of the licensing functions of the Bureau of Prohibition.

MATTERN THOUGHT TO BE AT END OF SIBERIAN FLIGHT

'Round World Aviator May Have Arrived at Khabarovsk, Where He Will Hop Off for America.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 10.—When last heard from today Jimmy Mattern, American round-the-world flyer, was passing over Rukhlovo in Eastern Siberia, about 725 miles short of Khabarovsk, his next landing point.

That was at 9:15 o'clock this morning Moscow time (1:15 a. m. Eastern Standard Time). The chances were that by the time Moscow received news that Mattern had been sighted at Rukhlovo he already was in Khabarovsk, unless he had made an unscheduled stop, as communication with Eastern Siberia is very slow.

From Khabarovsk the flyer will hop off for the North American continent. There is no expectation here that he will be able to take the round-the-world speed record from Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, the men he started out to beat, but it is assumed that he will go ahead to set a time for a solo flight circling the globe.

Mattern's takeoff place today was Beloye, Siberia, which he left at 1:50 a. m. Moscow time (5:50 p. m. Friday, Eastern Standard Time). Forty minutes later he passed over Irkutsk, about 50 miles to the east.

Reports here indicated that weather conditions were fair all the way from Beloye to Khabarovsk. The Weather Bureau said he might encounter some local rain but otherwise the weather would be favorable.

HOUSE APPROVES ROOSEVELT'S PLAN FOR VETERANS' CUT

MAKES CONCESSION ON REVIEW OF CASES

Two Recesses Taken When Opposition Develops Strength — Members at Ball Game Delay Action.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The stubborn struggle over reduction in veterans' compensation apparently ended in the House tonight with acceptance of the compromise offered by President Roosevelt.

The vote was 243 to 154.

The House then sent the independent offices appropriation bill containing the veterans' provision to conference. Quick acceptance by Senate leaders to facilitate adjournment was predicted.

Both the administration and House members gave way in order to reach an agreement but leaders spent an anxious day lest a coalition of Republicans and rebellious Democrats should overturn the result and keep Congress in session indefinitely.

Insists on Changes.

President Roosevelt discovered that technical changes made it virtually impossible for the Government to remove from the payroll any veterans presumed to be disabled by disease, resulting from or aggravated by service. He insisted that the language be modified, and this the House members agreed to do in order to save the bill.

The change provides that the veterans shall have the benefit of all reasonable doubt and that the Government has to show the veteran's illness is not due to service in order to remove him from the rolls.

The President accepted the extension by the House Democrats from Sept. 1 to Oct. 31 of the time during which presumptive cases may remain on the rolls subject to reviews by boards to be set up by President Roosevelt. This concession by the President was estimated to amount to almost $10,000,000.

Two Test Votes.

Two test votes on procedure were necessary before the final ballot gave House chieftains a chance to relax their efforts. Administration forces won both of the preliminary trials.

The chamber only a little before had echoed to the appeals of members as Republicans and Democrats alike assailed the administration of the economy act which gave the President power to slash the funds spent in veterans' relief by over $400,000,000.

The fight over the reduction was prolonged by two recesses which House leaders regarded as advisable because of the strength shown by the opposition. Another reason for calling the recesses was that many members were absent attending a baseball game between Democratic and Republican Congressmen.

Leaders and members of the committee which had negotiated the compromise with the chief executive urged its acceptance. Word spread during the debate that President Roosevelt would veto the independent offices supply bill if the House approved an amendment adopted previously by the Senate.

Visit to White House.

This would have limited the reductions in compensation to 25 per cent in the case of World War veterans injured in the service and would have applied also to Spanish-American War veterans. Sponsored by Senator Connally (Dem.), Texas, it contained other provisions firmly opposed by the President.

A week of conferring and a visit to the White House shaped the language which limited the slashes in World War veterans pay, if service connected, to 25 per cent. The administration, however, won its contention that it should be allowed to investigate cases where the disability was presumed to be service connected and to drop them if it were found there was no relation to the period spent in the army, navy or marine corps.

Only this morning Roosevelt called the House group to ask that language written into the proposal be changed. They agreed. A focal point of attack in the House debate today was the charge that Spanish-American War veterans were not included in the compromise.

INDUSTRY BILL COMPROMISES WORKED OUT BY CONFEREES

Agreement Reached After Eight Hours and House Quickly Accepts Report at Night Session Without a Record Vote.

SENATE TAXATION PROGRAM RETAINED

Income Tax Publicity Put Up to the President — Borah's Bar on Price-Fixing and Monopolies Toned Down.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—While Senate and the House leaders sought to clear the calendars for adjournmentof the momentous special session that began three months ago, the conferees on the industrial control-public works bill, capstone in the President's program, came out of an eight-hour shirt-sleeved session with an agreement compromising the differences between the two Houses.

The House about 10 p. m., without a record vote, adopted the conference report on the bill.

There were three main points of controversy—the Clark amendment for putting an end to exemption of governmental securities from income taxation; the La Follette amendment for full publicity of Federal income tax returns, and the Borah amendment providing that no code under the industrial control act should permit combinations in restraint of trade, price-fixing or other monopolistic practices.

How These Points Were Settled.

The Clark amendment was killed by the conferees on the ground that the end sought could only be achieved by a constitutional amendment. Senator Clark said he would try to get the amendment restored, and if he failed would renew his fight in the next session of Congress. There appeared to be no chance that the amendment would be put back in the bill.

La Follette's victory of last night in the fight for income tax publicity—a fight aided materially by the disclosures of the Morgan investigation—remained a victory of considerable dimensions, though his amendment did not come through the conference committee exactly as written. The committee accepted the amendment with a proviso leaving the matter of publicity to the discretion of the President and charging the President with the formulation of the rules and regulations under which tax returns may be made public.

The action of the conferees put the question of income tax publicity squarely up to the President.

The Borah amendment resulted in another compromise. Slipped into the bill with practically no discussion on the floor, and without a record vote, the amendment turned out to be a trouble-maker. Industrialists protested that were it left in, with its outright ban against price-fixing and combinations in restraint of trade, the purpose of the proposed industrial codes would be defeated. The conference committee struck out the offending words, leaving the amendment an inhibition merely against monopolies and monopolistic practices. Their action constituted tacit approval of price-fixing arrangements under the bill.

Senate's Tax Plan Wins.

The Senate schedule of new taxes with which to finance the $3,300,000,000 public works bond issue was accepted in place of the House schedule. Under the latter, heavy increases would have been placed on moderate incomes without a

SENATE CALLS ON TREASURY TO PROPOSE LOWER INTEREST BONDS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.

THE Senate tonight adopted a resolution by Bone (Dem.), Washington, requesting Secretary Woodin to call upon holders to exchange outstanding Government bonds for a lower interest issue entitled "the new Liberty loan of 1933."

The vote was 69 to 1, with Logan (Dem.), Kentucky, casting the only negative ballot.

The resolution is not compulsory on the Treasury head. It sets forth that the British Treasury successfully converted its war-time obligations from 5 per cent to 3½ per cent, and France accomplished a substantial reduction in the same way.

The resolution says: "Resolved, that the Senate . . . request, the Secretary of the Treasury . . . to call immediately upon holders of United States Government bonds, particularly those issued to finance the World War, to exchange their bonds for new bonds of an issue to be known as 'the new Liberty loan of 1933,' and bearing a lower rate of interest which would effect a saving as nearly as possible sufficient to service such additional loans as may be made necessary . . . such conversion loan to bear interest, however, at a rate not less than the rate paid to depositors in United States postal savings banks."

BORAH LEADS IN FIGHT ON REGROUPING PROPOSALS

Idaho Senator, Reed and Johnson Oppose Midnight Ending of Session After President Sends Up His Plan for Reorganizing Departments.

LONG THREATENS, ROBINSON GIVES IN

Reed Denounces President for Executive Order and Other Objections Disrupt Administration Plans After a Long Day.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Efforts of the administration to bring the special session of Congress to an end tonight were thwarted in the Senate, where a group headed by Borah of Idaho, Reed of Pennsylvania and Johnson of California rose in rebellion against what Reed called the administration "juggernaut."

Faced with the prospect of a determined filibuster to prevent adjournment of the session, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, capitulated at 11 p. m., and moved a recess until 11 a. m., Monday. A chorus of weary "ayes" went up, and Vice President Garner, in the chair, declared the motion carried.

Huey Long, who had served notice on the Senate that the special session would have to go into next week, had the floor when Robinson made his motion. Apparently Long was fully primed to carry out his implied threat of a filibuster. He yielded to Robinson, but only, as he said, in order that the majority leader might move a recess.

Half an hour later the House followed the Senate's example and quit work until Monday. This action followed the reading of the President's executive order covering his reorganization plans, and the reference of the order to the Expenditures Committee, of which Cochran of St. Louis is the chairman.

The sending of this order to Congress within a few hours of the expected time of adjournment did more than anything else to provoke the Senate rebellion and thereby upset the administration's plan to get Congress out of the way before the opening of the World Economic Conference at London on Monday.

The law giving the President the power to reorganize Government departments provides that if an order proposing a change is not acted upon by Congress within 60 days of its submission, it shall become effective. It may become effective immediately if Congress takes affirmative action. Action by Congress against an executive order would bring a presidential veto, so that in effect the law provides that only by a two-thirds vote can an order be killed.

Fight on Regrouping Plan.

Attention was called to all this in the Senate debate tonight, and Senator Borah remarked that in passing the law in question Congress surrendered its right to legislate on the subject of reorganization except by a two-thirds vote.

The rebellion came to a head while the Senate was awaiting the conference report on the President's industrial control-public works bill. In an effort to quiet widespread mutterings against the President's belated submission of his reorganization plan, Robinson read a long prepared statement giving an analysis of the plan and saying that the President had proposed only such departmental

SENATE CONFIRMS NEWTON, 43 TO 30; NORRIS PROTESTS

Six Progressives Who Supported Roosevelt Vote Against Hoover's Former Secretary.

POLITICAL PIE-MAKER, NEBRASKAN SAYS

Regards Selection as "Almost Slap in Face" — Many Appointments Are Approved.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Progressive Republicans who campaigned for President Roosevelt arose in the Senate today to wave an unsuccessful fight against his nomination of Walter Newton, a former secretary to President Hoover, to be a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Led by Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, six Independent Republicans joined 24 Democrats in voting against confirmation. They were defeated, however, when 43 votes were cast for Newton, provided by 24 Republicans and 19 Democrats.

The selection of Newton, once a member of the House from Minnesota, Norris said, was "almost a slap in the face at every Progressive Republican in the United States." Of the nominee, Norris said:

"While this man was at the White House, all sorts of machinations went on there to the detriment of what is known as the Progressive Republican wing."

Cutting of New Mexico, Johnson of California and La Follette of Wisconsin, active in behalf of the candidacy of President Roosevelt, voted with Norris and Nye and Frazier of North Dakota against him.

Political Pie-Maker."

Nye lost a motion to send the nomination back to the Banking Committee, the usual parliamentary procedure to kill an appointment, by a 43 to 33 vote.

Norris asserted that he had no respect for Newton as "a man who allies himself with what I believe a very bad organization and who makes political pies and political plums his career."

Stephens (Dem.), Mississippi, opposing Newton, contended he was "unfaithful and untrue to his own chief, President Hoover." Long (Dem.), Louisiana, and Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, also criticised him.

White (Rep.), Maine, speaking for Newton, said he was "a man of ability, character and courage and I believe those qualifications entitle him to nomination by the President and favorable consideration by this body."

Cites Blaine's Selection.

Dickson (Rep.), Iowa, keynoter at the last Republican convention, called to Norris' attention that the nomination of former Senator Blaine (Rep.), Wisconsin, to the Reconstruction Corporation Board was coming up and, referring to Blaine's association with the independents, said:

Blaine was confirmed without a record vote or debate a few moments later.

Robinson of Arkansas, the Democrtaic leader, not expressing himself on Newton, said he thought it "regrettable from the standpoint of public service" that H. Morton Bodfish, whose place Newton takes, was not kept as he "was the best qualified man ever to serve on the board."

President Roosevelt gave Newton a post because Herbert Hoover asked him to on Inauguration day.

In the batch of names that went to the Hill today and were approved was that of William E. Dodd, Chicago University history professor, to be Ambassador to Berlin. In view of the troubled situation in Germany, Roosevelt has delayed the appointment. In Dodd he chose a man who has studied at German universities.

Other Diplomatic Selections.

Other diplomatic assignments, virtually rounding out the corps, were those of John Cudahy, of Milwaukee, to be Ambassador to Poland and Lincoln MacVeagh, of New Canaan, Conn., minister of Greece.

Sub-cabinet appointments included George C. Sweeney of Massachusetts for assistant attorney-general and Harry F. Payer of Ohio as assistant secretary of State.

Many nominations that were just received today or just acted on by committees today also were approved, including the following:

Former Senator Blaine (Rep.), Wisconsin, to the board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Jewell C. Swofford, Missouri, to the United States Employes Compensation Commission.

Also confirmed were:

Basil Manly, of the District of Columbia, to the Federal Power Commission; Vincent Y. Dallman of Illinois, to the Board of Mediation, to settle labor disputes; Harrison Parkman of Kansas, to be purchasing agent of the Postoffice Department; South Trimble Jr. of Kentucky as solicitor of the Commerce Department; William Stanley of Maryland, as assistant to the Attorney-General; Harold M. Stephens of Utah and Frank J. Wideman of Florida, as assistant Attorneys-General; Louis FitzHenry of Illinois to be Circuit Judge for the Seventh Circuit.

A long list of internal revenue collectors and U. S. Attorneys also was submitted and approved.

Among those approved almost as fast as their names were called were Francis White of Maryland, Minister of Czecho-Slovakia; John Flournoy Montgomery of California, Minister to Hungary; Robert Granville Caldwell of Texas, Minister to Portugal; Alvin Mansfield Owsley of Texas, Minister to Rumania; Robert P. Skinner of Ohio, Ambassador to Turkey, and C. B. Merriam, of Kansas, as a member of the board of the Reconstruction Corporation.

Meanwhile, W. W. Howes, Second Assistant Postmaster-General, announced formally the appointment of Stephen A. Cisler of Fort Worth, Tex., to be superintendent of the air mail service. Verification of the naming of Cisler had been given out in advance.

Chase C. Grove, Deputy Second Assistant Postmaster-General, was named assistant general superintendent of the railway mail service, and Jesse M. Donaldson, now postoffice inspector in charge at Chattanooga, Tenn., was elected to replace him.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Prof. William E. Dodd, nominated by President Roosevelt today as Ambassador to Germany, is an authority on American history who finished his education in Germany and purchased a Virginia farm for a source of recreation. Since 1908 he has been a professor of American history at the University of Chicago, serving as chairman of the department from 1927 until three months ago.

He was an intimate friend of Woodrow Wilson, having written a biography and edited the public papers of the war-time President, and has been a counsellor in Democratic political campaigns for years. Next year he will become president of the American Historical Society, one of the highest honors to a historian. He will be advanced automatically from first vice-president.

Dodd was born Oct. 21, 1869, at Clayton, N. C. His wife's maiden name was Mattie Johns. She was born at Auburn, N. C. They have two children—William E. Dodd, a historian now employed in the Congressional Library at Washington, and Martha, assistant literary editor of the Chicago Tribune.

Obtaining his Ph.D., at the University of Leipzig in 1900, Dodd came to the University of Chicago after eight years as professor at Randolph-Macon College, Lynchburg, Va.

He spends three months every year on his farm, Stoneleigh, near Round Hill, Va. He is regarded as one of the best lecturers at the University of Chicago. His home here is in Hyde Park, residential district near the university. He said he would accept the appointment. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the university, said he believed Prof. Dodd was "peculiarly fitted to the post."

CONFEREES WORK OUT COMPROMISES ON INDUSTRY BILL

corresponding rise in the surtax on great incomes. The Senate levies do not increase the income tax rates. They impose a 5 per cent tax on corporation dividends, an excise tax of $1 on each $1000 of the declared value of corporation stock, a 5 per cent tax on corporation profits in excess of 12½ per cent of this declared value, and an additional Federal tax of ½ cent a gallon on gasoline. Certain other changes in the tax system are designed to stop evasions such as those revealed by the Morgan investigation.

The conferees accepted the Senate amendment giving the President sweeping authority to lay embargoes against foreign commodities and to establish import quotas, require the licensing of importers and levy fees (in effect, tariffs) on imports.

Road Fund Allocation.

The method of allocation of the $400,000,000 road building fund to be granted the states out of the $3,300,000,000 authorizations for public works was modified to give the more populous states, because of their greater unemployment problem, somewhat more money than they would receive under the existing method of distribution.

The oil provisions of the Senate bill were accepted by the conferees, and the Senate amendment limiting the operation of the highly controverted licensing section of the bill to one year was retained.

Unprecedented powers are given the President to regulate industries through codes of fair competition, which may be set up voluntarily by the industries themselves, with the be put into effect compulsory by be put ito effect compulsorily by the President on his own initiative. These codes will regulate the hours and wages of labor and other working conditions.

Power is given the President to bring recalcitrant industries into line by compelling them to take out Federal licenses, which may be revoked for non-observance of the regulations. The drastic power to license industry was a special object of attack in the debates on the bill. It was first stricken out by the Senate Finance Committee and then restored and finally accepted by the Senate. The licensing power runs for one year. The other provisions of the bill, including suspension of the anti-trust laws wherever they run counter to the proposed codes and agreements, run for two years. All efforts to prevent what Clark and others called an emasculation of the anti-trust laws failed.

As amended in the Senate, the bill gives the President sweeping powers to ban or limit the importation of foreign commodities whenever he considers that such importation would endanger the success of the industrial control plan.

The features of the bill relating to industry were described in the Senate and House debates as calculated to effect a revolutionary change in the whole American industrial system. Some members called the bill the most far-reaching and important ever brought before the Congress. Senator Wagner said it was a long step toward a "planned economy."

In its second section the bill provides for a $3,300,000,000 public works program as a stimulation to employment. It is the theory of Senator Wagner and other sponsors of the bill that this expenditure will "prime" the industrial machine and speed economic recovery.

Four hundred million dollars of the total is to go to the states as an outright grant for highway construction.

The bill carries a tax program estimated to yield $220,000,000 annually for the services of the public works bond issues.

Additional Taxes Levied.

The bill extends the present special excise taxes for one year, or until June 30, 1935, and add the following new taxes:

One-tenth of 1 per cent on the fair value of corporation stock as declared by the corporation, with a tax of 5 per cent on all earnings above 12½ per cent on this valuation.

An increase from the present ¾ of 1 per cent to 1 per cent in the penalty tax on consolidated tax returns of affiliated companies.

In addition, there are administrative changes estimated to yield a total of $15,000,000 and directed chiefly at private banking houses like J. P. Morgan & Co. One of these wipes out the present privilege of carrying over losses into a succeeding year, another removes the privilege now accorded private bankers of taking credit for losses sustained on securities held for less than two years, and a third prevents the distribution of stock and bond losses sustained by a partnership among the individual returns of partners in the computation of their taxes.

Adjournment Blocked in Senate

changes as he believed would meet with general approval.

Robinson said the President had delayed sending in the order because of the tremendous pressure of other important business. For the last three months, he said, the President of the United States had been the busiest man in the world.

Robinson had scarcely taken his seat before Reed of Pennsylvania began a hot protest—a protest against certain features of the plan as well as against the time and method of its submission to Congress. Only one copy, he pointed out, had been sent in, and no Senator except the majority leader knew what was in it.

"The submission of this message at this late hour," said Reed, "is the crowning travesty in a week that has made a farce of representative government."

Reed attacked the proposed creation of a new centralized procurement division of the Government. This, he declared, would mean not a saving but a duplication of effort and expense, since in many cases there would have to be two sets of experts—one set in the department affected and another in the procurement division—to pass upon purchases.

"Contemptuous Gesture."

"When this message was sent here," Reed continued, "it was expected that the special session of Congress would adjourn tonight. Hence the submission was little more than a contemptuous gesture toward Congress.

"Advantage has been taken of the law which says that the executive may order changes, and that unless Congress disapproves then in 60 days they shall become effective. The message is sent to us within a few hours of adjournment, when we can't possibly take action for or against it."

Borah said the message raised two or three questions of grave importance, and Reed added, on a threatening note:

"We are not going to adjourn this session at midnight tonight!"

"The whole animating spirit of this week," he continued, "has been to drive Congress to a point where it is incapable of thought. We have been in session more than 12 hours today, we were in session 11 hours yesterday and 13 hours the day before.

"How can we give our best thought to the problems of government when we are driven at this speed? The only reason for it is that the President wants to go away on a vacation."

Wants Time for Study.

Johnson of California said the explanation by the majority leader was a complete demonstration that Congress should not adjourn till it had time to study the President's plan.

"The vice of the situation," said the Californian, "is that unless affirmative action is taken we are denied any action. It is an absolute impossibility for us to familiarize ourselves with this order tonight."

Long of Louisiana found further cause for complaint in what he described as the "emasculation" of the Senate amendments to the industrial bill by the conference committee.

Leaders Hope Work May Be Completed This Week.

By the Associated Press.

There was a prospect, however, that tomorrow President Roosevelt would talk things over with the leaders to effect a quick completion of his emergency program.

The decision to quit over the week-end was reached at a late conference of Democratic leaders of both houses. They expressed belief that Congress could wind up its work some time next week.

Those attending the conference were Robinson of Arkansas, Senate majority chieftain; Byrns of Tennessee, the House Democratic leader; Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee, Senator Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, and Senator Kendrick of Wyoming, assistant Democratic leader.

A stumbling block was thrown before leaders when Senator La Follette (Rep.), Wisconsin, objected to consideration of the $3,450,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill.

Shortly afte rthe House passed the bill, Senator Bratton (Dem.), New Mexico, presented a favorable report on the bill to the Senate and asked for its immediate consideration.

"I object," shouted La Follette. "I object, and it can only be considered tonight by unanimous consent, until I know the fate of the conference report on the industrial control and independent offices bills."

Bratton submitted the report anyway, but made no further effort to obtain its immediate consideration.

A Busy Day in Congress.

The Senate and House met at 10 a. m., and went to work.

Without debate the Senate approved a bill perfecting consolidation of all farm credit agencies and setting up a $120,000,000 revolving fund. It was sent back to the House for agreement on minor amendments.

The House Appropriations Committee rushed through the fourth deficiency bill, supplying $3,459,480,000 for starting the administration's economic recovery program, and brought it before the House which gave its approval after an hour's debate.

President Roosevelt meanwhile sent up appointments by the dozen and the Senate confirmed them almost as rapidly as they came. Among these were William E. Dodd, professor of history at the University of Chicago, to be Ambassador to Germany.

A last-minute drive for enactment of the Glass-Steagall banking reform bill developed after Senator Bulkley (Dem.), Ohio, one of the conferees on this measure which now is deadlocked, had talked with the President.

Chairman Steagall of the House Banking Committee suggested that House members stay in session until the banking bill had been passed. He charged that big banking houses were trying to kill the legislation.

President Roosevelt's bill to permit him to appoint a Governor for Hawaii from the mainland apparently was killed in the Senate by the strenous opposition of Republican Independents.

Chairman Tydings (Dem.), Maryland, sought to bring the measure up under suspension of the rules after objection had blocked his request for unanimous consent to take up the bill, which already has passed the House. Senator La Follette (Rep.), Wisconsin, raised a point of order against the motion to suspend the rules, and was sustained. This automatically prohibited action and means the bill cannot be acted upon until Congress reconvenes in January.

Committee Reports.

Other committee reports came thick and fast. The joint congressional committee which has been investigating the wreck of the Akron, recommended that that navy dirigible be replaced and urged full development of all fields of lighter-than-air usages.

A report that $1.40 paid BeVier & Co., New York, for toilet kits for the civilian conservation corps was a fair price but that so large an amount should not have been spent was approved by a Senate military affairs subcommittee. The committee said it found no evidence of corruption in the deal.

The Senate voted $25,000 for an investigation of ocean and air mail contracts and the Senate Judiciary Committee authorized a favorable report on a resolution by Senator McAdoo (Dem.), California, for an investigation of the oil industry.

The House with four minutes' debate voted to remove the limitation on the amount the Reconstruction Corporation might advance to receivers liquidating closed banks. At present such loans are limited to $200,000,000. Agreement by the Senate to one technical amendment was still lacking.

The House adopted a resolution by Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee authorizing an investigation into the internal revenue laws, with a view to revision to eliminate some of the weaknesses that recent hearings are considered by members to have disclosed.

The Senate and House approved a conference report on the farm credit bill providing a $120,000,000 revolving fund for loans to farmers. The measure now goes to the President.

Biggest Peace-Time Appropriation Bill in History of U. S.

The biggest peace-time appropriation bill in the history of the country, making $3,459,000,000 available for the Roosevelt recovery program, was pushed forward.

Passed by the House on a 287 to 84 roll call vote, the bill immediately was sent to the Senate, where leaders were ready to begin its consideration at once.

Only once has Congress passed a bill making available more money than is carried in this measure. The other was a war-time bill, passed July 9, 1918, appropriating $10,225,000,000 for the War Department.

The pending bill provides funds for many phases of the administration's program, notably $3,250,000,000 for public works under the industrial bill and $50,000,000 for initial work in the Muscle Shoals-Tennessee Valley development project.

Asked for by the President only last night, the bill was approved by an appropriations sub-committee that was in session until midnight. It was reported by the full committee in a 30-minute session this morning, brought up on the floor and passed in less than two hours.

Other Items in the Bill.

In addition, the bill carries $40,000,000 for the revolving fund created by the farm credit act and $2,000,000 for administration of that act; $1,500,000 for the new national employment service to be set up under the Wagner-Peyser bill; $50,000,000 to be paid into the surplus of Federal Land Banks as provided in the farm mortgage bill; $15,000,000 to meet reductions in farm mortgage interest rates by Federal banks from 5 to 4½ per cent; $50,000,000 for subscriptions to preferred shares in Federal savings and loan associations established by the home mortgage bill; $265,000 for the Federal Trade Commission to administer the securities act; $125,000 for expenses of the American delegation to the London economic conference, and several thousands more for claims against the Government.

One provision asked for by the President was struck out in the House on a point of order by Representative Wadsworth (Rep.), New York. This would have authorized reimbursements for expenses in the Muscle Shoals-Tennessee project incurred at the direction of the President before passage of the bill.

The House Appropriations Committee also rejected a request for $232,086 to pay persons evicted from Pueblo Indian lands for improvements they made.

As the bill passed the House, Representative Taber (Rep.), New York, said, "the Federal budget with the bill now before the House is unbalanced almost beyond the dreams of war-time.

"Take out the savings," he said, "and you have increased the expenditures $3,269,000,000 for the year."

MANITOBA PREMIER DEMANDS WORLD CUT OF WHEAT ACREAGE

Bracken Explains Recent Curtailment Declaration of Prairie Provinces.

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 10.—Wheat acreage restriction among the chief exporting countries is the first and most important step toward elimination of price-ruining carryovers, Premier Bracken Manitoba declared today in a statement explaining the recent curtailment declaration of prairie province premiers.

Premier Bracken said the prairie provinces had pledged themselves to co-operate with the Federal administration in formulating plans to carry the principle of wheat acreage curtailment of control of exports into operation in Canada.

No plan could be accepted by Canada, however, until it was p into effect by all other major exporting countries. Agreement on acreage curtailment, the Premier added, might mean removal of trade restrictions in big consuming countries by removing the bogey of cheap wheat dumping.

SENATORS' COUNSEL SEEKS INQUIRY ON LONG'S 'BEHAVIOR'

S. T. Ansell Charges Senator Tried to Dominate Sub-Committee in Late Investigation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Samuel T. Ansell, former counsel for the Senate Committee investigating the election of Senator Overton of Louisana, today filed a petition with the Senate for an investigation of the "behavior" of Senator Huey Long and "his qualifications to be a Senator.

Ansell charged that Long, who acted as counsel for Overton in the election inquiry, attempted to dominate and control the sub-committee making the inquiry last winter by "assertions of senatorial prerogatives, bluster and truculence to the chairman."

He asserted Long "manipulated witnesses, suborned perjury, suppressed the truth and otherwise obstructed the investigation."

"The petitioner," Ansell said, "is advised and believes that his (Long's) assuming to act as counsel for the said Overton was inconsistent with his status and prejudicial to his duty as a Senator of the United States."

KANSAS CONVICTS WHO TOOK PAIR'S CAR HERE CAUGHT

TWO WOMEN, BABY WITH FUGITIVES

SAN ANGELO, Tex., June 10.—Billy Woods and Clifford Dopson, who escaped with nine other convicts from the Kansas penitentiary on Memorial day, and who in St. Louis, last Sunday night, stole an automobile and set out its owner and a young woman companion, were captured near Junction, Tex., today.

The two, in an automobile with Missouri license, were heading for the Rio Grande, about 100 miles distant, intending to cross into Mexico. They were captured by two United States customs officers, J. A. Tilley and W. E. Kilborn. Two women and a baby were riding with the convicts.

Seven of the prisoners who kidnaped Warden Kirk Prather and two guards and fled over the wall of the Kansas prison at Lansing now remain at large. Lewis Bechtel and Frank Sawyer were captured several days ago in Oklahoma. Sawyer was taken to the Oklahoma Penitentiary, where he already was under a life sentence. The convicts till at liberty include the leaders of the prison break, Wilbur Underhill, accused of at least three murders, and Harvey Bailey, notorious bank robber.

Woods and Dopson, both under five to 15 year sentences in Kansas, were encountered while the customs officers were in search of liquor smugg'ers. When the officers stopped the convicts' car and asked to see the bill of sale, Tilley recognized Woods and placed the party under arrest.

While Dopson was being transferred to the customs men's car Woods seized a shotgun and fired, but without effect. He drove away with the women and child, but soon wrecked the machine. When Tilley drove up, Woods offered no resistance. Three loaded pistols and a shotgun were found in the car.

The prisoners were taken to Junction and placed in the county jail. Sheriff John Graham chained the men in their cells and held the women pending instructions from the Department of Justice.

Woods told the Sheriff he and his companions were "just driving around" when captured. "They'll not take me back to Kansas," Woods was quoted as saying. Neither Dopson nor the women had anything to say.

Woods and Dopson last Sunday afternoon held up McBride Rayfield of Bonne Terre, Mo., on highway No. 61 near Fredericktown, Mo., took his automobile, and compelled Rayfield and his companion, Miss [illegible]llie Stewart of Bonne Terre, to ride to St. Louis with them. At that time, they abandoned an automobile with a Tennessee license. On the way to St. Louis, they talked freely of their escape and the adventures of their flight, and said they did not intend to be captured alive. One of them gave Miss Stewart a wrist watch, as a reward for her cool behavior.

At Kingshighway and Gravois avenue, the robbers put the two out of the car, and ordered them to wait there 45 mintues before notifying anyone. This order was obeyed. The robbers demanded money from Rayfield, but took only $5 of the $25 he carried. They told him to look for his car at Grand boulevard and Chouteau avenue, but it was not found.

Woman in San Francisco Leaves Notes to Three Doctors and Cemetery Sexton.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10. — A woman about 35 years old who registered as Mrs. L. C. Johnson of Chicago, but who signed a letter with the name, Lucille Carroll Jay, shot herself to death in a large downtown hotel here early today.

She left several notes, among them one to Dr. T. B. W. Leland, Coroner, requesting that she be clothed in certain dresses and cremated; one to Dr. Charles L. Conners, pathologist at the University of California, asking him to help Dr. Leland "determine the cause of my death" and to send the report, together with the heart, to Dr. Ray W. Scott, of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, O.

In the letter, sent to T. E. Farrow, proprietor of a small hotel where she had stayed a week before going to the larger hostelry, she inclosed $100 and asked that her ashes be sent to the sexton of a New Orleans (La.) cemetery. Other notes indicated she was despondent. Police said she called on a cemetery official two days ago to make plans for a funeral, saying "a death was expected in the family."

Washington University scholarships are awarded semi-annually to honor high school graduates. They are given by the university on the basis of reports from the principals and teachers, which take into consideration intellectual promise, scholastic attainment, leadership, personality, participation in extra-curricular activities and other factors. It is not a requirement that the winners lead their classes in grades, but this time, as last January and frequently in the past, the recipients do top their classmates.

Miss Jones, who went to Harrison School before entering high school, desires to enter social service work. She belonged to the National Honor Society and was editor-in-chief of the "Digest," a school paper. She was vice-president of the Shakespeare Club, won a numeral of the Girls' Athletic Association and belonged to the Alfred Marshall, Glee, Nature, Gym, Hiking and Writers' clubs.

Miss Volk, a graduate of Field School, plans to become a teacher. She is the ranking member of the senior class and Central High gave her a gold medal for excellence in scholarship. She was editor-in-chief of "The Red and Black," school annual, and associate editor of "The News," school periodical; president of the Biology Club, chairman of the Freshman Sponsors and vice-president of the Art Appreciation Club. German and English were her major studies.

One Intends to Study Law.

Fernandez, who attended Blow School, intends to be a lawyer. He was editor of "The Orange and Blue," school annual; president of the Honor Society, president-secretary of the Language Club, treasurer of Webster Hayne Club and a member of the Student Council. He won a Colonial Dames history prize and took second place in an interscholastic oratorical contest. An affirmative team of which he was captain won the 1933 interscholastic debating championship. He belonged to the Glee and Chess clubs. Spanish and English were his chief studies.

Miss Tidrow, from Bryan Mullanphy School, has not decided on her career. She belonged to the National Honor Society, Student Council, girls' basketball team, literary society, "Pep R." Club and Latin Club and was vice-president of the senior class.

Letterman, who went to Dozier School, plans to become a physician. He won a Harvard book award and the two-year and four-year scholarship seals. He was editor-in-chief of "The Scrip," school publication, and belonged to the National Honor Society, Service Club, Chemistry Club and school band and orchestra. He is an Eagle Scout of Boy Scout Troop No. 71.

The scholarships will be presented at the high school commencement exercises.

Rickart was sentenced to five years in prison in January, 1927, when found guilty of participating in a holdup of the Liberty Theater in December, 1925. He was released after serving about 17 months of that sentence, but police records do not show how he obtained his release. $62,700 IN BONDS FOUND IN HOTEL ROOM; 4 ARRESTED

Police Seize Securities, Believed to Have Been Stolen and Brought Here for Sale.

Four men, one a St. Louis lawyer, were arrested for questioning yesterday by detectives who found $62,700 in bonds, thought to have been stolen, and a pistol in a room in a downtown hotel. Detectives think the bonds were brought here for sale.

The arrests were made during the afternoon after the detectives had trailed the men for several hours in the downtown district. The men denied knowledge of the bonds or the pistol and said they were not acquainted with each other.

Tracing the number on the pistol, a .45 caliber automatic, the detectives found it was one of about 75 taken in a burglary of the National Guard Armory at De Soto, Mo., last November. The securities included $33,000 in purported bonds of the Board of Education of Wichita, Kan., $28,700 in Liberty Bonds and $1000 in bonds of the Consolidated Gas Co.

After the arrest of four other men here in January, 1932, in connection with the attempted sale of counterfeit bonds of the Wichita Board of Education, it was announced that about $500,000 of the counterfeit bonds were in existence, of which about $30,000 had been traced. In April, 1932, two men were arrested in a downtown hotel when police found about $26,000 of the purported school board bonds in their possession.

Former Convict Arrested.

Three of the men arrested yesterday are St. Louisans, one an associate of gangsters, and the fourth is a former convict from Kansas City.

Yesterday morning Detective Sergeants Shelton and Cliffe went to a downtown drug store on information that several men would meet there to arrange for discussion of a deal to sell stolen securities.

Seeing three men in animated conversation, they trailed one of them, the lawyer, to his office and back to the drug store. The men seperated but several of them reassembled in the hotel. The detectives followed one of them to a room, where they arrested him after finding the pistol and a cardboard box containing the bonds. He denied knowing of the bonds and said he had taken the room "to sell whisky."

The lawyer was taken in custody in his office, the former convict in the lobby of the hotel, and the man known to police as an associate of gangsters in an automobile outside the hotel.

NEPHEWS SUE TO BREAK WILL OF ROBERT H. FLANNIGAN

Petition Charges Former East St. Louis Judge Was Unduly Influenced by Wife.

Suit to break the will of Robert H. Flannigan, former Judge of the East St. Louis City Court and former Justice of the Peace, was filed in Circuit Court at Belleville yesterday by Carl Flannigan and Robert L. Lane of East St. Louis, his nephews.

Flannigan, who died in 1931, left his entire estate of $25,000 in trust to his widow, Mrs. Angy W. Flannigan, with the provision that on her death the property should go to her daughter by a former marriage, Mrs. Lucilie B. Osborne of Alton.

The nephews' petition states that Mrs. Osborn and her mother, whom Flannigan married eight years ago, exercised undue influence on him when he drew the will seven months before his death.

150 COLLAPSE IN PARADE OF HIGH SCHOOL BANDS

Three in Hospital at Evanston Apparently Victims of Heat; Food to Be Investigated.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., June 10.—Three high school band members were in a hospital here tonight, the most seriously affected of 150 youthful competitors who collapsed in the "marching contest," high point of the National high school band contest's final day program.

Fifty of the boys who faltered in the marching under intense heat were carried off the field. One hundred others dropped out of line but were not disabled.

Although the hc sun was thought to have been too much for the marchers, police were investigating the food supply for the contestants after receiving complaints from the hospital patients.

The parade of 72 bands from Patten gym to Dyche Stadium on Northwestern University campus was over a two-mile route. Despite the numerous collapses among the marchers the program was carried out in the stadium and the band marching contest awards announced.

TWO MEN HOLD UP LOTTO CASHIER WHILE 800 PLAY

Pair Get $60 from Mrs. Edith Hartman at Carpenters' Building, 1411 N. Grand.

While more than 800 lotto players in the hall of the Carpenters' Building, 1401 North Grand boulevard, were unaware of what was happening, two armed men robbed the cashier of about $60 last night.

Mrs. Edith Hartman, the cashier, was sitting at the entrance to the hall when the men, both carrying revolvers, entered. While one guarded a bystander, the other scooped all of the bills and some of the change out of the cash drawer. They backed out of the entrance and walked north on Grand boulevard to Cozzens avenue, where a companion was waiting in an automobile.

Only the players at the first two tables could see the holdup. When the robbers were gone, Mrs. Hartman cried out, "I've been robbed," but the lotto was resumed in a few minutes. It was a regular nightly lotto sponsored by an American Legion post.

Giving Children Relief From Heat

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

CHILDREN of the neighborhood of No. 13 Engine Co., 1015 North Eleventh street, getting a taste yesterday of the new sprinkling system ordered by Mayor Dickman to cool off children of congested areas. Firemen handle the shower and play a small hose on the youngsters besides.

Street Showers Prove To Be Dripping Success

At first with timidity and then with delight, children of the congested district near Engine House No. 13, at 1015 North Eleventh st., cooled off under a sprinkler in front of the house yesterday augmented by a grinning fireman who directed a stream from a small hose.

It was the first effort to put into effect Mayor Dickmann's plan to sprinkle children of crowded districts during the summer, as has been done in New York for years.

Children near the engine house watched curiously as a perforated pipe, through which water presently was to pour, was set up in the street. Then the water was turned on and the youngsters were invited to step under the shower.

They hung back for awhile, but the friendly firemen lured recruits by squirting the hose on them as they eyed the sprinkler. It wasn't long before a score of children, boys and girls, white and black, representatives of numerous nationalities to whom nearby streets are playgrounds, were squirming under the showers.

Other children, some clinging to the hands of hesitant parents, drew near, eyes big with longing. Before long, even the stricter parents who at first didn't sense what it was all about, were sending their children under the spray and wishing audibly they could be there, too.

Big brothers led little sisters, big sisters guided their little brothers. Some wore bathing suits, others just stepped into the refreshing deluge with the clothes they had on.

Shouts of glee resounded through the street. Jubilant boys chased and eventually captured a forlorn dog, pet of the neighborhood, dragging the protesting animal under the shower. And in a few minutes the dog was jumping about, snapping at the streams of water, knocking some of his human playmates off their feet with his impetuous cavorting.

It was a big afternoon for North Eleventh street—probably the biggest the children have seen for many years. As the man with the hose put it:

"Well, I've been here six years and this is the first time I've ever seen the kids so happy. Makes a man feel sort of good himself."

BRITAIN AND ITALY EXPECTED TO PAY PART OF WAR DEBT

White House Conferences on Payment Due Thursday—France Likely to Default Again.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Part payment of war debts from Great Britain and Italy appeared likely tonight after a round of conferences involving President Roosevelt, his advisers and foreign diplomats.

While London dispatches reflected sentiment there for this method of meeting the June 15 due date, Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, presented orally a communication on the debts from his Government to the chief executive.

The latter called in Acting Secretary Phillips of the State Department and Assistant Secretary. Moley and together they discussed the London message. Soon afterward Sir Ronald called upon Phillips.

Hardly had the Briton departed, than the Acting Secretary received Ambassador Rosso of Italy, who, upon leaving, indicated that, while a final decision had still to be reached, a part payment was probable.

Meanwhile information from Paris told of an increasing likelihood that France would default for a second time, adding $40,738,000 to the $19,261,432 amount by which that country already is in arrears.

Payments Due Thursday.

On Thursday the semi-annual installments on the funded war debts will be due from 13 countries. They total $144,179,674. Great Britain's share comprises more than half of this, amounting to $75,950,000. Italy's installment is $13,545,438.

Awaiting definite word of what will happen when the installments fall due, observers looked to London and Rome for definite pronouncements by the governments there. Tomorrow night, Ambassador Rosso said, Premier Mussolini will deliver an address on Italian foreign policies in which he is expected to discuss the war debts and indicate what course Italy will pursue on June 15.

Previous indications had been that Italy was waiting for Great Britain to act and would fellow the lead of the London Government. Rumania, owing an even million dollars, had frankly said she would do whatever Great Britain does.

Roosevelt's attitude toward the debt payments has been that payment is expected and that any move for revision must originate with the debtor nations.

Notifications to all the debtor countries of their obligations due Thursday were delivered today through diplomatic channels.

Chamberlain to Outline Policy to Commons Tuesday.

LONDON, June 10.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain will tell the House of Commonds Tuesday what the British Government intends to do about the $75,950,000 war debt payment due the United States on Thursday.

This was made known today, but there was no official word about the method of dealing with the payment. For weeks informed opinion here has agreed that Britain would negotiate some arrangement satisfactory to both countries and would avoid default.

This unofficial view still was held tonight. It was expected that Chamberlain probably would take the same line as with the last British payment in December to the effect that any payment made would be in the nature of a capital installment toward final liquidation of the war debt.

While the majority of the British cabinet has stood firm against default at all costs, several ministers, it is understood, have continued their opposition to any payment at all to the very last.

As the cabinet acts as a unit the minority opinion is not likely to affect the present situation. The whole position, it is understood, can still be changed before Chamberlain makes his statement before the House, but the general view is that Brirtain will seek to handle the payment in a modified form of the method used for the installment last December.

CLARK AND HUEY LONG IN TILT OVER VOTES ON INDUSTRY BILL

Former Says Long Denounced Measure, Then Voted for It; Louisianian Retorts in Kind.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Senator Clark of Missouri and the Louisiana Kingfish engaged in a mild tilt on the Senate floor today.

Clark opened fire by pointing out that Long had voted for the industrial control bill after an oratorical blast against it.

Long retorted that Clark had put through an amendment to tax the income from securities now tax-exempt and then had voted against the bill carrying the amendment.

"I did my best," said the Missouri Senator, "to make the bill palatable, but I couldn't make it palatable enough to swallow it."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Senator Robinson (Rep.), Indiana, charged in the Senate tonight that "because of the House of Morgan," President Roosevelt "fears to discharge" Secretary Woodin and Norman H. Davis, whose names were on select client lists of the banking firm.

Opening another of his many attacks on the two men, Robinson said: "I think that one reason the chief executive wants to get Congress out of the way tonight is so he can accept a 10 per cent debt payment from Great Britain next week."

The Indianan said Morgan "wants the debts cancelled" and that "the line-up in the treasury" favored it.

250,000 JOBLESS GIVEN WORK IN FORESTRY CORPS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The Forest Conservation Corps announced today that 250,000 unemployed have been given work and thousands of their dependents taken off relief rolls.

The 250,000 included 235,000 of the 275,000 to be placed in forest camps by July 1 enrolled up to midnight Friday, and about 15,000 civilians, including construction foremen, supervisors, technical foresters and others needed to supervise the work of the conservation corps while in the forest camps.

Robert Fechner, director of the corps, said in announcing these figures:

"Reports reaching this office from every section of the country make it certain that the President's program of 275,000 men in forest camps by July 1 will be completed on scheduled time. The big task now is that of establishing the men in forest camps. Special trains are being used when necessary to speed this work.

"The army's schedule calls for the movement of 175,000 men into the forest during the next three weeks. This means that the army must eclipse the average mobilization and movement rate of World War days to carry their mission through to a successful conclusion." Fechner said all the 1442 forest camps where men are to be employed have been selected and a total of 100,000 are in camps.

SERGT. YORK TO SPEAK HERE AT ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE RALLY

Convention Seeks to Block Holding of Missouri Election This Year on Repeal Proposal.

The annual convention of the Missouri Anti-Saloon League will be held Thursday at Church Federation headquarters, Central Y. M. C. A. building. At a public rally at Third Baptist Church Thursday night, against repeal of the eighteenth amendment, Sergt. Alvin York, Tennessee World War hero, will be the chief speaker.

The Rev. Dr. M. T. Haw of Kansas City, State president, will preside at the convention. P. A. Tate, State superintendent, will report on the progress of the movement to prevent, by referendum petitions, the holding of a special election this year on the repeal proposal. The purpose of this movement is to defer a vote until the November, 1934, election.

Tate said yesterday that he believed it would be possible to obtain the signatures of 5 per cent of the voters in 11 of the 16 former congressional districts, required under the referendum law, but that a much larger number of signatures would be sought. The legal question involved is whether, for the purpose of a referendum, the otherwise obsolete congressional districts still exist. The State elected its 13 Congressmen-at-large last November.

WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE OPENS TOMORROW; FINANCIAL EXPERTS ALREADY IN SESSION

U. S., British and French Bankers Take Up Plans to Stabilize Dollar, Pound and Franc.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 10.—Statesmen and financial experts of many nations thronged London hotels tonight, pending the opening Monday of the world economic conference.

Three key men—possibly one an American—will guide the proceedings of the conference under present plans.

It was understood in informed quarters tonight that the organization set up would include the creation of two committees, one on monetary matters, the second on general economic questions including tariffs.

The chairman of these two committees together with Premier Ramsay MacDonald as chairman of the conference will hold the most important positions in the great gathering of virtually all civilized nations.

There also will be a steering committee, probably headed by MacDonald. It is expected to include an American.

Hull May Head One Group.

Cordell Hull, the United States Secretary of State, is in the running for one of the big committee chairmanships. He is regarded as especially fitted to head the committee on tariffs and other nonmonetary economic problems.

No decision has yet been reached for either chairmanship, however. In fact, at this stage it is not definite whether the chairmen will be appointed by MacDonald, chosen by the steering committee or elected by the conference itself.

The organization of the conference was discussed at two informal meetings of the five American delegates today. The delegation is in constant touch with the British Foreign Office.

James M. Cox was named tonight in the official journal of the conference as vice-president of the American delegation. This is interpreted as meaning that the former Governor of Ohio will head the delegation when Secretary Hull returns to the United States after the opening weeks of the parley.

The Greek and Italian delegations are lodged at the same hotel. The Cubans and Argentines will arrive probably tomorrow.

Considering Limiting Speeches.

A plan for limiting speeches to 10 minutes is under consideration. This may be proposed by the steering committee at the outset. Secretary Hull will speak at the start of the second day's proceedings Tuesday. Parts of his address were cabled to Washington today for President Roosevelt's approval.

Monday will be devoted to opening formalities—with addresses by King George and MacDonald.

At first it was expected that the plenary session would last 10 days, but it now is hopted this estimated time may be cut in half so that the committees can start to work.

Against Special Advantages.

American quarters made it clear that the United States was prepared to go as far as any nation toward mutually beneficial cooperation. But they gave warning that any effort to obtain special advantages would be stoutly resisted.

Hull, James M. Cox, and the other delegates were busy in private discussions with their experts. Hull met MacDonald at a private luncheon yesterday.

American headquarters at Claridge's was active, with virtually all of the United States representatives keeping to the hotel over the week-end, although most of the British followed the traditional custom of going to the country.

Stabilization Negotiations.

Negotiations among central bank officials of the United States, Great Britain and France on the stabilization of the dollar, the pound and the franc were under way here tonight.

It was definitely learned that the three-cornered currency discussions were in progress when Clement Moray, governor of the Bank of France, and Charles Farnier, vice-governor, arrived and joined George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, in private talks.

Harrison and Jay Crane of the New York bank had a conference with Norman yesterday immediately on their arrival here.

Fixed Level Not Planned.

While no official word was forthcoming as to the character of the three-party conversations, it was understood that means of de facto stabilization were discussed. Such a move would be aimed to prevent wide fluctuations in the currencies of the great powers, an objective which experts regard as essential to the success of the coming international meetings here.

This stabilization presumably would be accomplished by the establishment of a fund to buy and sell currencies of the United States, France and Great Britain.

At present there is no disposition to peg the three monies at a fixed level but rather to keep them within certain general bounds. Other currencies may be brought into the conversations later.

British financial quarters are showing almost as much interest in the stabilization of the Japanese yen as in the stabilization of the American dollar.

Severe Drop in Yen.

Depreciation in Japanese currency is more severe than in any other major money, and there has been a storm of protests from British commercial interests competing with Japanese goods in the Far East and even in the British Isles.

Indications in monetary quarters are that stabilization of the dollar, pound and yen may become the vital issue.

The Americans are chiefly interested in establishing the dollar relation to the pound, while the British are regarded as unlikely to commit the pound to a definite level without a similar commitment for the yen.

The Japanese delegation is very active, with the members anxious for a place on the bureau of the conference, which will act as a steering committee.

Germans and French Late.

The Germans and the French were the major delegations not participating in today's activities. The Germans were scheduled to arrive tonight and the French are expected late tomorrow.

Both delegations are keenly interested in the return of the dollar and the pound to the gold standard. Germany is suffering severely from world monetary instability, to which she attributes much of the slump in her trade balance which necessitated the recent moratorium on debts.

Sore political problems not on the conference agenda are likely to be dragged in, including the Chinese-Japanese dispute and the war debts. It is reported that the Japanese have no intention of dealing with the Chinese conflict but they will make a reply if the question is brought up by the Chinese.

The American delegation is sedulously avoiding the debt issue, and news today that the British debt policy is to be announced in the House of Commons Tuesday led to hopes that the problem of the payments due the United States on Thursday would be quickly settled.

Soviet Delegate Arrives.

Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, arrived and was surrounded by considerable secrecy. He roused the interest of other delegations in view of the feeling in many quarters that co-operation by the Soviet state, whose production is on a basis radically different from that of the capitalistic world, is necessary for any extensive reduction in trade barriers.

Part of the Italian delegation already is here. It is understood that they will press for return of the dollar and the sterling group currencies to gold at the highest rate possible. In addition they will seek reduced tariffs and abolition of trade quotas.

Numerous representatives of Britain's dominions are at hand. Gen. Jan Christiaan Smuts, delegate from the Union of South Africa, arrived at Croydon from Cape Town, ending a 6000-mile airplane flight.

"We must make up our minds to win," Gen. Smuts said. "The spirit of defeatism has no place in this great emergency."

Scramble On for Seats.

Squads of workmen, under high pressure over the week-end, will put the finishing touches to Kensington Museum, where the conference is to meet.

A great scramble for seats for the opening session was on tonight, especially among Americans and women of all nations.

For a time it looked as if Mrs. Hull, wife of the American Secretary of State, would be unable to gain admittance. At the League of Nations headquarters where arrangements are being handled it was said that a ticket had been issued to only one woman—Ishbel MacDonald.

Later American headquarters were advised that one ticket of entrance for a woman would be allotted to each delegation. This would mean disappointment for the wives of several American delegates and experts who are eager to see the King open the historic meeting.

See what your Buying is doing!

THESE photographs typify the most important thing that has happened in American business in the last three and a half years.

See them here lined up before the Goodyear employment offices in Akron, getting jobs by the hundreds, even thousands, as the call for production sounds.

This is happening not alone in Akron and in Goodyear plants elsewhere, but in factories of every kind in towns and cities all over this great land!

● This photograph, taken in front of the Goodyear main offices in Akron, shows only a part of the long line of skilled tire-builders called back to work by increased buying. Between April 1 and May 31, 2500 men and women were added to the Goodyear payrolls in Akron, and similar scenes are being enacted at the Goodyear plants in Los Angeles and in Gadsden, Alabama

● Everybody's happy again. Another name is added to the Goodyear payroll as Factory Manager Slusser looks on

● His first day back on the job—building the world's best known tires and mighty glad to be here, thank you

YOUR buying has started this. Washington snapped the paralysis of fear, and your buying did the rest. Keep it up!

It's putting men back on their jobs, back on payrolls. It's setting wheels turning, pluming chimneys with smoke, starting silent machines humming, and bringing hope back to hearts that were black with despair.

Today factories can turn out goods and dealers can stock their shelves with a new confidence that they can get back the money they put in merchandise, because they can find a market.

And as more people go back to their jobs and payrolls continue to grow and flow into trade, the markets will grow even greater.

THERE is every reason why you should buy today. Apart from the fact that you furnish work for others, and thus safeguard your own work by enabling others to buy the things you produce, you can fill your needs now at prices you may not see again.

Take tires, for example — prices on tires have dropped, almost without interruption, for eight straight years.

Now, with rubber and cotton on the rise along with other commodities, you can foresee what is bound to happen.

Yet if you act in time you can still buy a whole set of tires for no more than a single tire once cost you.

And if you buy Goodyear Tires, you get tires three to four times better—in looks, safety, protection from blowouts, mileage — than any tires were a few years ago.

LOOK again at the photographs here — think what is happening in the mills and homes and markets of the country behind such scenes as these — see what your buying is doing!

For your own as well as the common good, keep it up!

THE GOODYEAR TIRE & RUBBER COMPANY, INC.

This is the Goodyear All-Weather, which outsells any other tire in the world. Even throughout the times of stress, Goodyear has kept faith with the public by lifting its quality steadily higher, but today you can still buy this tire—the best tire we have ever made—for prices starting as low as $6.40

CENTRAL HARDWARE COMPANY

BRIDE KIDNAPED BY HOLDUP MAN

MRS. MADELINE GRAUB of Chicago was the second woman in two days to be kidnaped from downtown Chicago while she sat in her own auto. Mrs. Graub had driven to the curb in front of a hotel in the downtown district shortly before 2 a. m. to await her husband, an orchestra member. An armed man entered her car, wired her hands to the steering wheel and drove off to a secluded section, where she was hurled from the car. The Graubs were married four days before the kidnaping.

ALDERMEN TAKE UP 8-HOUR-DAY BILL

It Also Provides Contractors on City Work Must Pay Prevailing Wage.

A bill which would make mandatory the 8-hour-day and payment of the prevailing wage by contractors engaged in work for the city was approved yesterday by the Legislation Committee of the Board of Aldermen. It is slated for passage tomorrow or Tuesday under suspension of rules.

The measure was introduced by Emmett Golden, vice-president of the board. It defines the "prevailing" wage as that specified in the so-called standardization ordinance, which means, in the case of unionized crafts, the union scale.

A similar ordinance was passed more than 10 years ago during the administration of Mayor Kiel, but was repealed after the Chamber of Commerce and others had protested that it placed the city at a disadvantage in getting needed public improvements done.

The present bill would require stipulation of the 8-hour-day and prevailing wage in all contracts. Fines of $50 to $500 are provided for violation.

Such an ordinance has been advocated by labor unions ever since the former one was repealed. Labor men have complained that bond issue funds were used to employ non-union workmen from other cities, who worked more than eight hours a day and were paid less than the prevailing wage. That complaint was made a year ago when the Compton Heights reservoir was covered with concrete.

BRIEF ASKS FOR REVISION OF EAST-WEST RAIL RATES

St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and East Side Association Unite in Appeal to I. C. C.

The Traffic Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and the East Side Manufacturers' Association have joined in a brief filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission requesting restoration of freight rates between eastern and western points to a schedule approximating that in effect before changes were made two years ago.

The through rates put into effect by the Commission in 1931 were considerably less than the combination rates from Mississippi River points. It is stated in the brief that these rates are unfairly preferential as to shipments of eastern manufacturers into western territory, to the disadvantage of industries west of the Mississippi. By the 1931 decision rates within what is known as the Western Trunk Line territory, including Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and the eastern parts of Colorado and Wyoming, were increased.

The railroads have asked for restoration of the former rates between eastern and western points, but are seeking an increase applying to points beyond the 500-mile limit in Western Trunk Line territory. This increase is opposed by the Traffic Bureau and the East Side Manufacturers' Association.

Missouri to Observe Flag Day.

The Masonic Service Association, consisting of Masonic Lodges in St. Louis and St. Louis County, will celebrate flag day at 8 o'clock next Wednesday evening at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3627 Lindell boulevard. Jesse W. Barrett will be master of ceremonies and the program will include an address by Thad B. Landon, grand master of Masons of Missouri and a former Kansas City Circuit Judge. The public is invited.

CLOSED BANK SUED BY LAWYER FOR FEE

L. L. Sparling Submits Audit Stating an Officer Misapplied $21,166.

Lowell L. Sparling, an attorney, yesterday filed an amended petition in his suit against the West St. Louis Trust Co., now in liquidation, and submitted the audit of a certified accountant in which it is stated that an officer of the bank misapplied $21,166.

Sparling seeks to collect a fee of $3016 he claims is due him for advising directors of the bank, after consultation, to seek compensation for the loss from the bonding company. He agreed, he said, to accept a retainer fee and 10 per cent of the amount recovered.

Without his consent, Sparling alleges, the bank failed to prosecute the claim although he advised directors they were protected by a blanket bond. It is set forth in the audit that the official, not connected with the bank when it closed last January, misappropriated funds from the undivided profits of the bank and applied them as interest and principal payments on a note held by the bank.

CONGRESS REPORT URGES REPLACING OF AIRSHIP AKRON

Joint Committee Recommends That Navy Continue Development of Lighter-Than-Air Craft.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The joint congressional committee which investigated the loss of the Akron off Barnet Light early in April, today recommended in its report the replacement of the Akron and full development of all fields of lighter-than-air usages in the Navy.

The report was made public about the time the Navy ordered Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley, only surviving officer of the Akron, to sea duty. He will report June 25 to the Cincinnati, light cruiser of the battle force in the Pacific, to serve as navigator.

Since the Akron disaster, Wiley has spent his time testifying before investigating boards and congressional committees, later reporting to the inspection board of the Akron's new sister ship, the Macon. He now is with the board at Akron, O.

The shift to sea duty became known shortly after the Navy practice of shifting men experienced in lighter-than-air duty to ships was criticised before the joint congressional committee which studied the Akron disaster. Among those who criticised this practice was Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The Navy said Wiley's assignment was in course of routine orders. It was understood Wiley was not dissatisfied.

Minority Opinion Expected.

Lighter-than-air development, pertaining to the Navy's military operations, was given a clean bill of health by the eight of the congressional committee signing the report. Senators King (Dem.), Utah, chairman, and Johnson (Rep.), Cal., did not sign, and King is expected to enter a minority opinion.

The report, prepared by Col. Henry Breckinridge, committee counsel, and concurred in by Representatives Harter (Dem.), Ohio, Delaney (Dem.), New York, Hope (Dem.), Kansas, McSwain (Dem.), South Carolina, and Andrew (Rep.), Massachusetts, and Senators Kean (Rep.), New Jersey, Walsh (Dem.), Massachusetts, and Duffy (Dem.), Wisconsin, set forth the following:

"1—The cause of the wreck of the Akron was the crash of the stern on the sea about 20 miles off Barnegat Light when a swift vertical descent caused by a vertical down current of air in the midst of a thunder and lightning storm. There may have been other contributing causes.

"2—Responsibility for the crash was the navigation of the ship into the storm conditions when she was destroyed.

"3—Rigid airships by past experience in the world war and by recent exercises of the fleet are found to have special actual utility in the scouting line of the fleet.

"Still in the development stage, there is further potential utility to be developed only by experience.

"The allocation of airships to the navy for development and operations is sound.

Airships' Continuance Urged.

"4—It is recommended that the navy continue in the maintenance, development, and operation of airships."

"5—It is recommended that the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., be the center of training and a center of experiment; that a most experienced airship commander be assigned to its command and that there be placed at his disposal experts in airship operation, aerology, radio and other fields of instruction and research, and that free balloons and non-rigid airships be provided for training.

"Administration of lighter-than-air b ythe navy should insure continuity of personnel and experience. Only fully trained officers of wide airship experience should be in command of airships. Command of a training ship should be a perequisite for command of a ship of the Macon type operating with the fleet.

"6—It is recommended that a training ship be promptly built and that a new airship should be provided to replace the Akron embodying such new developments as experience may show to be desirable.

"This is in accord with the principle of the five-year plan that contemplated the desirability of two airships operating with the fleet.

"In the meantime it is recommended that the Los Angeles be put back into commission for training and research.

"7—It is recommended that four general weather maps per diem be issued by the Weather Bureau instead of two, as at present."

Akron's "Hasty Preparations."

Representative Delaney, chairman of the sub-committee on aeronautics of the House naval committee and vice chairman of the investigating committee, in a corollary statement criticised sharply what he termed the "hasty preparations" for the Akron's fatal trip and the order to take her out in view of "the uncertainty of weather conditions."

Veteran Judge Looks Back On 24 Years on Bench; How Times Have Changed

Louis Bernreuter Began Dealing With Horse Thieves and Fist Fights, Now Auto Stealers and Gang Killings—Criticises Court System, but Defends Juries and Says Lawyers, as Whole, Are Honester Than Most Men.

RETIRING FROM BENCH

JUDGE LOUIS BERNREUTER.

Looking back on 24 consecutive years as a judge of the Third Judicial Circuit of Illinois, Judge Louis Bernreuter of Nashville, defeated last week for the first time by his Democratic opponents, told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday what he deems to be the law's shortcomings and recalled strange quirks of human nature observed during his long tenure.

Judge Bernreuter, a familiar figure in Southern Illinois, where he has lived for most of his 70 years, feels that "unreasonable, out-of-date technicalities" obstruct the course of justice and add to the law's delay.

"Why, the Supreme Court reverses 7 out of 16 criminal cases," Judge Bernreuter observed, "mostly on technicalities. The lower courts should not be used as a rubber stamp. They should be given more discretion.

"About 200 Years Behind."

"The English courts have a man tried and sentenced before we get to first base. We copy after England, but we are about 200 years behind."

As an example of what he regards as a needless technicality, Judge Bernreuter, who was County Judge of Washington County for six years prior to becoming Circuit Judge, said that if a Circuit Judge instructs a jury it may observe the demeanor of a witness while testifying and throughout the trial the case would be thrown out on appeal because of the words "and throughout the trial."

"It is only common sense that the general courtroom activity of a witness or defendant should be noticed as well as while actually testifying," Judge Bernreuter said, "for such activity may have a direct bearing on the case."

Judge Bernreuter, who complained that "a Judge has to act according to rule instead of common sense," feels that our system of Government is not successful in centers of population "where it is too easy for criminals to gain political control."

System "Not Prompt Enough."

The chief trouble with our system, he finds, is that it is not prompt enough, permitting "too many guilty men to go free." A hampering technicality, he said, is permitting the peremptory challenge of 20 jurors. This number should be reduced, he added, recalling that in one trial over which he presided, where 11 defendants were arraigned, some 1400 jurors were examined before the panel was agreed upon.

Once Judge Bernreuter tried horse thieves. In recent years he has conducted many automobile theft cases. And when he first covered his seven-county circuit, traveling by train or horse and buggy, he handled many boundary line cases, involving bitter rural feuds "when the land itself wasn't worth 25 cents." Now the boundaries have long since been definitely fixed.

"Personal violence cases are vanishing," the Judge remarked, "and when one does turn up it's more apt to involve a machine gun than a fist fight."

Legislative changes have affected the dockets, Judge Bernreuter observed, pointing out that 20 years ago, before workmen's compensation laws were enacted, his court was crowded with personal injury cases. But they have been supplanted, he added, by automobile collision suits—to such an extent they represent three-fourths of the civil cases tried by juries.

Defends Juries and Lawyers.

Judge Bernreuter does not agree with those who feel that the jury system is a failure. And he has a deep respect for the integrity of lawyers as a body.

"If you think juries are dumb," he remarked, "just try to sell them something for more than it is worth. And the cases they try involve happenings out of their everyday environment. They understand the motives of persons from different walks of life possibly better than the man on the bench.

"Yes, the average jury is competent. It may be too tender-hearted but it's apt to be just. I'd rather have a jury than one judge. After all, a judge is one man, subject to the traits of human nature.

"Lawyers are libeled a lot, but lawyers do less lying than men in other lines. A few corrupt ones hurt the reputation of all. It's the lawyers who handle most of the property and estate matters in this country."

Advice to Young Lawyers.

Judge Bernreuter, who studied law in the office of the late Circuit Judge Charles T. Moore, said he would advise young lawyers to work for nothing, if necessary, in a reputabel law office "to learn to do things."

"Work hard," he advised, "do $100 worth of work on a $10 case. It takes a lawyer 10 years not to be afraid of his opponent, and it takes 15 years before he can scare the other fellow."

Experience has taught Judge Bernreuter that the biggest liars may look and act like honest men, although if they testify long enough "they make little mistakes that eventually trip them up."

"But the smartest cross-examiner in the country can't break down a 7-year-old child," Judge Bernreuter observed, "because children invariably tell the truth. They stick to a simple story."

Long ago, the Judge learned that the man who looks him in the eye and says, "Judge, you are sentencing an innocent man," may have a long criminal record, but it is still hard for him to rule against a lawyer against whom he has given several consecutive rulings

"It's human nature for that man to think the Judge has it in for him," he said, "no matter how faulty his presentation may be."

The Judge and Politics.

Conducting his campaigns almost alone, appealing directly to his constituents, many of them farmers, a welcome guest at hundreds of church festivals, Judge Bernreuter yet regards the present judicial convention in Illinois "a dismal failure."

"It's a pity that politics enters into the courtroom," he said, "and it seems to me that judicial candidates should be selected by the bar, in secret ballot. Let the qualified lawyers of the circuit directly nominate the Judges.

Judge Bernreuter, who pointed out in his campaign that it would be economy to re-elect him since he now is entitled to a $4000 yearly pension if retired, announced he would open offices at Belleville this summer for the general practice of law.

"I'm not going to rust out," he said, "but I'm going to keep right on working. I wouldn't be surprised if I lived to be 100. I exercise my body and mind. In the winter I chop wood. In summer I tend my garden. I find that reading widely, particularly economics, helps me to keep up with the times. Nights, out on the circuit, I go to the libraries. You know, a Judge ought to know a little about everything. The Judge who knows nothing but law isn't fit for his place."

SENATE CONDEMNS GERMAN ATTITUDE TOWARD JEWS

View Expressed, However, That Persecution Is Not Fault of the People at Large.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Republicans and Democrats joined in the Senate today in condemning anti-Semitism in Germany and predicting that nation would suffer from its official attitude toward the minority race.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, expressed hope that world opinion would force relaxation "of the iron grip of racial hatred," and said "such cruel policies will bring their own penalties."

Senator Metcalf of Rhode Island voiced similar views from the Republican side of the chamber and said "the United States should view the situation with grave concern and raise its voice in protest."

Congratulating Robinson for his statement, Senator Copeland (Dem.) New York, added he did not believe "the excesses are the fault of the German people at large."

Metcalf said the persecution was "a disquieting feature in the peace of the world" and "a violation of the doctrine of religious freedom which America has sought to perpetnate."

ENDS 420-MILE TRIP IN COLLAPSIBLE BOAT

V. J. Azbe Arrives Here From Kansas City After 8 Days in Rubber Craft.

Victor J. Azbe, mechanical engineer of Webster Groves, who spends his spare time paddling on the river in a collapsible rubber boat, yesterday afternoon completed a 420-mile trip down the Missouri River from Kansar City.

He paddled down the Mississippi from Hannibal—135 miles—last December, and finding the sport to his liking rigged his small craft with sails and completed preparations for the longer Kansas City trip.

He flew to Kansas City last week, carrying his adaptable craft with him, sails and all, in two compact bundles. Weather conditions being favorable for the enterprise last Friday he pushed out on the river and spent the next eight days riding the current and the winds. At night he camped on the river bank.

Says It's Great Sport.

He pulled up on the levee at the foot of Pine street at 3:35 p. m. yesterday, a broad smile on his sun-blistered face.

"Whose got a bottle of beer?" he called to spectators who gathered to greet him on landing. "It was hot, but it was great sport," he told them. "There's no river sport like it. But it gets kind of tough when the wind changes and you have to paddle against it.

"My best time was Thursday, I made 85 miles in one day with a strong wind with me. One calm day I was held in to 44 miles. Sure I'm going to do it again when I get the time. A long trip next time that will be a real adventure, maybe up in Canada."

Boat 17 Feet Long.

Azbe, 40 years old, lives at 347 Hillside drive. His boat of German manufacture, is 17 feet long, built somewhat like an Eskimo's kayak. It has a rudder, and he carries for safety not only life preservers but a puncture repair outfit in case the rubber shell is damaged.

A few minutes after his arrival at the levee, Azbe was "breaking down" the boat, and, the job completed in short time, was on his way home with half of it under each arm.

ARKANSAS GOVERNOR OFFERS NEW BOND REFUNDING PLAN

Says It Will Involve No Reduction if Maturities Are Spread Out Sufficiently.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 10.—An offer to negotiate a new highway bond refunding agreement with no reduction in principal or interest if maturities were spread out sufficiently, was held out to bondholders by Gov. Futrell today.

Coupled with it was a warning that if a bondholders committee formed in New York to resist the present refunding program on the ground it is "repudiation," attempts to "coerce Arkansas," it would be "the worst thing that could happen to the holders of these bonds."

Writing to Charles S. McCain of the Chase National Bank of New York, designated as depository by the bondholders committee, Gov. Futrell said:

"While I would not approve any bill that would repudiate any of Arkansas' obligations, only a majority vote of the legislature is required to pass any bill over the veto of the Governor."

The Refunding Act of 1933 provides refunding of all Arkansas highway and toll bridge obligations totaling approximately $146,000,000 through issuance of new 25-year State bonds bearing 3 per cent interest. Most of these bonds are held in the East St. Louis, and Kansas City, with approximately $1,000,000 worth held in Nevada.

ST. LOUIS WINS FIGHT AGAINST CLOSING OF CUSTOMS PORT

U. S. Officials Decide to Keep Office Open and Find Other Means of Economy.

The St. Louis Customs port will be kept open by the Government, according to a telegram received by the Chamber of Commerce from Washington yesterday.

The Foreign Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce has been active in presenting facts to the Government about the local port. At a meeting of importers last Monday, two representatives, Otto W. Hammer and J. E. Russell, were chosen to go to Washington in the interest of keeping the port open.

The bureau pointed out to the Treasury Department that the port was more than self-supporting and that local importers would be seriously hampered if forced to clear shipments elsewhere. The telegram from Washington, sent by M. M. Drake, director of the Chamber's research bureau, said Treasury officials had decided on other methods of economy instead of closing the port.

DR. MAX O. GOLDSTEIN GETS MEDAL FOR MEDICAL WORK

CHICAGO, June 10.—The distinguished service medal of the American Laryngological, Rhinological and Otological Society was awarded last night to Dr. Max O. Goldstein of St. Louis, head of Central Institute for the Deaf.

The award, for outstanding work in the study and rehabilitation of the deaf child, also recognized his recently published book, "Problems of the Deaf."

HELD WITH FUGITIVE

LOIS HAMM.

SAYS SHE QUIT JOB TO JOIN DE LA CASA

Girls Tells Denver Police St. Louis Fugitive "Loved Like Movie Star."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, June 10.—Lois Hamm, slender and dark-eyed, who says her home is in Alabama, and who lately lived in Kansas City, is under arrest here with Jack de la Casa, or Dale, or Drake, identified as the leader in the escape of six prisoners from the criminal insane division of the St. Louis City Sanitarium, May 21.

The young woman says she quit her job in Kansas City in the expectation of going to California with Drake—the name by which he was known to her.

"He could make love like a movie star," she said, "and he promised that we would be married in Denver. I am tired of working for my living, so I went along with him." The police have no definite charge against Miss Hamm, and probably will release her soon.

"I made a sad mistake," the girl said. "I'm through with him, and with all men."

De la Casa is held for investigation of a series of downtown robberies. He has admitted his escape from the St. Louis institution, and has admitted that he took an attendant's automobile in escaping. He said he killed two men recently in a St. Louis store hold-up, and that he shot them, without previous intention to do so, when they resisted him. St. Louis police have said, in reply to inquiries from the Denver police, that no such killings occurred in St. Louis recently. De la Casa has been convicted of robbery in St. Louis, and is a former convict. He is a former wrestler, and wrenched two steel bars from a window and overpowered two attendants in escaping from the sanitarium.

MOTHER OF SLAIN WIFE DIES

Mrs. Anna Oughton, 78 years old, Belleville, mother of Mrs. Charlotte Knecht who was shot to death by her husband May 28, died of infirmities yesterday. Members of her family expressed the opinion that her death was hastened by the shock of her daughter's murder.

The daughter was killed on the Mescalero Apache Indian Reservation in New Mexico by her husband, Dr. L. B. Knecht, a former St. Louisan who then killed himself. Mrs. Oughton is survived by two sons and three daughters. She will be buried Tuesday in Walnut Hill Cemetery, Belleville, beside the graves of the daughter and son-in-law.

WINCHELL SMITH, PLAYWRIGHT, DIES

Dramatizer of 'Brewster's Millions' and Collaborator on 'Lightnin' ' and Other Pieces.

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 10.—Winchell Smith, playwright and producer, connected with the stage since the early nineties, died today at Mill Stream, his Farmington home. He was 62 years old.

Smith had been in failing health for some time, and to friends his death was not unexpected. When he returned from Europe recently he was ill from what was described as a complication of diseases.

His first big success was a dramatization of the novel, "Brewster's Millions," and he later scored with "The Fortune Hunter." Perhaps he is best remembered for the success of 'Lightnin'," on which he collaborated with the late Frank Bacon, who suddenly became famous as the star of that play. He also collaborated, with John E. Hazzard, on "Turn to the Right"; with Augustin McCue on "Officer 666"; with George Abbott on "The Holy Terror"; and with Victor Mapes on the book of the Victor Herbert operetta, "The New Henrietta."

Smith first appeared on Broadway as an obscure player in "Prodigal Daughter' in 1893. He went to London in the company of "Secret Service."

His widow, Mrs. Grace Spencer Smith, who worked with him on many of his plays, died Oct. 20, 1932. They had no children.

TWO SPANIARDS FLYING TO CUBA FROM SEVILLE

Pilots Unreported on Atlantic Trip but Few Steamers Are on Route.

By the Associated Press.

SEVILLE, Spain, June 10.—Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar apparently were well over the Atlantic tonight on their flight from Seville to Cuba.

The Spanish airmen, wearing white overalls and white coats, took off from Tablada airdrome early this morning after receiving reports that they would encounter excellent flying weather.

They were escorted to the coast by several airplanes. Tonight no reports had been received from them, but this occasioned no anxiety as their route did not lie over heavily-traveled sea lanes.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, June 10.—Two Spanish army aviators attempting the mid-Atlantic crossing from Seville, Spain, to Havana are expected to land at Camp Columbia, the army airport here, between 4 and 6 p. m. (Eastern standard time) tomorrow, the general staff announced today.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10. — A victim of his own experiments in the use of X-days, Col. Eugene G. Northington, 53 years old, of the Ninth Army Corps Area, died today of infection from X-ray burns.

He had been a patient at a hospital for nine months, while surgeons operated 164 times in an effort to save his life, army officials said.

BOND MARKET RULES IRREGULARLY LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Profit taking in semi-speculative issues brought an irregularly lower drift to the bond market today, although the trading volume dwindled noticeably on the moderate decline. Sales totaled only $7,649,000, par value, against $10,697,000 last Saturday, while the average for 60 domestic corporate loans eased one-tenth of a point.

The market for Government, municipal and state bonds was somewhat disorganized as the result of the Senate's action in voting to cancel tax-exempt privileges. United States listed securities, however, were only fractionally lower as uncertainty developed as to the ultimate enactment of this tax-exempt amendment to the indusrial conrol bill.

Losses of 2 to around 4 points were again suffered by bonds of International Telephone and Postal Telegraph, which recently rose smartly, while issues off about 1 to 3 included some of Alleghany Corporation, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Erie, Illinois Central, International Paper, Fisk Rubber, McCrory Stores, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, North American and Frisco. Among gainers of 1 to 3, however, were bonds of American & Foreign power, Rock Island, Colon Oil, Denver & Rio Grande, Michigan Central, St. Joseph Lead and Union Pacific.

German loans rallied moderately after their slump resulting from the declaration of a transfer moratorium by the Reichsbank. Other foreign issues were quiet and slightly irregular.

CITY WATER PLANT BIG SUCCESS, SAYS DIRECTOR WALL

Head of Utilities Department Asserts System Is More Than Self-Sustaining From Bookkeeping Standpoint.

The St. Louis water plant is a highly successful example of profitable municipal ownership, Director of Utilities Wall said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday in discussing the views of Water Commissioner Daily and Deputy Comptroller Gunn, the first that the plant is operating at a loss, and the latter that it is profitable.

Wall said that from a strict bookkeeping standpoint there was no doubt the water plant is more than self-sustaining; he thought, however, that Daily was justified in pointing out, as he did last week to an aldermanic committee, that the surplus has been diminished somewhat in the last four years. It was this diminution of surplus due to retirement of bonds and other capital payments out of revenue, which caused Daily to say the plant had incurred "losses."

The statements of both Daily and Gunn could be justified, depending on the point of view, Wall said.

If the water system were a private business it would be regarded as a wonderful investment, Wall said; the debt of $9,732,000 is very small in comparison with the plant's total value of approximately $50,000,000.

He thought Daily did not intend to question that the plant has been profitable, but was looking at it from the standpoint of an engineer, having in mind extensions that may be necessary in the next few years. He mentioned the probable need for another pipe line from the Howard Bend station which might cost $2,000,000. Daily wished the department to be ready to pay such improvement and, therefore, opposed such measures as that before the Board of Aldermen to refund rates on account of apartment vacancies, which would reduce revenues and perhaps further deplete the surplus.

Wall said he had discussed the question with Mayor Dickmann and that the Mayor agreed with him that the plant is successful and profitable. The facts about the water department's finances were told in last Thursday's Post-Dispatch, following Daily's statement that annual "losses" were being incurred. At that time Deputy Comptroller Gunn stated the records showed the plant is profitable, despite the fact that in some years expenditures from revenue for capital improvements have made it necessary to draw upon surplus.

TO PRESENT CITY'S BUILDING PROGRAM TO U. S. OFFICIALS

Mayor and Aids to Take $8,000,000 Public Works Plan to Washington.

Mayor Dickmann and city officials plan to be in Washington Tuesday to present to officials there an $8,000,000 program of public works which, the Mayor said, could be started in St. Louis within 30 days if funds were available.

The industry control bill, passed by both houses of Congress, provides $3,300,000,000 of Federal funds for public works.

Telegrams telling of the intended visit to Washington were sent to Senator Clark, Congressman Cochran and to L. W. Robert Jr., Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of public works.

With the Mayor will be Baxter L. Brown, president of the Board of Public Service; Frank J. McDevitt, director of Streets and Sewers, and Roy C. Gans, chief engineer under McDevitt. Dickmann said McDevitt was engaged in working out details of the program and these cannot be announced until tomorrow.

Profit Taking Flurries Tend to Reduce Somewhat Recent Sharp Daily Average Gains in Securities—Dollar Is Weak.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 10.—An assortment of influences, both domestic and foreign, spurred most financial markets to further forward strides this week.

While share trading moved at an unusually fast pace in the early part of the week, there was a slowing down later as operators for the advance began to display a more cautious attitude. Profit-taking flurries tended to reduce somewhat the recent sharp daily average gains. Stock transactions for the week, however, totaled 35,900,455 shares and the Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 90 representative issues advanced 5.1 points to 83.3, another new high since November, 1931.

Bonds ran into some difficulties and finished the week about where they started. Some rail and utility loans were under considerable pressure, at various times, due apparently to special circumstances, and German obligations slumped following the Reichsbank's announcement of a moratorium on foreign debt payments. United States Government securities, despite further purchases by the Federal Reserve System, were dull and barely steady.

Rise in Commodities.

Most commodities not only reflected the improvement of business and industry generally, but speculative activity was increased in the grains by weather conditions and the Government's report of a short winter wheat crop. Wheat spurted 4 to 4½ cents a bushel, corn was up 1½ to 2⅝ cents a bushel and cotton registered a conservative advance of $1.20 to $1.25 a bale. Bar silver followed a substantial advance in the British pound sterling by moving up 1⅛ cents an ounce to 36⅝ cents an ounce.

Weakness of the American dollar in foreign exchange markets was undoubtedly an important factor in price fluctuations. Strength of European gold currencies, most of which attained their highest levels for the past year or more, caused United States funds to drop to a discount of around 20 per cent. The British pound sterling, up 13½ cents to a cable rate of $4.14½, was at its top rate since Great Britain went off the gold standard in 1931.

Just how much a revival of inflationary sentiment, or the continued betterment of trade and corporation earnings, affected market quotations was a matter of debate. Indications of improvement in all lines of business were apparent.

Commodities Lead at Week End.

Markets were most vigorous in the commodity departments today, though stocks came through ripples of weekend profit-taking with a small average net advance.

Wheat was a sturdy mover, reflecting prospects that the country would have to draw on accumulations from other years as a result of the indicated short crop. Oats were better than corn; cotton was helped by expectations of acreage curtailment. In lesser markets, silver and hides strengthened.

Wall street got a big surprise in overnight news that the Senate had approved removal of the tax exemption privileges of Government and municipal bonds. Liberties and treasuries eased, but volume was light; in the municipal loan market trading was at a standstill as buyers and sellers wondered whether the decision would stand. The financial community went home without information on this point, though financial news ticker advices from Washington reported that the amendment was not likely to survive conference.

On the stock exchange, utility shares made the best group showing, their composite going well into new high ground. Consolidate Gas, Stone & Webster, North American Water Works, Electric Power & Light, Standard Gas, American Water Works and others firmed 1 to more than 2. American Telephone, after touching the new top of 124½, lost its gain.

Rails, to which some sections of Wall street are looking for leadership during the market's next phase, reacted moderately notwithstanding cheerful freight loading statistics.

Traffic last week, it seems, was 13.5 per cent above a year ago, the best percentage gain since 1929; because of Memorial Day's intervention the total was under the previous week.

The Steel Industry.

Affairs of the steel industry assumed a prominent place in the day's business news, but the 100 per cent boost in National Steel's dividend rate—from 12½ cents to 25 cents—as well as an upturn of 65,241 tons in U. S. Steel's May 31 backlog had undoubtedly been discounted. Several leading industrials, finished slightly off, while Case, du Pont, the Armour issues and Allied Chemical lost more substantially. Western Union and Postal preferred were still soggy. Timken, Union Bag & Paper, General Railway Signal, Motor Products, Harbison Walker and International Business Machines added around 1 to 5 points. Volume dropped to 2,786,440 shares.

Foreign exchanges advanced, sterling reaching a new post-gold standard high above $4.14, though weekend dealings were light as usual. Britain's decision on next Thursday's debt payment appeared, during market hours, to be a closely kept secret, although some banking quarters would be surprised if the outcome is a default.

UNFILLED U. S. STEEL ORDERS INCREASE 65,241 TONS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The United States Steel Corporation today reported an increase of 65,241 tons in unfilled orders in May.

Always regarded as one of the most trustworthy of business indices, the tonnage figures have graphically portrayed the course of the depression by their steady fall since early in 1930.

The gain last month was the first of substantial proportions since the spring of 1930. In April the backlog rose 23,572 tons, which marked a turn from a steady decline since last October.

Only two gains in tonnage last year—in September and October, and both of negligible amount—punctuated a dreary record of tonnage losses extending over nearly two years. The unimportant autumn upturn last year was followed by further losses until the backlog was carried to a record low of 1,841,002 tons on March 31. The figure has remained consistently below the 2,000,000 ton mark since June, 1932. On May 31, last it was 1,929,815.

Wall Street was particularly pleased with the extent of the May improvement whichc was in spite of only minor contributions by the railroad and building industries, normally two of the largest consumers of steel.

CAR LOADINGS OFF 33,075 FOR WEEK; 60,822 OVER 1932

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The American Railway Association announced today that loadings of revenue freight for the week ended June 3 were 568,234 cars, a decrease of 33,675 below the preceding week but an increase of 60,822 over the same week in 1932.

Comparisons showed that all commodities for the week ended June 3 registered increases over the corresponding week last year, which is the real basis of comparison, with the exception of merchandise less than carlot freight.

Miscellaneous freight loaded was 196,382 cars, a decrease of 11,009 under the preceding week, but 26,196 over 1932; less than carlot freight, 147,992, decrease 18,412 and 6818; grain and grain products, 34,204, decrease 135, but 10,899 above last year; forest products, 22,783, increase 174 and 6364; ore 8517, decrease 1582 below the week before but an increase of 6332 over 1932; coal 78,632, decrease, 2283 over the preceding week but 15,536 over 1932; coke, 4591, increase 454 and 1580, and livestock, 15,133, decrease 252 below the preceding week but an increase of 733 over last year.

FURTHER WEAKNESS SHOWN BY DOLLAR IN EXCHANGE MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Further weakness of the American dollar was the feature of foreign exchange markets today, although transactions generally were reported small.

The British pound sterling, up 2¾ cents to a cable rate of $4.14½, was at another new high since Great Britain suspended the gold standard in 1931. German marks made a new top for the year at 28¾ cents, as did Japanese yen, up ½ cent to 26 cents. Italian lire, up .04¼ of a cent to 6.37¾ cents, and Shanghai dollars, up ½ cent to 26¾ cents. Canadian dollars equaled their year's peak at 90¾ cents with an advance of ¼ of a cent.

French francs advanced .02 of a cent to 4.81½ cents, Swiss francs gained .15 of a cent at 23.65 cents and Belgian belgas were up .07 of a cent at 17.07 cents. The Scandinavians were firm.

SMALL NET GAINS IN COTTON AFTER GOOD EARLY UPTURN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Cotton was firm today but the market failed to hold an early advance in its entirety. There was an early advance of about 17 to 18 points on overnight reports from Washington concerning appropriation for the Secretary of Agriculture under the provisions of the agricultural adjustment act. This was followed by reactions under realizing and hedge selling.

October contracts after advancing to 9.60, or 18 points net higher and 45 points above the low level of Friday morning, declined to 9.47 and closed at 9.49. The general market closed barely steady at a net advance of five to nine points. Spot quiet, mids 9.35.

The opening was firm at an advance of 13 to 17 points, with active months soon showing net gains of 17 to 18 points on a general demand promoted by the more optimistic view of prospects for curtailment of this year's crop.

July sold off from 9.34 to 9.22 and December from 9.76 to 9.63, making reactions of about 11 to 13 points from the best and closing quotations were within two or three points from the lowest.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, June 10.—Wheat futures reached new highs for 1932-33 period today, July going to 76¾ and September 78⅝. July corn was nominally 46. Besides the latest Government forecast as to wheat, there was the comment on dry weather in winter wheat belt.

The Government report, issued after the close yesterday, indicated American production was below domestic needs for the first time this century, production of 603,000,000 bushels being forecast. The Nation uses upwards of 620,000,000 bushels annually, exclusive of exports. Winter wheat production, as of June 1, was forecast at 341,000,000 bushels, compared with average annual production of 589,000,000 bushels from 1926 to 1930. The spring wheat crop was described as "below normal."

WHEAT REACHES 81 CENTS ON CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Swift soaring of prices took wheat and oats today to above any peaks which future deliveries have heretofore reached since May, 1930.

A big renewal of public speculative buying followed the latest Government report on winter wheat and report today of spring wheat now facing its critical period and showing a condition below a 10-year average.

Despite huge selling to take profits, wheat closed strong at virtually the day's top point, 1⅞@1¾c above yesterday's finish, oats 1@1⅞c up, corn ⅛@½c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7c.

There was said to be only scant hopes of immediate relief from restrictive high temperatures and absence of moisture for wheat and oats crops in eastern sections of the grain belt. Meanwhile, hot winds and dry weather in the Southwest were stressed.

Among today's most conspicuous buyers of wheat was a leading Chicago speculator and a prominent Eastern trader.

All the grain markets today were broad affairs. The corn market sympathized with price jumps of other grains, but was retarded by word that field work over the corn belt was being rushed day and night. Large receipts of corn here were also a drag on corn values.

All grain markets were big, broad affairs, with general public trading much larger than of late. There were advices of wheat firing today in Illinois and the Ohio Valley. These areas have heretofore been regarded as in the best condition of any in the country. An official crop report issued late yesterday, indicated that the winter wheat crop would be the smallest since 1904, only 341,000,000 bushels.

Active dealings and rapid fluctuations characterized wheat trade. At times the change of values amounted to a cent a bushel in a few minutes. Despite heavy profit-taking sales, the market soon mounted higher than at the opening, with December contracts in the lead and reaching 81 cents. Helping the upward sweep of wheat was a rise in oats, carrying all deliveries of that grain, as well as of wheat, to above any quotations heretofore this season.

UTILITIES FEATURE OF SESSION ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Strength in utility shares featured the curb market today. The general list was somewhat irregular due to week-end profit taking, but strength in the power group was sufficient to give the market a firm appearance at the close.

A few isolated weak spots included Deere and Swift & Co., which dropped around a point each. Aluminum Co. advanced two, while Singer Sewing Machine rose 6½ points on a small turnover.

Electric Bond & Share was conspicuously strong, rising nearly two points to close at its best quotation. American Gas & Electric and Niagara Hudson Power added a point each. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore soared nearly seven points in moderate trading, while Standard Power & Light preferred was up nine points.

Oils were mostly narrow and steady excepting Humble, which advanced three. Among the mining issues Bunker Hill and Sullivan rose more than three on a small transfer.

Transfers approximated 737,000 shares compared to 840,000 last Saturday.

WHEAT FUTURES AT 1932-33 HIGHS ON LOCAL BOARD

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, June 10.—Wheat futures reached new highs for 1932-33 period today, July going to 76¾ and September 78⅝. July corn was nominally 46. Besides the latest Government forecast as to wheat, there was the comment on dry weather in winter wheat belt.

The Government report, issued after the close yesterday, indicated American production was below domestic needs for the first time this century, production of 603,000,000 bushels being forecast. The Nation uses upwards of 620,000,000 bushels annually, exclusive of exports. Winter wheat production, as of June 1, was forecast at 341,000,000 bushels, compared with average annual production of 589,000,000 bushels from 1926 to 1930. The spring wheat crop was described as "below normal."

Winnipeg wheat closed ¼@⅜c net higher.

Liverpool closed ⅝d higher.

July wheat opened at 76¼c, up ¾c, and Sept. wheat, 78¼c, up 1⅛c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 51,000 bushels compared with 66,000 a week ago and 96,600 a year ago, included 21 cars local and 13 through. Corn receipts, which were 83,500 bushels compared with 111,000 a week ago and 19,600 a year ago, included 42 cars local and 17 through. Oats receipts. which were 12,000 bushels compared with 30,000 a week ago and 19,800 a year ago, included 3 cars local and 3 through. Hay receipts were 1 car local.

WHEAT REACHES 81 CENTS ON CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Swift soaring of prices took wheat and oats today to above any peaks which future deliveries have heretofore reached since May, 1930.

A big renewal of public speculative buying followed the latest Government report on winter wheat and report today of spring wheat now facing its critical period and showing a condition below a 10-year average.

Despite huge selling to take profits, wheat closed strong at virtually the day's top point, 1⅜@1¾c above yesterday's finish, oats 1@1⅞c up, corn ⅛@½c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7c.

There was said to be only scant hopes of immediate relief from restructive high temperatures and absence of moisture for wheat and oats crops in eastern sections of the grain belt. Meanwhile, hot winds and dry weather in the Southwest were stressed.

Among today's most conspicuous buyers of wheat was a leading Chicago speculator and a prominent Eastern trader.

All the grain markets today were broad affairs. The corn market sympathized with price jumps of other grains, but was retarded by word that field work over the corn belt was being rushed day and night. Large receipts of corn here were also a drag on corn values.

All grain markets were big, broad affairs, with general public trading much larger than of late. There were advices of wheat firing today in Illinois and the Ohio Valley. These areas have heretofore been regarded as in the best condition of any in the country. An official crop report issued late yesterday, indicated that the winter wheat crop would be the smallest since 1904, only 341,000,000 bushels.

Active dealings and rapid fluctuations characterized wheat trade. At times the change of values amounted to a cent a bushel in a few minutes. Despite heavy profit-taking sales, the market soon mounted higher than at the opening, with December contracts in the lead and reaching 81 cents. Helping the upward sweep of wheat was a rise in oats, carrying all deliveries of that grain, as well as of wheat, to above any quotations heretofore this season.

UTILITIES FEATURE OF SESSION ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Strength in utility shares featured the curb market today. The general list was somewhat irregular due to week-end profit taking, but strength in the power group was sufficient to give the market a firm appearance at the close.

A few isolated weak spots included Deere and Swift & Co., which dropped around a point each. Aluminum Co. advanced two, while Singer Sewing Machine rose 6½ points on a small turnover.

Electric Bond & Share was conspicuously strong, rising nearly two points to close at its best quotation. American Gas & Electric and Niagara Hudson Power added a point each. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore soared nearly seven points in moderate trading, while Standard Power & Light preferred was up nine points.

Oils were mostly narrow and steady excepting Humble, which advanced three. Among the mining issues Bunker Hill and Sullivan rose more than three on a small transfer.

Transfers approximated 737,000 shares, compared to 840,000 last Saturday.

SENATOR NEELY ASSAILS MORGAN AS TAX-DODGER

Says Financier Has 'Shaken the Faith of Millions in the Justice of Existing Law.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—With reverberations from its investigation of J. P. Morgan & Co. still echoing, the Senate Banking Committee today turned to preparation for inquiries into other private bankers including Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and Dillon, Read & Co.

While Congress hurried action on legislative reforms growing out of the inquiry, Senator Neely (Dem.), West Virginia, told the Senate that "36 months of tax dodging" by J. P. Morgan had "shaken the faith of millions in the justice of existing law."

The West Virginia Senator said the sales of stock to selected Morgan clients was a "brazen attempt to bribe on a nation-wide scale."

The Investigating Committee met in executive session and decided to let a subcommittee determine whether the Kuhn, Loeb and Dillon, Read inquiries should be pursued at once or deferred until fall.

To Decide Tuesday on Plans.

The subcommittee, which has been nominally in charge of the investigation, will confer with Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, and map out its future plans Tuesday.

Pecora has informed the committee he is ready to proceed at once and it will be up to the Senators to decide whether they want to stay in Washington for hearings now or let them go over until fall.

In any event, Pecora is ready to keep his staff busy over the summer collecting additional evidence for presentation in the fall on investment trusts and stock market practices, and operations of the Chase National Bank.

As an outgrowth of the Morgan investigation, the Banking Committee voted not to bind its members to secrecy about transactions in executive session.

At virtually every executive session during the Morgan inquiry, members of the committee protested that "leaks" were disclosing everything it did behind closed doors.

A motion by Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, to remove the bar of secrecy was adopted unanimously. The Virginian has been one of the most strenuous objectors to the "leaks."

Neely, speaking in the Senate, said that as a result of its stocks sales to selected clients, "no matter which party wins an election, the House of Morgan wins."

"Only One of Breaches."

"Tax dodging is only one of Morgan's breaches of the ethical code that most men consider binding," the West Virginian said.

"The house of Morgan preferred many of its clients, and to these sold so-called securities at prices far below their market values. The lists of such clients reads like a page of 'Who's Who.'

"They included an ex-President, a close associate of another; Ambassadors to foreign countries, past and present; Cabinet officers, past, present and prospective, and outstanding figures of both political parties.

"They made it almost impossible for a President to appoint a Cabinet of which every member will be free of Morgan obligations and the influence of Morgan power.

"The naked truth is that so far as Morgan and his associates are concerned, the giving of millions of dollars in purchase rights is a brazen attempt to bribe on a nation-wide scale those most influential in the industrial, financial and political life of the nation."

Helps "Cause of Bolshevism."

Neely said that as a result of disclosures that the Morgan partners have paid only $48,000 in income taxes for the past three years, "fomenters of revolution should decorate J. P. Morgan for his contribution to the cause of Bolshevism."

He added that Morgan had done more to foment revolution "than a hundred soap box orators in a thousand years."

Morgan was characterized by the Senator as one of the world's wealthiest men and said the partners of his firm "have reaped more profits than whole counties of men in all the days of their lives."

"In recent years," he said, "the Treasury has obligingly accepted as correct the income tax returns submitted by Morgan and his partners. These pampered Government pets have not been annoyed by inquiring agents."

MRS. ALLENE LAMSON BURIED

Funeral Services Held at Lamar, Mo., for Alleged Murder Victim.

LAMAR, Mo., June 10.—A large crowd attended the funeral this afternoon for Mrs. Allene Thorpe Lamson, 28 years old, who was found dead in her home at Stanford University, Calif., Memorial Day, and whose husband, David A. Lamson, is charged with her murder.

The Rev. Cliff Titus of Joplin conducted the services, and neighbors and former schoolmates of Mrs. Lamson were pall bearers. Mrs. Lamson was dressed in her wedding gown and veil. A few hours after the arrival of the body from California late last night, an aunt of Mrs. Lamson, Mrs. Letty Warden, 74, a resident of Lamar for 60 years, died after a long illness.

JOHN G. STEINLAGE AND WIFE REPLY TO RECEIVERSHIP SUIT

Seek to Set Aside Sale of Stock Pledged for Loan.

A joint answer was filed in Circuit Judge Hamilton's court yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. John G. Steinlage in the receivership suit of the Quality Dairy Co., 4630 West Florissant avenue, of which Steinlage is president and his wife is a large stockholder. The suit, filed by Frank H. Boerger, treasurer of the company, seeks an accounting from the Steinlages.

The answer of the defendants, filed through Attorney William H. Corcoran Jr., denies any accounting is due from them, but on the contrary say they have been damaged by Boerger and Arnold F. Steinlage, vice-president, who is also named as co-defendant in the suit. The damages are put at $50,000, growing out of an alleged conspiracy to deprive them of their stock.

Steinlage and his wife also seek to set aside the forced sale of 700 shares of their stock in the company which they pledged to Boerger on notes totaling $40,000. It is alleged that although the notes were paid in full the stock, over the protest of the owners, was sold to Dwight Thomas for $15,000. The shares, it is alleged, were reasonably worth a total of $100,000. Boerger alleged in his suit that the sum of $32,000 was unpaid.

Pending termination of the case the court, in September, 1931, appointed temporary receivers, who have been operating the business. The receivers are Frank Boerger Sr. and Frank J. Schroeder.

Hurryoff, badly outrun for the first six furlongs, moved up fast around turn, came around field in stretch, closed gamely and won going away. Nimbus was well ridden. Workman timed his run to the dot but the colt tired suddenly. Union, never far from the pace, finished gamely. The Darb was ridden with poor judgment. He was taken into a pocket at far turn and was forced to go very wide. Sun Apollo plenty of speed for a mile then tired. Dark Winter had speed for a mile and a furlong.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 10.—With long, hungry strides fairly eating up the ground in a great stretch run, Joseph E. Widener's Hurryoff, a slim, bay son of Haste, today won the 65th running of the Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park and further scrambled the three-year-old championship situation.

Hurryoff was so lightly regarded by the crowd of 15,000 that he was quoted at 12 to 1 to win the richest three-year-old purse of the year, which grossed $64,490 and gave the winner $49,490.

For the first one and one-quarter miles he ran far back and seemingly was not even a serious contender. Then, like a shot out of a cannon, he answered the call of his veteran jockey, Mack Garner, as the field of nine swung into the stretch. Marshall Field's Nimbus was winging along in front, striving gallantly to stave off the challenge of M. L. Schwartz's Union.

Favorite Runs Fourth.

From fourth position, out in the middle of the track, the Widener colt made his bid. In a few quick strides he had collared the leaders and a few faster strides carried him out in front and he galloped across the finish line with two lengths to spare over Nimbus. Union trailed another four lengths back, just beating C. V. Whitney's The Darb, winner of the Withers mile and the favorite at 5 to 2.

Union might have offered more of an argument if his jockey, Silvio Coucci, had not been injured in the run for the judges' stand. Driving along on the rail, Union was carried in by Nimbus, with Sonny Workman up, and for one-sixteenth of a mile the left leg of the little "Bronx Express" scaped along the fence. Soon after the finish, Coucci fell from his horse, but after first aid treatment was able to ride in the next race.

Coucci lodged a claim of a foul against Workman, but through some misunderstanding, the stewards did not receive the claim and before Max Hirsch, trainer of Union, could offer any further argument, the official result had been posted. So the second place purse of $7500 went to Marshall Field, while Schwartz had to be content with third money of $3000.

Hurryoff's Third Victory.

Hurry Off, winner of only two previous races, one of them this year, ran the one and one-half miles in 2:32 3-5, a fifth of a second faster than Faireno's winning time last year, but nearly four seconds slower than Man O' War's track record.

W. S. Kilmer's Sun Apollo was the first away from the barrier after a delay of 10 minutes and for the first mile he set the pace with W. R. Coe's Pompoleon and Dark Winter, also from Kilmer's Barns, close behind. Hurry off, Nimbus and Union trailed far back.

Rounding the sweeping turn, leading into the home stretch, the three leaders weakened and in a rapid change of positions, Nimbus assumed command, Union went into second place and Hurryoff moved into fourth place. That is the way they were running when the field straightened out for the last mad dash down the stretch.

The Darb was the victim of an ill judged ride on the part of Alfred Robertson. The Withers winner was in a good position on the back stretch but Robertson attempted to go through on the rail and found Pompoleon barring his way. He then took his mount to the outside but the task of making up the added ground was too great and although The Darb finished strong he was no match for the winner.

Two Other Feature Events.

The Whitney family came in for a good share of the day's honors, however, as Mrs. Payne Whitney's Black Buddy, C. V. Whitney's Fogbound ran one, two, in the National Stallion Stakes and Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Green Cheese captured the Meadowbrook Steeplechase.

Wrestling Goes Outdoors.

NEW YORK, June 10.

WRESTLING will come out into the open here, tomorrow—but only in the sense that it will be taken outdoors. For the rest the game, as far as its true inwardness in concerned, is just as much a closed book as ever.

The "open," in New York's case, refers to the Yankee Stadium, where Joe Savoldi, who gained a Chicago referee's nod over Jimmy Londos, will cavort with Jim Browning, who now reigns as champion of the Jack Curley group.

What the menu calls for is known only to the High Priests of the game. But as Savoldi has been much more gorgeously tinted by publicity than Browning it is just a guess that the promoters won't let anything very serious happen to Giuseppi of Notre Dame.

Of what use to build up a champion, only to tear him down, before his contract has run out?

Putting on the Screws.

A SPORTING gentleman who keeps his ear to the ground, and frequently hears the hoofbeats of the coming cavalcade in advance, says that there is something coming up in wrestling that will add another stench bomb to the accumulating odors.

According to the grape vine, an Eastern wrestler who has been in the big money, sporting a title claim, has engaged a lawyer to bring suit to recover a piece of change, said to be fifteen grand, which he was forced to put up before a cerain series of matches, to guarantee that he would be strictly clubby in all his behavior.

It appears that he transgressed the "ethics" and that the fifteen

GOODMAN'S 287 WINS U. S. OPEN; GULDAHL IS RUNNER-UP WITH 288

Missed Tie for Title by Single Stroke

On No. 15, Guldahl missed a three-foot putt and failed to run down a four-footer on No. 18. Had either of these putts gone in, the St. Louis pro would have tied Goodman; had both, he would have been champion.

RALPH GULDAHL.

ST. LOUISAN GETS $1000; WINNER IS GIVEN MEDAL

By Alan J. Gould

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

GLENVIEW, Ill., June 10.—By the slim margin of a single stroke and a missed four-foot putt on the home green by his one close pursuer, Johnny Goodman, bronzed, dapper little insurance salesman, and 23-year-old amateur "giant killer," of Omaha, Neb., today climbed on top of the golfing world as the new open champion of the United States.

After a phenomenal outburst of shot-making skill that at one dazzling juncture this afternoon threatened to explode all existing open championship records to bits, Goodman survived a sudden and dangerous slump with just enough of his previously lop-sided margin to stave off the closing rush of Ralph Guldahl, sensational 21-year-old professional of the St. Louis Country Club.

Four Great Rounds.

Goodman finished the 72-hole championship struggle with rounds of 75-66-70-76, for a total of 287 that fell only one stroke short of the all-time championship record. Guldahl, six strokes behind at the outset of the last 36 holes and nine behind with only 15 to go, rallied superbly to take second place with 76-71-70-71—288.

Guldahl's dramatic closing challenge was the only thing that saved the tournament from being turned into a rout. He picked up seven strokes on six holes as he reached the last turn in 35. He needed another 35 to tie Goodman, but he missed a three-foot putt on the fifteenth to waste the first of his last big opportunities and he failed, finally, to get down a four-foot putt on the eighteenth green after a remarkable recovery from a trap.

It was a close call for the Nebraska "game cock," after he had all but shot the tournament to pieces by taking a six-stroke lead and then opened fire on the last round with a 4-3-2, including an eagle and a birdie. But he pulled himself together after a six-hole debacle to shoot the closing nine within a single stroke of par. He proved he was as game as they come, under pressure. He emerged with a big grin from a cordon of khaki-clad marines, after Guldahl's finish, to accept the championship cup and gold medal, while the top prize money of $1000 went to his youthful St. Louis rival.

Today's spectacular victory for Johnny Goodman brought to a climax the career of a struggling youth who set out, like a golfing David to take a few healthy wallops at the Goliaths of the game and finally succeeded, beyond the fondest hopes of his partisans, after five meteoric seasons.

Once Defeated Jones.

Four years ago, at Pebble Beach, officials debated whether Johnny's amateur standing was jeopardized by his part-time work in a sporting goods store, decided finally in his favor and then saw him flash to fame by beating Bob Jones in the first round of the national amateur championship. That same year he made his first start in the national open and finished with 318 at Winged Foot, while Jones slaughtered Al Espinosa in a play-off for the title.

Less than a year ago Goodman's record wasn't considered good enough to give him a place on the American Walker Cup team. That was before he finished as low amateur in the open, tied for fourteenth. Subsequently, he soundly whipped a good share of the Walker Cup stars, including Capt. Ouimet, and reached the finals of the national amateur, losing to Ross Somerville of Canada.

Weighing 30 pounds more and, by his own frank admission, hit-

Civic Welcome For Goodman on Return to Omaha

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., June 10.

A CIVIC welcome will greet Johnny Goodman, 23-year-old Omahan, when he returns home Wednesday from Glenview, Ill., where he captured the U. S. open golf championship today.

From Fair Acres to his former home in Prohibition Hill—opposite ends of the city and the social ladder—his townspeople tonight rejoiced in his feat.

A band, city and state officials, and thousands of his admirers will be on hand to join in the welcome. Lieutenant-Governor Jurgensen will deliver the address of congratulation.

The story of the motherless lad who overcome poverty and other obstacles to rise from caddy to golf king is known to everyone here.

Mrs. Kohn Wins District Golf Championship After Quest Covering 10 Years

By W. J. McGoogan.

Mrs. Rossmore J. Kohn, Norwood Hills Country Club, has successfully completed a 10-year quest for the women's golf championship of the St. Louis District. Mrs. Kohn won the title over her home course yesterday with a surprising victory over Mrs. Ignatius S. Hynes of Westborough, 1 up in 36 holes. And it was on the final green that Mrs. Kohn won. Mrs. Kohn overcame the medalist jinx in winning, for her 83 was low in the qualifying round Monday.

Starting out in the morning, Mrs. Kohn ran up a lead of 3 up over Mrs. Hynes on the first nine holes, but saw that lead fade and Mrs. Hynes go to lunch 2 up when the first 18 holes were completed.

Persons in the gallery remarked that it was all over but the final score. The little Norwood Hills blonde, however, stuck to her knitting and refused to concede defeat even when Mrs. Hynes held a 3 up lead after 28 holes.

Cutting Down the Lead.

Mrs. Kohn kept playing steadily along and when Mrs. Hynes suffered some of the misfortunes of golf, Mrs. Kohn stepped right in, clipped a hole off Mrs. Hynes' lead, then went on to square the match and go 1 up with only two holes left to play.

Going to the thirty-fifth hole, Mrs. Kohn hooked her tee shot into an unplayable lie in a trap while Mrs. Hynes was on the 200-yard green with her tee shot. Mrs. Kohn went back to the tee, shot another ball and found another trap and lost the hole to Mrs. Hynes' 3 and they stood on the final tee all square.

They both had good drives and good second shots, but Mrs. Hynes missed her third and failed to get on the green, while Mrs. Kohn was on the carpet, 10 feet to the left of the pin. Mrs. Hynes chipped 15 feet past and missed her try for a five, giving Mrs. Kohn two putts for the victory and title. She putted nervously and rolled 30 inches past the hole but steadied sufficiently to roll her next one in to claim the crown.

Learned From Match Play.

In the morning the women played anything but championship golf, Mrs. Kohn having an 87 to an 86 for Mrs. Hynes, but in the afternoon both performed steadily, Mrs. Kohn scoring an 80 to an 82 for Mrs. Hynes.

The new champion started playing in the district tourney 10 years ago and at that time reached the final, where she lost to Virginia Pep. Since then she has seldom gone farther than the third round but she stuck to it and finally wound up with the championship.

Mrs. Kohn began playing golf at Forest Park with her husband. She developed an immediate liking for the game and developed by playing with good players rather than by taking lessons. She has taken few instructions from professionals but has played with better golfers whenever she had the chance, observing their play, profiting by their good work and by their mistakes.

She plays frequently, as often as

CUNNINGHAM IN RECORD TIME FOR 800-METER RACE

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 10.—Tuning up for the National Collegiate A. A. and Amateur Athletic Union competition in Chicago later this month, Glenn Cunningham of the University of Kansas eclipsed the American amateur record for the 800-meter run in the Missouri Valley A. A. U. track and field carnival here today.

The ace of American middle distance runners, competing without a serious challenge and under a blistering sun that sent the mercury to 100 degrees, was timed in 1 minute 51 seconds. He finished 23 strides ahead of Don Landon of Kansas State College, second placer.

He clipped four-tenths of a second off the American record established at 1:51.4 indoors by Lloyd Hahn at New York in 1928 and equaled outdoors by Hahn the same year at Cambridge, Mass.

Cunningham's time was only 1.2 seconds slower than the Olympic record of 1:49.8 by Tom Hampson of England in the 1932 international games at Los Angeles.

The high point honor in women's competition was shared by Elizabeth Wilde of Kansas City, a 1932 Olympic contender, and August Coleman, of Kansas City, veteran feminine athlete. Miss Wilde won the 50 and 100-meter sprints and the high jump and Miss Coleman placed first in the javelin, discus

KERRY, GAELIC FOOTBALL TEAM, DEFEATS PICKED U. S. CLUB, 22 TO 9

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Kerry, Ireland's gaelic football champions, today defeated a picked United States team, 22 to 9, before 5000 spectators at Soldier Field. The victory was Kerry's fourth in five matches on American soil.

The brilliant team work of the Irish titleholders was too much for their American rivals, and after piling up a 13 to 5 lead at the half, coasted to victory. Kinnerk scored three goals for the Irish, and John Landers added another. Kinnerk also scored three points, Regan had three and John Walsh, O'Sullivan, Spring and John Landers counted one each.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—With Walter Johnson, their new manager, sitting in the stands, the Cleveland Indians exhibited enough batting power to trounce the Browns, 5 to 2, this afternoon and terminated their five-game losing streak. The victory squared the series at one all, with the third game of the set scheduled for tomorrow.

To win the game Cleveland had to rout its old jinx, George Blaeholder, who lasted only three innings. During those three stanzas the Indians tallied four runs, which are more than they had previously scored against him in any game this season.

Blaeholder had tackled the Tribe three times prior to today, winning, 1 to 0 and 3 to 2, and losing, 1 to 2. Thus in three games Blaeholder had limited the Indians to four tallies or the same number they made in three innings today.

Two Homers Off Blaeholder.

It was the right hander's inability to prevent the Indians from hitting for the circuit that chased him to the showers. In the first inning Averill parked the ball in the right field stands after Cissell had singled. Ferrell, first batter up in the third, sent the ball soaring into the left field seats. Porter and Boss followed with singles that produced another counter.

With Sam Gray, veteran curve ball specialist, on the mound in the fourth, the Indians manufactured their fifth and final tally. Pytlak dropped a triple on the right field foul line and scored when Knickerbocker's bounder hopped over Levey's head just as he was about to field it.

Brownie bats were not silent while the Indians were piling up their lead, but the Browns had the misfortune to hit the sphere right at Cleveland fielders.

West singled in the first and Garms' hot smash hit Ferrell on the leg and stopped dead, the Cleveland pitcher throwing him out. Campbell then singled to score West and went to third on Burns' whistling double down the left field foul line. Storti caught the ball right on the nose, but Porter didn't have to move a foot to catch his line drive.

Crouch Thrown Out at Plate.

In the second Crouch singled and went to third on Blaeholder's single, the Brownie pitcher moving to the keystone sack on the throw to third. Scharein sent a long fly to Averill, but a perfect throw to the plate doubled Crouch when he tried to score after the catch.

The Browns pushed their second run over the plate in the fourth. Burns and Storti singled and Burns scored when Levey forced Storti. Crouch sent a long drive to right that Porter caught on the cinder track and Reynolds, batting for Blaeholder, popped out.

With two gone in the fifth Garms singled, but Campbell's best effort was a fly to Averill.

At this stage of the game the Browns' batting attack wilted and the Browns went down in order in the next three innings. Burns opened the ninth with a single, but the next three batters were easy. In all, the Browns made only one hit in the last four frames after collecting nine during the first half of the contest.

Burns had a double and two singles and Garms two singles to lead the St. Louis attack.

Root walked Pinch Hitter Crabtree with one out in the eighth, but Hornsby, batting for Vance, took three called strikes and then Babe Herman contributed his bit by making a running catch of Martin's low liner.

The Giants, Pirates and Cubs gained a full game on the defeated Redbirds, but it was not a hard beating to take. Street's warriors have won 16 of their last 20 games and they'll frequently lose to crafty old campaigners like Charley Root.

Redbird Notes

THE Pirates, picked during the winter by most of the experts as favorites in the pennant race, will meet the Redbirds in a double-header this afternoon, opening a four-game series. There will be an open date tomorrow and single games Tuesday and Wednesday. Then, after two open dates the Cards start their second long trip of the season.

Bill Hallahan and Bill Walker will be Gabby Street's starting pitchers in the double-header.

The final with the Cubs attracted a Ladies day crowd of 7500 women, 3500 cash customers and 800 girls.

Medwick's throw to the plate after he caught F. Herman's fly might have nailed English, but the ball bounced over Wilson's head. "Joisey Joe" has a powerful throwing arm.

The Cubs made half as many runs in the first inning as they as they had made in all their previous games this year at Sportsman's Park. They had made six in five contests.

Orsatti was bluffed away from two flies that he probably could have caught. In the first inning Medwick failed to reach Grimm's fly and in the fifth Ernie probably would have taken care of Babe Herman's fly if Durocher hadn't tried for it.

English was so peeved when Orsatti caught his line drive in the seventh inning that he kicked a field goal with Manager Cholly Grimm's glove, which was on the ground near first base. The goal was not allowed.

RUTH HITS GROVE FOR TWO HOMERS, ATHLETICS BEAT YANKEES TWICE

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10. — The Athletics did a thorough job of shattering the New York Yankees "jinx" today by winning both games of a double-header from the world champions, 9 to 5 and 8 to 7, before a capacity crowd of 35,000, the largest of the season. The triumph sent the A's into third place ahead of the defeated Chicago White Sox.

Even Babe Ruth's 13th and 14th home runs of the season and Lefty Grove's stunt of fanning five times to equal the Major League record of batting futility couldn't stop the A's in the first game as Pinky Higgins smacked a four-bagger with two on bases in the eighth to clinch the game.

Five more homers, including Jimmy Foxx's thirteenth of the year and two by Arndt Jorgens, Yankee catched marked the second game. Philadelphia won this contest in the ninth when Bing Miller hit Lefty Gomez for a pinch single, Roger Cramer walked and Ed Coleman brought them both in with a single after they had advanced on Bob Johnson's sacrifice. Jorgens' first homer was made with the bases full.

GULDAHL SECOND IN U. S. OPEN

ting a much longer ball then ever, Goodman sailed into this tournament chockful of confidence and primed for the big "killing" of his career. They didn't mention his name seriously in the pre-tournament speculation. Professional betting men stamped him a 20 to 1 shot in a field of 150 of the greatest shot makers in America, led by the double champion, Gene Sarazen.

There wasn't, in fact, much for Omaha and the Goodman marching and cheering section to root about after Johnny finished the first round in 75, seven strokes back of the seasoned, brilliant Tommy Armour, who had a course record, 68. But from there on, the slim, hatless youth from the great American midlands was the whole show.

With the same nonchalance that marked his rise as at 19 to stardom, Goodman cooly ripped the North Shore course to ribbons with a 66, six under par, equalling the all-time tournament record, and giving him a two-stroke lead over the faltering Armour.

He came back on the third round this morning with a huge gallery stamping his course, to crack par again with a 70. On two rounds in succession he was eight under par, and well-nigh miraculous around the greens. On each he took only 26 putts, 10 under par for this specialty. Literally, the Nebraskan chipped and putted the greatest of American professionals to rout.

The Inevitable Slump.

Three under par on the fourth round, and nine strokes ahead, Johnny made the mistake of trying to "coast" and had six bad holes in a row before he regained control. The title might have slipped then and there from any one but this little gamester. From the rear came the rumblings of the final pursuit, the last charge of the professional cavalry, but the gap was too big to close for all but Guldahl and he didn't quite have the luck that would have turned defeat into at least a tie and an 18-hole play-off tomorrow.

Guldahl, a strapping Texas youngster, who has never figured in a previous national championship fight, came out of the beaten pack to give Goodman a rousing battle. He was longer and straighter than Johnny up to the greens, throughout the last nine, but missed a half dozen chances to "cash in" with his putter, any one of which would have given him a tie for the title. He three-putted two greens, the first and 15th on the last round. He missed four putts of less than five feet, including the fatal four-footer on the last green that dribbled away by not much over three inches.

Craig Wood, big blonde from New Jersey and largest money winner of the year, boomed forward to challenge Johnny but he, too, lacked the "Goodman touch" around the greens and, despite two splendid finishing rounds, was three strokes behind, in third place with 73-74-71-72—290.

Hagen's Fine Rally.

Walter Hagen, Ryder cup captain, trailed Goodman by 15 strokes starting the last round but shot a record equalling 66, to cut away ten shots, and finished in a tie for fourth place with Tommy Armour, at 292. Hagen's round included a two-stroke penalty for driving out of bonds on the 17th, on which basis it was probably the greatest 18 holes ever shot in the American championship. He had seven birdies and on the hole which penalized him, he came back with only three shots to hole out for a 5.

JOHN GOODMAN.

Olin Dutra, the big P. G. A. champion from Los Angeles, faded back after a good start and finished in a tie for seventh, with Gus Moreland, Texas amateur, at 295. Brother Mortie Dutra nosed into sixth place with 294, and Sarazen, the fallen champion, landed away back in the ruck, tied for 28th with a total of 303.

That about closed the chief episodes marking the victorious path of Goodman, first amateur since Bob Jones to beat the professionals into submission and the fifth to win the American open. Johnny put himself on the pedestal with such stalwarts as Francis Ouimet, Jerome Travers, Chick Evans and Jones. His winning total, 287, tied the lowest score Jones ever registered in an American open, although Bob once won the British open with 285. But for that stretch through the outgoing nine, where he went six over par on as many holes, Goodman would have smashed to bits the record score of 286, shared by Evans and Sarazen.

Guldahl Drew a Laugh When He Went to Chicago to Qualify.

Ralph Guldahl has been professional of the St. Louis Country Club for the past two years, succeeding Art Longworth. He first claimed attention when he led the first round of the St. Louis Open $10,000 tournament at Sunset in 1930 and later went to a Detroit Club.

Last year he failed to finish among the first 30 in the Open and this year had to qualify to win a place. He chose the Chicago District as affording him the best chance to get into the big tournament, giving golfers in St. Louis a laugh.

The wisdom of his choice was proved, however, when he shot 157 in the qualifying round while the highest score to get in from the St. Louis District was 153.

He played numerous exhibition matches throughout the District last season while this year, Guldahl is an entrant in the St. Louis Professionals' League in which he has won two matches and lost one. Jimmy Fogerty, youthful Osage professional, taking Ralph's measure at Meadowbrook, two weeks ago.

Singles Golfers To Get New Deal On Muny Links

Jerre McKellops, who has spent 17 years in professional golf, has been placed in charge of the Forest Park Municipal links and will assume his new duties Monday, it was announced yesterday. Mc Kellops will serve under Mayor Dickmann, W. A. Miller, commissioner of parks, and James M. Darst, director of public welfare.

McKellops already has several ideas in connection with the two municipal courses which he plans to put into effect at once.

One of these will be that every fourth foursome starting on the 18-hole course will be made up of singles players. In the past, it was said, individual players who signed up for a round had to wait until they could take the place of a member of a foursome who failed to appear, causing an indefinite wait. Under the new system a singles player will be assured of starting from the tee in 20 minutes.

McKellops plans to enlarge the greens on the 18-hole course, and make the No. 3 hole a par-four instead of par-three, as at present. This is a "blind" hole in which the golfer shoots across a lagoon and up over a hill.

McKellops is a member of the Eastern Missouri Golfers' Association. His last official connection with a club was in 1931 when he handled the Sedalia, Mo., municipal course.

It's Old Stuff.

PUTTING up wrestling forfeits to guarantee good behavior is old stuff. Champions in the old days who wanted to gather a little kale by exhibiting, but did not care to have to keep in strict condition and be constantly on guard against a double-crosser once required forfeits of capable opponents.

An instance of the sort developed at the Illinois Legislative Committee's investigation, a few years ago. The wife of a wrestler brought suit to recover a mortgage on her home which, she declared, had been posted to guarantee that her husband would not attempt to throw certain opponents. The mortgage had not been returned.

An attempt to double-cross Joe Stecher when he was champion, brought out the unofficial statement of the wrestler who tried to get the title that he had posted $21,000 as a guarantee not to try to toss Stecher.

The latest surprise finish in the wrestling world was the queer victory of Joe Savoldi over Londos. Seemingly it was the referee, not Savoldi, who defeated Jeems.

The Handsome Championship.

TOMMY LOUGHRAN and Steve Hamas will battle for the heavyweight good looks championship of the ring, at Yankee Field, June 21. These two boys were introduced at the Schmeling-Baer fight. Both are fine looking fellows, utterly unlike the accepted idea of a pug, in appearance.

Hamas, a college boy, had been on the shelf for some months. The pair have met four times, Hamas having had the better of the argument by scoring a knockout over his foe on one occasion.

Will Schmeling Come Back?

ONE feels rather sorry for Max Schmeling, who went into the ring really overconfident of success, only to be greeted with a terrific right hand warning of his fate, in the first ten seconds of the fight.

Max was a likely, patient, plodding sort of a fellow, who worked hard and deserved what he got out of the fight game.

But now, with the spotlight elsewhere, he appears in somewhat different colors fistically. We now recall the defects in his record, such as the fact that he had been knocked out twice before in his career—by Larry Gaines in two rounds and Gypsy Daniels in one round.

We had forgotten, almost, that Jack Sharkey had almost pounded him to pulp, up to the time when, over-eager, Jack hit Schmeling low and lost on a foul.

It had been overlooked that two of the men whom he defeated with excessive credit to himself—Risko and Paulino—were sick men at the time they met Schmeling.

Schmeling's Best Fights.

HIS really good claim to fame rests on the fact that he knocked out Mickey Walker, a really tough egg, and also Young Stribling—a feat that none had been able to accomplish before.

Schmeling very likely, however, was below par in his show against Baer. He probably is a victim of the one-fight-a-year policy. He rusted too quickly.

Being a young man he undoubtedly can come back. But it will have to be by way of the ring, not the gymnasium. Schmeling will now have to take on three or four really good fighters to tune himself into pitch for trying conclusions with Baer again. And by that time the Californian may have come into his own.

Schmeling probably could beat Sharkey, next September, if he got a chance. A good fight would be between this pair, in case Carnera wins from Sharkey, the winner to get another whack at the winner of a Baer-Carnera bout.

In any case, the heavyweight fight situation is now much more interesting, with Baer for a brand new factor in the running. There will be at least two more title fights within the next twelve months.

Maxie Laid Low.

BAER has been whipped already. Little roly poly Dan Cupid brought him down, aided and abetted by Miss June Knight.

June said "yes," so the story here runs.

GIANTS REGAIN 1ST PLACE WITH NINTH VICTORY IN TEN GAMES

NEW YORK, June 10. — The Giants continued their winning ways at the expense of the Phillies today and went back into first place in the National League by defeating the last-place club 5 to 2.

One inning was all Bill Terry's wrecking crew needed to win its ninth triumph in 10 starts against the Phils. They scored four runs off Ed Holley, then "coasted" through behind the superb pitching of Fred Fitzsimmons and Adolfo Luque. Fitzsimmons granted only four hits in the seven innings he orked to gain his seventh victory of the season while Luque pitched hitless ball in the last two frames.

TYLER PLACE WINS TRACK MEET AND THE REINHARDT CUP

GIANTS REGAIN 1ST PLACE WITH NINTH VICTORY IN TEN GAMES

NEW YORK, June 10. — The Giants continued their winning ways at the expense of the Phillies today and went back into first place in the National League by defeating the last-place club 5 to 2.

One inning was all Bill Terry's wrecking crew needed to win its ninth triumph in 10 starts against the Phils. They scored four runs off Ed Holley, then "coasted" through behind the superb pitching of Fred Fitzsimmons and Adolfo Luque. Fitzsimmons granted only four hits in the seven innings he worked to gain his seventh victory of the season while Luque pitched hitless ball in the last two frames.

Hartnett Draws More Votes Than Any Other Player For National's All-Star Team

While this won't be looked upon as cheerful news by St. Louis baseball fans, in the interest of keeping the records straight it must be told that Catcher Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs has polled more votes than any other player in the National League for a place on the National's all-star team in the "game of the century" at Chicago, July 6.

According to figures released from Chicago yesterday, Hartnett's vote from fans of the nation totals 94,804, topping that of Chuck Klein of the Phillies, who has polled the second largest number of votes to date, by nearly 800.

Although Catcher Jimmy Wilson is second to Hartnett in votes polled for the National League catching job, he is far behind the Chicagoan. This doesn't set so well with St. Louis fans, who figure that Hartnett isn't in the same class with Wilson when first-class catchers are being considered.

Fan Compares Catchers.

One fan who attended Friday's game between the Cards and the Cubs at Sportsman's Park was quick to point out the difference in the play of the two backstops.

"Did you sports writers notice how Wilson steadied Tex Carleton at the critical moments? Did you notice how his heads-up baseball enabled him to circle the bases on his own hit in front of the plate when the Cubs' defense blew up? And what about Hartnett? His 'great' catching didn't seem to have much of the steadying effect on those four Chicago pitchers. You could just about expect them to walk a batter or two after Hartnett made his trips out to the mound for a conference."

Hartnett a Good Catcher.

All of which was duly noticed, by the St. Louis sports writers, and, it is hoped, by the Chicagoans as well. In Hartnett's defense, however, it may be said that one ball game doesn't make a summer schedule, and though the Chicago catcher didn't look like a world-beater on Friday, he is, nevertheless, a first-class catcher. But he's not in Wilson's class, if you take the word of St. Louis fans.

Second base: Frisch, St. Louis, 74,517.

Pitchers: Warneke, Chicago, 88,457; Hubbell, New York, 84,783; Lucas, Cincinnati, 34,849.

St. Louis fans are asked to fill out the ballots, published on this page, and mail them to the "Game of the Century" Editor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch. If you care to become eligible for three cash prizes, after your teams are drawn up, write a letter not to exceed 150 words telling which of your teams you think is the better. For the best letter, the Post-Dispatch will give a prize of $25, for the second best, $15, and for third best, $10.

But by all means vote! Let's back the St. Louis stars in the national voting!

BIKE RIDERS WILL HOLD 10-MILE RACE

The Century Road Club of America, "Missouri Division," will hold its seventh annual 10-mile handicap road race over the Natural Bridge course this morning. The cyclists will leave the starting point at the intersection of Natural Bridge and Florissant roads at 8 a. m. The finish will be at West Lake.

Thirty entries have been received and it is expected competition will be keen, making possible the establishment of a new time record for the race. John Griffith, winner of last year's time prize, holds the present mark of 22 minutes 30:05 seconds for the distance.

After the conclusion of the race cyclists will pedal to West Lake Park, where a general outing will take place.

JACK KEHOE WINS TWO-MILE RACE FOR BOYS

Jack Kehoe, 15 years old, second-year student of St. Louis U. High School, won the third annual Christian Brothers' High School modified marathon yesterday afternoon on Clayton road. The distance was a little short of two miles, Kehoe running it in 10 minutes 45 seconds, exactly 10 seconds faster than last year's mark set by Martin Stiller of Soldan High.

Second place was taken by Arthur Gartland of Ben Blewett Junior High, and Carl Steinmitz of Soldan, who ran second last year, came in third.

Out of a field of nearly 50 youngsters under 16 years of age, Kehoe was among the leaders all the way. Right at the start, Bob White, who finished thirteenth, took the lead, but Kehoe drew up and set the pace until reaching the hill before Hanley road, where Gartland passed him. Kehoe regained the lead at Big Bend road and kept it to finish about 40 yards ahead of Gartland.

Kehoe's mark was four and one-half seconds short of the record set by Cletus Ferguson in the first running of the marathon. His only other claim to athletic fame was a fourth in the mile in the recent Prep League meet.

The first and second placers won cups, the third boy a silver medal, and the following 12 a bronze medal each. The order of finish after the first three is as follows: Lavoy Barron, Al Bridges, H. Winkler, William Hefeli, Milton Schmedeke, Charles Mallow, Ray Eckert, Charles Callier, Marion Gregerson, Bob White, Elliot Hughey and Jack Ryan.

State Amateur Golf Wednesday At Westborough

Entries for the annual Missouri State Amateur golf tournament to be held at Westborough Country Club starting Wednesday will close tomorrow, according to Bonner Miller, secretary of the Missouri State Golfers' Association.

According to Miller the advance number of entries has been gratifying, although most of them have been from golfers in St. Louis and vicinity. Frank Staller of Kansas City is the defending champion and he will be on hand to defend his title.

Bob Cochran, who recently won the St. Louis district title, has been practicing over Westborough all week for the State meet and the other day in the match for St. Louis U. against the Washington University team, he recovered from a bad start to shoot the 18 holes in par 72.

Although youngsters like Cochran are expected to occupy much of the limelight, Miller has urged that the senior golfers, those 50 years or older, enter the event and compete for the State senior title which will be held in conjunction with the championship flight. Thus it is possible for a senior to win his class title as well as the State championship, based on the medal scores.

HOLDER OF LOUISIANA GOLF TITLE FOR TWO YEARS IS DEFEATED

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 10.—The two-year Louisiana golf championship reign of Edwin McClure of Shreveport was ended today when Fred Haas Jr., of Bastrop trimmed the defending titlist 3 and 1 in the semifinals of the State golf tournament.

Fishing Waters Clearing.

The information that fishing waters throughout the State have been clearing rapidly throughout the last week was welcome news to anglers who have suffered disappointment since the game fishing season opened Decoration day. Along with the word that all waters have cleared or are clearing rapidly have come several fishing yarns.

Lake Taneycomo has been supplying its share of tall fishing tales during the week. Bass and crappie fishing is considered very good there now. Many reports of excellent catfishing have been received and the prospects for good channel catfishing, when the season reopens next month, is being voiced by anglers.

During the last three years Lake Taneycomo, long considered one of the finest fishing sites in the State, has not been heavily fished. The slump in tourist business as the result of the economic situation made a "rest" for the fish of Lake Taneycomo possible. Throughout this time the State has made heavy plantings of game fish in the lake and conducted a campaign for the eradication of turtles, gar and rough fish from the fishing waters.

Veteran fishermen in the White River region say these conditions have made possible the best fishing in many years.

The Lake of the Ozarks is again furnishing its share of fish stories. The water in this lake, which has been above normal stage for several weeks, is now clearing, affording satisfactory fishing.

Take a Fancy to Flies.

The good fly fishing streams which usually are small tributaries to some of the larger fish producing rivers are now back to normal, clear and in good fishing condition. They benefited from the high waters in that fish from the larger rivers were permitted to ascend the flood waters.

With the clearing of the stream, fish have paid less attention to live bait and have taken a fancy to the fly rod an bait rod lures. Before the waters cleared bass struck freely at the cicada, or 17 year locust, but anglers now say that since the streams have cleared the cicada is less of an attraction for the fish.

Frog hunting has become more difficult since the streams cleared.

Spawning Season Is On.

Naturalists at this time are again pointing out the difficulty of maintaining the so-called "balance of nature" through the means of unvarying closed seasons. They have for a good example at this time Missouri's closed season on game fish.

Bass are commonly supposed to spawn during April and May, and the State's game laws have set a closed season for the game fish between April 1 and May 30. Because of high waters this season spawning has been delayed, and now that the season is open bass are making their nests and are spawning.

In some sections it is believed the bass have already spawned and the fertility of their eggs destroyed by silt deposits as the result of high water. Where high waters have covered the nests to any great depth the nests would have suffered, it is pointed out.

Sportsmen are being urged to not attempt at striking any bass which they can see hovering over its nest.

Rescue Work Under Way.

Dr. G. B. Herndon, chief of wardens for the Missouri State Game and Fish Department, is now making preparations to conduct the greatest fish rescue work ever undertaken in Missouri. Most of this work will be done in Southeast Missouri, where the Black and St. Francis rivers have been out of their banks several times this spring.

Some rescue work already has been done, he said. Bass, crappie, bluegill and catfish have been rescued from drying bar pit and sloughs and placed in Southeast Missouri streams.

Game wardens now are making a survey of waters in their territories, where special reclamation work is or soon will be needed.

HE RIDES WINNERS: Jockey Westrope

This grinning youngster is the lad who recently rode five winners in one day at Washington Park track, Chicago, whose work in the saddle has been a sensation in racing circles this year.

Post-Dispatch Tennis Lessons Continue at O'Fallon, Tomorrow

Have you attended any of the Post-Dispatch free tennis school classes that are being conducted under the direction of Coach Ike Macy? Perhaps you have, for the classes have proved popular, but if you haven't, it's not too late to obtain valuable instruction in the correct way to play tennis.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock Coach Macy will hold a class at O'Fallon Park. His subject will be the troublesome backhand stroke. This same lesson was given at Carondelet on Friday, and Forest Park, Thursday, and, in a manner of speaking, was right down the tennis players' and potential tennis players' alley.

On Tuesday Coach Macy will hold a class at the Jefferson Memorial courts in Forest Park and in this period will devote his time to the correct service. He will repeat the lesson at Carondelet, Wednesday, and at O'Fallon Park, Thursday, thus winding up the nine-day instruction period.

Neither experienced nor novice tennis players can afford to pass up these excellent classes. The instructor, Macy, is widely known as a tennis player. Some of the leading tennis players of the district are his pupils.

Merely fill out the "Free Tennis Lessons" application printed on this page and mail it to the "Free Tennis Lessons" Editor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Then report at the nearest of the three parks for the remaining lessons.

FOUKES SCORE 30 RUNS IN MUNY CONTEST

Maybe it was the heat and maybe the Fouke Fur nine wanted to match a run for every degree registered by the thermometer, but anyhow the Foukes scored 30 runs against 8 for the Ramcoes in a hectic Municipal League ball game yesterday afternoon. Both teams are members of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial League No. 2.

The big inning for the Foukes was the sixth when they pushed across 10 markers. This gave them a lead of 24 to 2, since they had scored five in the third, one in the fourth and eight in the fifth. After counting six more in the seventh the Foukes wearied of trying to equal the performance of the thermometer and went runless in the final two rounds.

GILBERT HALL WINS SINGLES AND DOUBLES IN HARTFORD TENNIS

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 10.—J. Gilbert Hall of Orange, N. J., today gained possession of his first challenge cup. He defeated Herbert L. Bowman, of New York, 6—2, 6—4, 6—4, to take from the Hartford Golf Club trophy case the New England championship tennis bowl.

The victory gave Hall, who won New England championships in 1930 and 1932, permanent possession.

Hall later took the court with Fritz Mercur, of Bethlehem, whom he defeated in the semi-final singles match, to defeat Lorenzo Nodarse and Arturo Randin, the fast, hard-stroking Cuban pair in three sets, 6—4, 6—2, 7—5, to bag the men's doubles championship.

SOMERVILLE OFF FORM IN ENGLISH GOLF PLAY

By the Associated Press.

SANDWICH, England, June 10.—John Beck of Sunridge today won the St. George's Vase golf tournament with a total of 74-77—151 for the 36 holes. C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, Canadian holder of the United States amateur title, was far down in the list with 83-76—159.

Somerville was decidedly off his game in the morning round, played in a cold wind and with occasional rain squalls, and his 76 of the afternoon was not good enough to overcome the handicap.

Knapps Meet Hellrungs.

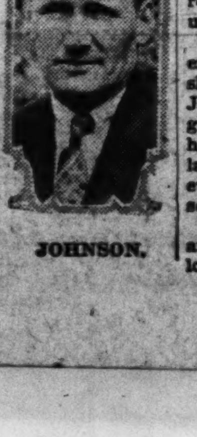
Striving to preserve their mathematical chance for victory in the first half of the University City League schedule, the Knapps will take on the leading Hellrungs in the feature game this afternoon in Heman Park. The Hellrungs are leading by two games, with three games remaining to be played in the first half. The St. Louis Brakes, who are also still in the running, being tied with the Knapps for second place, will tangle with the rejuvenated Wolff team. Both games will start at 2:30.

"Walter Johnson Day" Will Be Observed in Cleveland, Today

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—Walter Johnson — who probably has watched more Presidents pitch opening game baseballs than any other major leaguer alive—is going to do a little ceremonious heaving himself tomorrow when he becomes manager of the Indians.

It will be "Walter Johnson day" in Cleveland, so proclaimed by Mayor Ray T. Miller with all the proper seals. And when the veteran speed artist of another day stands up to put over his "opening day" pitch, he will formally become manager of the Tribe for the rest of this season and all of next year.



JOHNSON.

Told about the ceremonies on his arrival from Washington today, the "Big Train" laughed heartily.

"I haven't had any spring training," he said, "but I guess I still have enough stuff left in my arm to get one over."

It looked like "Walter Johnson day" at the station today when the new manager came in. The fans were there in force, as was Mayor Miller's welcoming committee of 50, and all the baseball moguls Cleveland could muster.

Amid the exuberance and fanfare, Johnson smiled somewhat shyly, but he was not to be led into rosy predictions for the Indians under his tutelage.

There was talk galore among the experts today about trades and shifts under the new manager, but Johnson was content to let them guess at it. He pointed out that he hadn't seen many of the Cleveland players perform, and hadn't even seen a single ball game this season.

"We'll decide what we'll do—if anything in particular—after we've looked them over," he said.

Stix Win, 5 to 1, From Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 10.—The Stix, Baer & Fuller club of St. Louis, national soccer champions, showed off their wares in Milwaukee Saturday and defeated the Deutscher Sport Club, 5—1. A crowd of 1000 saw the match, which marked the first appearance of the national champions here.

Outstanding individual play on the part of Werner Nilsen, center forward for the visitors, featured the victory. Nilsen scored three of his team's five goals and played a brilliant offensive game. Bill Gonsalves and Alex McNab, who contributed the other goals for St. Louis, also starred. Herman Rostek scored the only goal for the home team, in the second half.

The national champions were slow in getting started and good defensive play by the German club held them scoreless during the first 25 minutes. Then Nilsen dribbled through the Milwaukee defense for the first goal. The second goal came a few minutes later, when Gonsalves caught the Milwaukee defense napping and booted the ball home to give his team a 2-0 lead at the half.

The German booters came within striking distance of the national champions early in the second half, when Rostek scored his team's only goal. The Stix team, however, increased its two-point lead when McNab scored on a pass from Nilsen. Nilsen, the cleverest player on the field dribbled through half the Milwaukee eleven to score the last two goals.

Both teams were effected considerably by the heat, and the match slowed up in the second half. The Germans, after a great fight in the first half, wilted before their stronger opponents in the last period.

PRINCESS HOTEL, ON CHESTNUT ST. AND 18TH, LEASED

EDWARD K. LOVE CO. AGENT FOR ESTATE

Three-Story Structure Faces Aloe Plaza, Which Is Expected to Have Salutary Effect on District.

The Amelia Hotel Co., of which H. Bierman is president, has concluded negotiations with the Edward K. Love Realty Co. for an eight-year lease of the Princess Hotel building at the southeast corner of Eighteenth and Chestnut streets. The lease calls for an average of more than $10,000 a year rental.

The Princess is a three-story fireproof structure, occupying a site with a frontage of 72 feet on Eighteenth, and 162½ feet on Chestnut.

The lease was made for an estate which recently acquired all the property on the south side of Chestnut street, including the Princess Hotel, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, under a mortgage. Title to all this property was formerly held by the David Daniel Realty Co., of which David D. Israel is president.

The property has a total frontage on Chestnut of 324 feet, extending from Seventeenth to Eighteenth street, with a frontage of 72 feet on Eighteenth, and 72 on Seventeenth. The title is now vested in John Sproule Love of the Edward K. Love Realty Co., pending its transfer to the estate. Approximately 20 feet are now being taken off the Eighteenth street front of the hotel building, to make way for the widening of Eighteenth street. The hotel faces the area taken for Aloe Plaza, which is expected to have a wholesome effect on this part of the city. The new Postoffice project, embracing the entire block on the south side of Market street, between Eighteenth and Seventeenth streets, is also held as a factor which will contribute to the rejuvenation of this section.

Another Hotel Leased.

The Amelia Hotel & Realty Co. recently acquired a 99-year lease on the three-story hotel building, together with the site, at the southwest corner of Fifteenth and Market streets from the David Daniel Realty Co. The property has a frontage of 220 feet on Market street. It is one block west of the Municipal Auditorium, under construction.

The Theatrical Mechanics' Association has taken a five-year lease on the entire second floor of the building at the southeast corner of Eighth and Market streets for its headquarters. Rentals for the five-year term will aggregate $9240. The association, a part of international organization, has had its headquarters in the Odeon Building on Grand boulevard. The Market street building, occupying a site 57x94 feet, has been remodeled, with 20 feet taken off for the widening of Market. The property is owned by the Samuel C. Davis estate, a client of the Edward K. Love Realty Co., which made the lease.

Several inquiries have been made relative to the ground floor of this building, by prospective lessees. Several offers have also been reported for the purchase of this corner, inspired by its speculative possibilities, with the widening of Market street, which now has a status of a boulevard between Jefferson avenue and Sixth street.

The former Kinloch Telephone Building, occupying approximately a quarter of a block at the northwest corner of Tenth and Locust streets, has been placed on the market by the Central States Life Insurance Co. The six-story structure was formerly occupied by the Kinloch Telephone Exchange, which was absorbed by the Bell System. The first floor is available for retail or wholesale purposes and the upper floors for lofts or office purposes.

Marshall Field & Co. of Chicago has branch quarters in the building, in addition to those of local concerns under leases negotiated by the Mullin-Walters Realty Company, which has acted as rental agent of the building.

Another holding available is that of the 15-story City Club occupying a quarter of a block at the southeast corner of Eleventh and Locust streets, owned by the Missouri State Life Insurance Company under a deed of trust, following the stock market collapse of 1929. It

Another holding available is that of the 18-story City Club occupying a quarter of a block at the southeast corner of Eleventh and Locust street, acquired by the Missouri State Life Insurance Company under a deed of trust, following the stock market collapse of 1929. It has figured in divers deals, which have failed of consummation.

Offers have also been submitted for the two-story building, with site 60x85 feet, on the east side of Broadway, just north of Chestnut street, acquired by the Prudential Insurance Company of America under a mortgage. This building adjoins the 14-story First National Life Building, originally known as the Blackstone Building, recently acquired in fee simple under the provisions of a 99-year lease by Washington University.

Negotiations are said to be pending in a number of instances for large holdings in the business and apartment centers, taken under foreclosure by life insurance companies, noteworthy in that in some instances the property is said to be available at sacrifice prices. Transactions involving property in this category would be given a new stimulus if the embargo placed on loans for real estate financing by the banks were modified or lifted, real estate men aver. Life insurance companies, formerly a large source of money supply for real estate purposes, have withdrawn from the lending field, pending improved business conditions, according to real estate men.

The Forest Park Hotel Co. has executed a deed of trust for $150,000 on the six story Forest Park Hotel at the southwest corner of West Pine boulevard and Euclid avenue, in favor of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., trustee. The site has 216 feet on West Pine. The property was sold at foreclosure April 27 for $210,000 to a protective committee for the holders of about $1,000,000 in defaulted first mortgage real estate bonds. The Forest Park Hotel Co. was recently formed with Thomas Dysart as president to hold the title.

U. S. CONSTRUCTION IN MAY GAINS 36 PCT. OVER APRIL'S

May construction contracts of all kinds totaled $77,171,700, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. This was a gain of about 36 per cent over the total of $56,573,000 reported during April. In May of last year the contract total amounted to $146,221,200. Gains over April were reported in each of the four major classifications of construction. Increases in residential building and public utilities as compared with May of last year were too small to offset declines in public works and non-residential building.

Residential awards in May totaled $26,519,700. This was not only larger than the volume reported in either the preceding month or May of last year, but was the largest monthly total since that recorded for April, 1932. The improvement over April, 1933, was universal, being in evidence in practically all territories in the area east of the Rocky Mountains. Gains in residential contracts as contrasted with May, 1932, were shown in seven of the 13 Dodge districts: the New England, Metropolitan New York, the Southeast, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Texas territories. For the first five months of 1933 residential contracts for the 37 Eastern states totaled $85,440,500 as against $139,581,700 for the corresponding period of 1932.

Commenting on the outlook the Dodge organization observes:

"There appears reason to believe that the gap between the cumulative totals for the two years will be progressively narrowed throughout the remainder of the current year."

Non-residential building contracts let in May amounted to $31,639,400. This was an increase of 32 per cent over the total for April, but was considerably lower than the total of $58,946,400 recorded for May of last year. For the elapsed months of 1932 non-residential awards amounted to $134,207,200 as contrasted with $223,219,200 for the corresponding period of 1932. Gains over April were shown in all territories except in the Upstate New York, Central Northwest and Texas districts. Gains over May, 1932, were recorded in the Pittsburgh, Central Northwest, Southern Michigan and St. Louis territories.

PLANS FOR BETTER BUILDINGS CONTEST

New and Reconstructed Structures to Be Considered, M. A. Rogers Explains.

This year's better buildings contest sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Civic Development Bureau, will cover the period from last Oct. 1 to Sept. 30 of this year, it was stated yesterday by Meyric A. Rogers, director of the City Art Museum and chairman of the Committee on Awards for the contest.

Both new and reconstructed buildings may be entered, Rogers explained in describing plans for the competition. There will be seven classifications: Single residences, multiple dwellings and public ecclesiastical educational, commercial and industrial buildings.

In making its selections, the committee will inspect the buildings, considering exterior and interior design and appearance, engineering achievements, mechanical equipment, quality of workmanship and landscaping. Honorable mention will be awarded winners in each classification and if the building is considered an outstanding achievement a bronze tablet will be given.

To encourage quality and beauty in craftsmanship, an award may be made to any portion of a building, Rogers said.

Other members of the committee are: A. H. Baum, civil engineer; Prof. Gabriel Ferrand, head of the Washington University School of Architecture; Wilbur T. Trueblood, architect; F. C. Woermann, civil engineer, and Samuel H. Allen, architect, alternate member.

By Herman Wecke.

CHICAGO, June 10.—With a chance to add the North American Soccer championship to the list of honors gained during the past campaign, the Stix, Baer & Fuller eleven of St. Louis will oppose the Toronto Scots in a match at Soldier Field tomorrow afternoon. The contest will be one of the first important sports features of the "Century of Progress" Exposition. The game starts at 5 p. m.

It will be the first real match for the Stix since April 26, when the club won the national championship, defeating the New York Americans, 2 goals to 1, for their second victory in the U. S. title competition. Since then the team has played several practice battles with amateur clubs and has worked out twice a week to keep in condition for the match.

No Easy Task.

Although the Stix players expect to win the North American title, Alex McNab, coach of the club, does not anticipate an easy battle. He figures the Canadians will put up a real fight. The club will be in condition, since the season does not end as early in Canada as in the United States. "I know the Canadians have at least one real player in Andy Stevens, because I played with him on the Boston club in 1925," declared McNab. "If the others are anywhere near as good, then we will have to put forth our best to bring the championship back to St. Louis."

The Toronto club holds an enviable record. To gain the right to oppose the Stix, the team won the Dominion championship, Provincial title and the Toronto and district honors. It was the club's second victory in the Dominion title race, since the eleven was oganized in 1918. Since that time, the Scots have won the Ontario Cup eight times and the Charity Cup on six occasions, in addition to gaining numerous other laurels.

On the club is only one Canadian, W. McManus, the outside right, who has been seen in action in St. Louis as a member of the Holleys of Detroit. Stevens is another who has played in St. Louis, being a member of the Boston club in the inter-professional league title series in 1925, in which the St. Louis club was the winner.

McNab intends to take no chances and as a result will start his regular lineup. Bob Gregg, injured most of the season, has recovered and is anxious to get into the battle. He may be accommodated. If he does not play, Bill Lehman will be at the fullback position with Jimmy Nolan.

"International" Forwards.

The "international forward" line of McNab, Nilsen, Roe, Gonsalves and McLean will again be in action as will the halfback trio of McPherson, Watson and Bohlman. The veteran La Barge will be between the uprights.

As a preliminary there will be a match between Sparta and the Swedish-Americans, two Windy City rivals for the Peel Cup honors. Sparta has won thfis competiton for the past five campaigns.

After the match with the Canadians, the Stix players probably will hang up their shoes, until early next September, when the time to prepare for another season will roll around.

GERMANY ELIMINATED FROM DAVIS CUP PLAY BY JAPANESE TEAM

BERLIN, June 10.—Germany, winner in the European zone of Davis Cup competition last year, was eliminated from the 1933 competition today in the quarter final round as Jiro Satoh and R. Nunoi of Japan, defeated Baron Gottfried von Cramm and E. Nourney, 6—2, 6—3, 3—6, 61, for the third straight Japanese victory in the five-match series.

Satoh and Nunoi defeated Von Cramm and G. Jaenecke, respectively, in the opening singles matches Wednesday.

Von Cramm and Dr. Daniel Prenn comprised the German cup team last year but Prenn was barred from the 1933 squad because of his Jewish blood.

The United States just barely nosed out Germany in the interzone final last year, Ellsworth Vines Jr. winning both his singles matches and John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison winning the doubles for a 3—2 victory. Prenn and Von Cramm both defeated Frank X. Shields, the other United States singles player.

If You Think Archery Is a Sissy Sport, Your Score Is Just a Miss

In a York Round, You Walk 4160 Yards and Pull a Bow 144 Times and It's a Pull of 45 or More Pounds Each Time, Bo.

That's the Morning Part of a Meet and in the Afternoon You Have to Do Twice That Much—If You Like Sissy Sports.

By Damon Kerby.

The event was the Missouri Valley Archery tournament, the place was Heman Park, in University City, and the time was the early part of the afternoon of a warm day.

About 20 men, dressed in all types of summer garb, stood on a line facing a row of targets 100 yards away. The men held bows and arrows.

"Are all you gentlemen ready?" he called. Everybody seemed to be ready. Another blast of the whistle, and they started shooting at the targets, groups of three shooting at each target.

When every man had shot his allotted number of arrows, the whistle was blown again, and the line of archers advanced on the targets. Each man had a duty to perform. In each group of three, one man kept score, another pulled the arrows from the targets, and the third acted as what the boys used to call "pigtail," going beyond the target and picking up arrows that had missed.

It's Whistle and Shoot and Walk.

Another whistle from the official after the work at the targets was completed, and the archers marched back to the firing line. This performance was repeated again and again.

"Say, how long does this go on?" asked a spectator of an acquaintance in the firing line.

"Long enough to know you've done some real work by the time you get through," replied the archer, mopping his brow. "Wait until this round is completed and I'll tell you all about it."

And when the round was completed, he did.

"Each man who competed in that round (the York), walked exactly 4160 yards. Each man exerted a pull of a minimum of 45 pounds every time he shot an arrow, and each man exerted that pull exactly 144 times during the round. Yet they call this play."

The archer was asked for details.

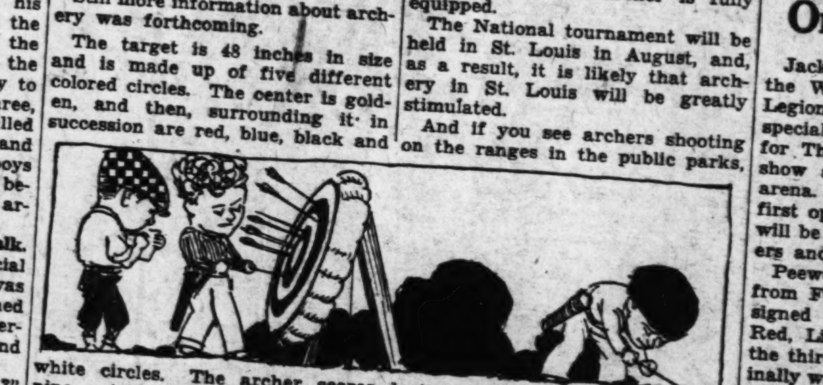
"We shot 12 'ends' (an 'end' is the shooting of six arrows) at 100 yards. That's 12 times we walked to the target and 12 back, 200 yards each trip, and a total of 2400 yards for the 12 'ends.' We shot eight 'ends' at 80 yards, walking a total distance of 1280 yards, and four 'ends' at 60 yards, walking a distance of 480 yards. All that distance totals 4160 yards, and you don't have to take the trouble to check up on my figures. I've figured it all out, just to prove that this is no sissy sport."

"Warming Up for the Afternoon."

"Was the shooting finished for the day?"

"I should say not," he replied. "We've got two more rounds to fire this afternoon. In fact, we're just getting under full steam.

Still more information about archery was forthcoming.



The target is 48 inches in size and is made up of five different colored circles. The center is golden, and then, surrounding it in succession are red, blue, black and white circles. The archer scores nine points for hitting the gold, seven for red, five for blue, three for black and one for the outer white. And the accuracy of the archers, to a newcomer, is surprising. Hits in the gold circle are frequent.

Most of the archers don't shoot at the target. They use the point by aim system, which, in effect, is the same as that used in indirect artillery firing. The reason is obvious when one thinks about it for a moment. When in the bow the arrow is below the eye; hence the archer must aim at an object above the target. In the Valley meet, for instance, one archer centered his aim on the window of a house several hundred yards beyond the target when shooting at 100 yards. He made a good score.

"Easy to Make Your Own."

Many of the archers make their own equipment. "Most of us are gadget hounds,'" laughed an archer, "and live in the basement instead of the living room. We get a kick out of making our own equipment."

The average bow is from five feet nine inches to six feet long. Twenty dollars, one is told, will buy the best bow made, and they may be obtained for as little as three or four dollars. Arrows cost from $3.85 to $7.50 a dozen. Add a finger tab, to keep the fingers from getting sore, and an arm guard, and your archer is fully equipped.

The National tournament will be held in St. Louis in August, and, as a result, it is likely that archery in St. Louis will be greatly stimulated.

And if you see archers shooting on the ranges in the public parks, don't drop any remarks about archery being a "sissy sport." Why, by the time the season is over, every one of those archers could qualify as a walking delegate (from St. Louis or points East) to a convention in San Francisco.

Fireworks Promised in Annual Soccer Convention at Chicago

What promises to be one of the most important meetings in the history of the United States Football Association, will be held in Chicago, tomorrow and Tuesday. Several questions of major importance will come up for discussion when the delegates hold their sessions, following a meeting of the National Commission, today.

Grapevine information has it that one of the major questions to be discussed will be the divorcing of the professionals and amateurs in the kicking game. This has long been the idea of some of the leading figures in the sport, including Thomas W. Cahill, former secretary of the U. S. F. A.

According to information received by the Post-Dispatch, President Elmer A. Schroeder of Philadelphia is in favor of letting the professionals handle their own affairs, through a commission, and that he will make this suggestion to the delegates. Teh pros would still give financial aid to the U. S. F. A., but would be in position where they would not be out-voted by amateurs in important cases.

There are many who figure that this would be a life-saver for the match, which during the past campaign drew more people, but less money, to the national challenge cup contests in which the Stix, Baer & Fuller elecen won the championship.

However, this will be only one of the many questions to be decided. The delegates will have to decide whether or not the United States is to send a team to the next world championships, the finals of which will be played at Rome, in 1934. Preliminaries will be decided by zone competitions as in the Davis Cup tennis play.

There will be several cases of interest to St. Louis. Among them is the application of the St. Louis (professional) League for direct affiliation with the U. S. F. A. and not through the Missouri State Association as is at present the case. Then the Municipal Association delegates will try to straighten out the case of Tom Erbe, former start fullback of the Ben Millers and Stix clubs, who got into some difficulties last season.

Several proposed rule changes also will be up for a hearing during the convention.

Regular sessions of the delegates will be held at the Palmer House, Chicago, tomorrow afternoon and evening, with two more sessions Tuesday. The election of officers will come up at the final meeting. The consensus is that Schroeder will again be elected, if he chooses to run.

Winton E. Barker will be the delegate from the Missouri State Association, with Don Anderson as alternate, while Pete McLaughlin and Tom Lyster will represent the Muny Association.

OUTBOARD MOTORBOAT RACES ON MERAMEC

The St. Louis Outboard Association will hold a program of five motorboat races on the Meramec at Valley Park this afternoon, starting at 2 p. m. The races will be over a one-mile circular course, starting and finishing at Arnold's Beach.

VESS NINE MEETS KIRKWOOD IN TROLLEY FEATURE

The Kirkwood and Vess nines will meet for first place in the Missouri-Illinois Trolley League this afternoon at Kirkwood. Kirkwood is holding a one-game lead over their rivals of today and a defeat for Vess would practically give the Missourians the first half title as only two more weeks remain in the first half of the split season.

Should the Vess club be successful today the two teams will again be in a deadlock. Jimmy Thompson and Glenn Barthelme, a pair of star hurlers, will face each other in this encounter and from previous performances the Kirkwood fans are going to witness a pitchers' battle.

With the St. Louis Dairys having annexed their last three outs, the Belleville outfit will meet Bob Fisher's Bly-Moss squad at North End Park, Belleville.

Manager Fisher has hopes that his team will get started again at the expense of the Belleville club with Eddie Steimann on the hill, while either Jess Doyle or Roy Edelsberger will oppose the St. Louisans.

The Edgemont A. C. will take on the Madison Hubtowners in the other game. Last week saw the East Siders come through with their initial victory of the season, when they disposed of the Vess team, 7 to 2.

All games will start at 3 o'clock.

Indiana Boxer Signs for Bout On Tippett's Card

Jack C. Tippett, matchmaker for the Walter J. Hatzfeld American Legion Post, last night arranged the special portion of his fistic program for Thursday night's professional show at the Battery A open air arena. The complete card for the first open-air show of the summer will be composed of three 10-rounders and a six-round curtain-raiser.

Peewee Jarrell, welterweight from Fort Wayne, Ind., has been signed to trade blows with Joe Red, Little Rock, Ark., battler in the third 10-rounder. Tippett originally wanted to match Red against Huff, but an ear injury, sustained in his recent match with Frankie Hughes at the Arena, caused Huff to turn down the scrap.

Dave Barry and Eddie Edson, a pair of local battlers, will face out-of-town scrappers in the two other 10-round bouts. Barry, a featherweight, who is expected to get somewhere in the fight game, takes on Chick Wagner of Louisville, Ky., and Edson, a middleweight hope, opposes K. O. McClellan, another Kentuckian.

The coming match will mark Barry's first appearance here since he left on his tour of the South last winter. While away he defeated the 14 fighters who faced him. Edson has won nearly all his bouts on knockouts since turning professional.

Tickets, which cost $1.25, 75 cents, 50 cents and 40 cents, are on sale at the Arcade Building, Battery A and National Gymnasium.

MRS. W. R. SMITH WINS HANDICAP PIN MEET

Mrs. W. R. Smith won the annual elimination handicap tournament of the Officers' Club of the St. Louis Women's Bowling Association at Heidel's Recreation when she defeated Miss Peggy Ryan in the finals, two games out of three. Each contestant totaled a three-game series of 531.

The winner and runner-up will be presented with trophies at the annual banquet next Tuesday evening at the German House, at which time other winners of various events in the women's bowling world will also be honored.

NEW YORK FANS TURN ATTENTION TO TITLE BOUT

By Edward J. Neil

Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The paeans of praise for the all-round fighting ability of Max Baer in general, and the destructive might of his right hand in particular, faded to a monotone today as the fight faithful turned to consider the next big heavyweight battle of the outdoor season—Jack Sharkey's 15-round title defense against Primo Carnera, June 29.

It's an axiom of the fight business that one stirring battle is the best possible ballyhood for the next one to come along. If that theory proves true again, then the champion's first title defense and his second meeting with Carnera should attract better than the 51,000 paid attendance and the receipts of $245,000 tha tDempsey lured for his spectacular debut here as a promoter Thursday night.

Fight in Bowl June 29.

Although both Sharkey and Carnera have been in training for the past three weeks, both were submerged in the excitement of the opening outdoor clash of the season between Baer and Max Schmeling, and the aftermath of Baer's sensational knockout of the German in 10 rounds.

The Sharkey-Carnera bout June 29 will be staged by Madison Square Garden in the Bowl on Long Island. Sharkey gave Carnera a thorough trouncing the first time they met in 1931 under the promotion of Jimmy Johnston, whose success at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn brought him into the garden as head of boxing there.

September Match Possible.

The doubtful incentive of a match with Baer in September dangles before the winner of the Garden's open air fiesta, although the situation is crowded with complications. Hailed as a new Dempsey, as far as destructive punching power goes, Baer is definitely aligned with the promoting ventures of the old man mauler.

Sharkey is fighting for the last time under his present contract with the Garden, and if he should win, would be available for a match with Baer under Dempsey's promotion in September. Carnera, if he wins, is bound to the Garden for another year. Sharkey has indicated that he wants but one match this summer, though the lure of the tremendous gate he would be certain to draw with the new sensation might change his mind.

There was the further possibility that if Dempsey and the Garden each winds up with a winner, there might be a pooling of assets for a September match under their joint promotion.

Outboard Boats To Race Today

The first outboard motorboat regatta of the year, sponsored by the Valley Park Business Men's Association and under the auspices of the St. Louis Outboard Association, will be held at Arnold's Beach, Meramec River, this afternoon, starting at 1 o'clock.

There are a number of entries already submitted, and some of these include such drivers as Clem Herr, Lenny Armbruster and John Stevenson, drivers who have won honors in major events.

The Class A race should be the best event of the day, as there are five drivers from St. Louis entered who have been giving each other keen competition for supremacy in this class. Other classes are Displacement Runabout, one heat; Step Runabout, one heat; Class C, two heats. All entries must be in at 1 o'clock.

A mile course has been layed out, with one buoy turn at each end. This course will be patrolled by Government officials during the events, in order to eliminate any interference. Winners of these races will be awarded cash prizes and trophies by the Valley Park Business Men's Association.

The proceeds of the regatta will go to the Holy Name Society of Valley Park.

Charley Flachman, Steve Neilson, Adolph Jacobsmeyer, William Wehmeyer, Ben Schaller, Pat Frank and Miss Lorraine Morrison are some of the outstanding swimmers who have already entered the Western A. A. U. city championship swimming and diving meets which will be held this summer at the Lorelei Swimming Pool, 452o Olive. The first of the series of six titular tank meets will be held Friday night, June 30.

Flachman, during the recent school term while a member of the University of Illinois swimming team, unofficially broke the intercollegiate 100-yard record. Following the local meets he will compete in the National A. A. U. swimming meets to be held in Chicago later in the summer.

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN

PERMANENT EMPLOYMENT. SUBSTANTIAL CASH INCOMES FOR MEN WHO ARE REPUTABLE, ACTIVE AND ADAPTABLE TO THIS KIND OF WORK.

Our business is more active and more successful right now than ever since it was started in 1924 in this country—and substantial, permanent positions are open at once at our St. Louis office for responsible men who want to make money.

This kind of sales work must be studied and learned—our visual method is very unusual—moreover, amazingly efficient. This is a business where diligent, conscientious effort is rewarded with increases, month after month. For instance, one man here made $365.00 in January, $410.00 in February, $482.00 in March, $550.00 in April, $552.00 in May; this man earned $160 for his latest week reported. Another man, Mr. Schwan, made $68.00 for the week; a former auto salesman, O. R. Buford, earned $70.00, while Mr. Alden, who was previously a merchant, made $134.00 that same week.

Men to be selected for these positions may soon meet each of these men among others earning two, three and four times as much as they ever made in clerical, mercantile and mechanical work, banking, selling, engineering. Regardless of previous experience, we train you thoroughly in this 1933 method. We supply all equipment, supplies and training. No deposit, no cost.

RULES THE WEEKS BILL IS NOT SUBJECT TO A REFERENDUM

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 10.—An official opinion that the Weeks bill, which sets up the machinery for Missouri's action on the proposed twenty-first amendment, is not subject to the initiative and referendum law, was given today by Attorney-General Roy McKittrick.

"The Weeks bill," he said, "is the machinery for the state to act upon a Federal constitutional amendment, and the referendum clause of our Constitution cannot in any event deprive the people of Missouri of their right to act on the question, whether or not the eighteenth amendment should be repealed by the proposed twenty-first amendment."

McKittrick, who has just completed a detailed study of the Weeks bill, said it was his opinion that the state-wide election on the proposed twenty-first amendment must be held by Aug. 20, a view also held by Gov. Park.

It is understood here that prohibitionists already have circulated petitions in many parts of the State for a referendum on the Weeks bill.

Should Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown refuse to accept the petitions on the ground that the Weeks bill is not subject to the referendum, it is expected that prohibitionists will file a mandamus suit against him in the Supreme Court. This is the customary procedure in such cases and the Supreme Court's decision, of course, would be binding.

Miss Anne Rumpf Engaged to Marry Dawson J. Burns Jr Of New York City

MR. AND MRS. GUY HENRY RUMPF, 535 Couch avenue, Kirkwood, announce the engagement of their second daughter, Miss Anne Rumpf, and Dawson Jabez Burns Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Jabez Burns of 227 Park avenue, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Rumpf and their family came to St. Louis four years ago from Chicago, where their daughter was graduated from the Latin School for Girls. She attended the St. Louis School of Fine Arts and made her debut two seasons ago. Her romance with Mr. Burns began in New York, where she and Mrs. Rumpf have been since January, and where Miss Rumpf achieved success in social and artistic circles as a model for McClelland Barclay and other noted artists. Their paintings of her have been used on the covers of well-known magazines. A trip to Hollywood for screen tests at the request of several movie producers has been canceled because of her engagement. She and her fiance are spending this week at Mr. Barclay's summer home in Southampton, L. I., where the artist is engaged in painting her for the cover of a summer number of The Red Book. Miss Rumpf plans to go to New York for the summer and will be joined there by her mother. Her marriage will take place in the early fall. Her sister is Mrs. Arthur C. Hickman of Kirkwood, who was Miss Mary Jane Rumpf.

Mr. Burns' family has homes in Bronxville, N. Y., and at Lake Sunapee, N. H. He is an honor graduate of Yale, class of 1931, where he excelled in athletics, and is New England golf champion and New Hampshire open golf champion. His clubs include the Bronxville Riding, Bronxville Field and Siwonay Country Club, also of Bronxville; the Lake Sunapee Country Club at Lake Sunapee, and the Westchester Biltmore Country Club at Rye, N. Y. Mr. Burns is a direct descendant of Robert Burns, the Scottish poet. He is a vice-president of Edie Davidson, Inc., 20 Exchange place, New York, investment consul, and owns the Dawson J. Burns Machinery Co. of New York, which he inherited from his grandfather.

Mr. Burns spent last week-end in St. Louis as the guest of his fiancee and her family, and was entertained informally.

Prof. W. D. Shipton Weds.

Announcements have been received from Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ball, Montgomery City, Mo., of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Martha Lorraine Ball, and Prof. Washburne Denning Shipton, which took place Wednesday in Montgomery City. Prof. Shipton is an associate in the geology department of Washington University. He and Mrs. Shipton will be at home after June 21 at 6821 University drive.

"Florodora" Is Back Again

Famous Musical Play, With Its Double Sextet Expanded to Sixteen and Its Book Brought Up to Date, to Burst Upon the Municipal Opera Stage in Forest Park Tomorrow Night—Nancy McCord Will Sing Role of Dolores.

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

IT HAS been a good many years since "Florodora" first burst upon the theater-going public and was acclaimed, by the critics of New York, with a single exception, as a musical play of little merit. How little those critics knew of what the public wanted became apparent when "Florodora" established itself immediately as the smashing hit of the year—that was late in 1899—and ran for 547 consecutive performances at the old Casino Theater in the metropolis. Now, revised and brought up to date with, we dare say, the addition of motor cars and things like that and even the world famous double sextet expanded to become a double octet it returns to the stage in Forest Park tomorrow night as the attraction for the second week of the summer's Municipal Opera offering.

Scattered to the four winds are the members of the "original" sextet—we are speaking of the young women, no one ever paid any attention to what happened to the six boys. The girls took New York by storm and married off, so fast and so well, that it soon became a matter of considerable bookkeeping to keep track of just who the originals were.

IT so happens that the first evening of our very first visit to New York, way back in 1900, was spent at the Casino Theater where, from a point of vantage in the uppermost gallery we saw one of the earlier performances of "Florodora." History — theatrical history that is—records that on that occasion—although not, we believe, especially in our honor—we were entertained by the original members of the sextette for the rush to the stage door by rich and eligible young men, while on, had not reached the marrying stage. The six young women then who warbled, with their six boy friends, the catchy "Oh, Tell Me Pretty Maiden" number were Margaret Walker, Vaughn Texsmith, Marie Wilson, Marjorie Relyea, Agnes Wayburn and Daisy Green. According to the best information available, these "pretty maidens" are all married and, save one, living in various cities throughout the country.

Margaret Walker was last reported splitting her time between Washington, D. C., and Riverside, Cal. Previously she had resided in Atlantic City, N. J.

Vaughn Texsmith is Mrs. Isaac J. Hall, widow of a Paterson, N. J. silk manufacturer, and is the managing head of the silk plant.

Marie Wilson is now Mrs. Fred Gebhard of Washington, D. C., and is very much in society in the Capital.

Agnes Wayburn married a wealthy resident of Johannesburg, Africa, and is living there.

While many choose to remember Edna Wallace Hopper as the "seventh" of the "Florodora" girls, Miss Hopper, who now lives at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York and is known over the radio by her electrical transcriptions, lets all know that she was not of the chorus, but was the "original Florodora Girl," singing, after a fashion, the role of Lady Hollyrood, a part which falls to Doris Patston in the Forest Park production.

ST. LOUIS' closest connection with an "original'" member of the famous sextet was through Nan Patterson. Nan wasn't actually one of the first six although she always claimed to have been. She got in however soon after the show started, taking the place of the first girl to marry a millionaire and retire. Nan also picked herself a man who was in the big money, Caesar Young, a gambler and bookmaker who spent his summers in St. Louis taking wagers on the races at the old Fair Grounds track.

Unfortunately for Nan, Young was already married, but the pair became something more than just good friends. Suddenly the theatrical and sporting world was startled by the murder of Caesar Young. Nan Patterson, one of the loveliest butterflies of Broadway, was arrested and charged with the crime. She spent nearly a year in the Tombs before she was finally set free. She tried to come back on the stage after that, but never really got going again and dropped out of sight. Then, in 1910, she was heard from again when she was married here in St. Louis to Capt. Sumner Prescott, son of a wealthy Cincinnati family. That marriage was a success, Nan's first real success except for her brief Broadway fame in the sextet and she and her husband have lived together happily in the Northwest for many years.

The girls who will make up the "Oh Tell Me Pretty Maiden" line—eight of 'em now instead of six—tomorrow night in Forest Park are Kelly Brown, Dimples Reide, Renee Gordon, Sally Lynn, Sally Argo, Billy Fanning, Sylkes Fontaine and Sally Warren.

"FLORODORA," you may recall, isn't the name of a Pretty Maiden. It is the name of a perfume, and of the mythical island upon which the perfume is manufactured and from which it takes its name. The heroine is Dolores, orphaned daughter of the discoverer of the formula from which the perfume is made. That role brings to Municipal Opera as a prima donna Nancy McCord, whose only appearance in St. Louis was as the high-spirited Marie in "Three Little Girls," which opened the season of 1931.

Of Irish-American parentage, born on Long Island, she early showed a genuine gift of voice and won a scholarship in the Juilliard Graduate School of Music, where she became the pupil and protege of Mme. Marcella Sembrich. By her Miss McCord was recommended to the American Opera Company, which the late George Eastman, founder of the Eastman School of Music sponsored. Her success with that organization attracted the attention of J. J. Shubert and she was engaged by him for operetta roles. Since then she has appeared as soloist in concert with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

Surrounding Miss McCord is a cast with such singing favorites as Allan Jones and Leonard Ceeley, and such funmakers as George Hassell, who makes his first appearance of the season as Tweedlepunch, and Charles Lawrence; with Hannah Tobac, Doris Patston, Nick Long Jr., Helen Arnold, Elizabeth Crandall, Ethel Barrymore Colt, Marie Starner and Victor Casmore among others. A feature of the production will be Rosemary Deering and the Municipal Opera dancers in Miss Deering's "Hunt Ballet."

Robertson Singing In Coast Operetta

Guy Robertson, long a local favorite with Municipal Opera audiences, but who did not return to the cast in Forest Park this summer, is singing in musical productions out on the Pacific Coast. This spring he was with the Frank Fay-Barbara Stanwyck musical, "Tattle Tales" until it started Eastward and last Monday night he opened in San Francisco with the revival of Victor Herbert's "The Only Girl." Dick Powell, former master of ceremonies at the Ambassador Theater was also in the piece as was Jack Sheehan, Sheehan, a favorite comedian with Municipal Opera fans, is to return to St. Louis shortly to rejoin the big cast in the park.

New Bill at Highlands.

Harry Lange and his "15 Musical Merrymakers" have arranged a program of singing, dancing, clowning and college tunes, as the main feature of the free entertainment bill at Forest Park Highlands. The production is entitled "Commencement Exercises." Another feature will be a song and dance offering, entitled "A Trip Around the World," presented by Emma Niedhammer. There will be 25 nationalities represented in the offering.

Nancy McCord, in the Municipal Opera's "Florodora."

Skouras, Dickering For the Fox House, Secure the St. Louis

THE Central Theatres, Inc.—which is another name for a Skouras Brothers enterprise since the Skourases are barred from re-entering the local field for another year under their contract with Warner Brothers, who bought them out several years ago—has secured control of the closed St. Louis Theater on Grand avenue. In the meantime Spiros Skouras has been in St. Louis for a week dickering with the receivers of the Fox Theater for control of that house. The deal is still hanging fire.

The Skourases now control, through Central Theatres, the Grand Central, Missouri and St. Louis, all bunched together along Grand avenue, and the Ambassador down town. The Fox would give them control of the St. Louis big house field with the exception of Loews, which is not in the market for any deals or trades.

Just what will be done with the St. Louis is not yet apparent but it will probably be linked up in some way with the chain of neighborhood houses controlled by the St. Louis Amusement Company, which would bring the Skouras boys and Harry Koplar together again.

Claire Trevor Now Playing in Films

Claire Trevor is the next film actress Spencer Tracy will fall for. The blonde actress who played in the stock company at the Grand Central Theater here has been assigned to play opposite Tracy in the Fox film, "Shanghai Madness." Miss Trevor recently left New York, where she had resigned the leading feminine role in "The Party's Over," to take a Fox contract.

Dorothea Wieck's First.

Paramount's first production for Dorothea Wieck, recently imported from Germany after her international success in "Maedchen in Uniform," has been titled "White Woman." Walter Abel, Broadway actor now under contract to Paramount, has been assigned to a role in the production.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS - - By Nie

EDWARD G. ROBINSON, whose gangster films have been uniformly good and, just as equally successful, turns in another swell performance in "The Little Giant" at the Ambassador. Still a hoodlum and a Public Enemy in Chicago, he begins a career of reformation this time and with a million and a half made in the beer racket decides to become a gentleman and a scholar. You see when the Government cut in on the beer game with the new deal Robinson figured his graft was off anyway so he moved to Santa Barbara, rented a mansion, hired Mary Astor as a social secretary and commenced to pry his way into California's 400. If he had let Mary pick his friends he would have done all right, too, but he went out on his own and got tangled up with a banker's family which just didn't belong. First thing you know his new friends had swindled him out of most of his cash and he had to call in his old Chicago mob to get it back again. The boys come to his aid, put him on his feet once more and the tremendously amusing picture winds up with a polo game that is a scream. And, oh, yes, the Little Giant wins Mary Astor.

Shades of the Past.

WE dare say Auber's old light opera, "Fra Diavolo," has been sung in St. Louis since we heard it, a good many years ago, at Uhrig's Cave but it has never been better sung than it is being done at Loew's this week where, as "The Devil's Brother," it has been revamped as a comedy for Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy. The rough and tumble pair have been tossed into the opus as a couple of amateur bandits and, fortunately enough, have nothing to do with the singing. That part of the show is left to Dennis King, whose fine, rich voice shows to great advantage in Auber's music. The high spots of the original score, the familiar airs of several decades ago, have been retained and enough of the idea of the book kept in to make the picture version of the opera dimly recognizable so that "The Devil's Brother" offers several different kinds of entertainment.

Modern Musi-Comedy.

WHEELER and Woolsey, on the other hand, stick close to the present idea of musical comedy in "Diplomaniacs" at the Missouri. Returning to pretty clean fun after their dash into the gutter in "So This Is Africa," a few months ago, the slapstick comedians get a lot of fun out of being delegates to a world conference at Geneva, where all of the nations are determined to have peace even if they have to fight for it. They do fight, too, and Wheeler and Woolsey are in the thick of it. The story is absured of course, but very funny and there are some catchy tunes and a lot of good looking girls.

More Singing.

YOU will have a hard time getting away from music this week. Out at the Fox "It's Great to Be Alive" is another musical comedy affair which begins in the present and stretches out to the year 1940, when a strange new disease has wiped out the male population of the whole world. Only Raul Roulian is left to represent the sterner sex and, just in passing it might be remarked that he is not so very stern. How the ladies from the United States, Europe, Asia and Africa battle for him makes a rather silly film even for warm weather. Roulian, a South American stage favorite, is making his bow to the screens of this country in "It's Great to Be Alive." Edna May Oliver, Herbert Mundin, Gloria Stuart and Joan Marsh are in the cast, which helps considerably.

Ghosts.

HOLLYWOOD is not through with horror pictures just yet for the Grand Central has a weird thing called "Supernatural" which is all of that. Coffins, funerals, murders and spiritualists get pretty well tangled together in an impossible yarn about an executed murderess whose spirit enters the body of a nice young girl and makes her a killer. It's probably meant to be very exciting, but isn't, really. Carole Lombard is the good gal gone wrong and Randolph Scott is her trusting boy friend who finally sets things right. The Grand Central's No. 2 feature is "Daring Daughters," another example of the flaming youth theme.

Civic Music League Has a Fine Program For Coming Season

CIVIC MUSIC LEAGUE announces it will round out its program for five concert attractions for next season with the engagement of Shan-Kar and his company of East Indian dancers, who, by bringing the authentic dance and music of the Far East to Gotham, became the dancing sensation of the New York season, which has just been completed, and by the engagement of Dusolini Gianini, soprano, who has just returned from European triumphs.

The coming season's program will be arranged to avoid conflicts with the Washington University Association's lecture series, and the program, as now prepared, will offer: On Tuesday, Nov. 14, Shan-Kar and his dancers; Tuesday, Nov. 28, Jose Iturbi, the Spanish pianist; Tuesday, Jan. 23, Heinrich Schlusnus, leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera until its recent curtailment, leading baritone of the Berlin Staatsoper and one of the best known lieder singers in the world; Tuesday, Feb. 6, Nathan Milstein, the young Russian violin virtuoso, and on Tuesday, March 13, Dusolini Gianini, soprano.

The Film's Sancho Panzas

Making a Star Is a Ticklish and Uncertain Business, and After the Lights Begin to Twinkle and The Luminary Goes Hollywood and Temperamental The Boy Who Really Turned the Trick Has His Hands Full—Some of the Successful Examples.

BETWEEN every delicate little motion picture star and the cruel world at large there is a shock-trooper, a one-man buffer who takes the raps, wraps the takes, and knows the answer to every question and every problem that may arise. Every problem that involves his client, that is.

Sometimes they're secretaries, sometimes they're lawyers, sometimes they're cousins, uncles, or brothers, sometimes they're just friends on the payroll. Hollywood dignifies them all by the title "personal manager." They play Panzo to a million and one quixotic conceits and foibles. They catch tears, bouquets and abuse with equal dexterity and fortitude. And their individuality always is submerged, their lives dominated, by the flood of work and worries that swirl about those from whom they collect their salary. They are, in most cases, silent Boswells content to do their writing on the backs of checks—their employers' checks.

Many of them should be credited with the success of their charges. For many a Hollywood star-gem has risen and become brilliant only through the lifting and the polishing efforts of someone whose penetrating vision could see a diamond or a ruby in the rough. Very rough indeed, at times!

THERE are those who will tell you that Rudolph Valentino's fame was founded on two strong supports: his own unquestionable talents, and those of S. George Ullman, his manager through several years. Harry Eddington, former motion picture producer, carefully, from the background, engineered the undeniably successful career of Greta Garbo. Eddington made Garbo the recluse that she is. Some say that she had no alternative, that it was good business as well as good theater. But at any rate he's the man responsible for it.

Ernest Lubitsch always acted as Pola Negri's unofficial and unremunerated adviser from the time of her arrival—an event made possible through the direction of her most famous German picture, "Gipsy Blood." Josef von Sternberg watched every moment of Marlene Dietrich's Hollywood career all through its course. Ralph Blum, a Hollywood attorney, carried the Von Sternbergian proxy in times of the master's absence.

One of the most interesting artiste-manager associations extant is that between La Belle Mae West—who can think pretty well for herself—and James O. Timony, who has guided her business destiny for 14 years. In 1919 Timony was a New York lawyer, political adviser, show angel, and man-about-Broaway. Mae, at the moment, was co-starred in a show with Ed Wynne, a fact here inserted merely to keep the record straight. Timony, with a keen eye for the future—his and hers—got to Mae, convinced her that, with his managerial help, she could reach the heights, and they've been doing right well together since that day.

Perhaps the fact that Mae needed a lawyer a good part of the time had something to do with her choice for Miss West has had a lot of trouble with the police since she started writing and playing her sex dramas. Once even the astute Mr. Timony and all his legal ability was unable to keep the star out of the hoosegow for a considerable period of time.

GARY COOPER'S manager is Jack Moss, a corpulent, quiet, business-wise, and sometimes profane shock-absorber who can say "no" with a more positive finality than many men can achieve. "Mr. Cooper would like to own this eighteen-cylinder-super-special racing model town car," a hopeful salesman will suggest. "The hell you say,'" Moss will growl. "'Try and sell it to ME first." It's a challenge that few salesmen, even thick-skinned ones, choose to accept.

Dorothea Wieck, Paramount's charming new German star, has a manager she brought with her from Berlin—or possibly it was the other way around. For he, Georg Gumpel, is a Teutonic dynamo of physical energy and business shrewdness. A few days after they arrived in Hollywood a bewildered and almost hysterical garage owner called the studios and wailed, "Say, come on over here and call off this Gumbel fellow before he takes my back teeth away from me. You sent him over here to buy a Ford and he wants me to throw in a Lincoln with it, as a bonus. And I'm just about to do it."

Jack Oakie, for some years, was under the managership of Wesley Ruggles, the director. Ruggles directed Oakie in his first picture, "Finders Keepers," and in fact "discovered" the popular, then unknown, comedian for the small bit he played. Ruggles saw Oakie, signed him under personal contract, and lived to pat himself on the back for the deal.

ROLAND WEST, long inactive as a director, had a similar deal with Chester Morris. Morris' first real part was in "Alibi." The contract signed between them at that time has held up until just a few days ago. In many ways it worked a hardship on Morris, for West has been in Europe some months, and therefore was unable to give Chester the personal handling that most managers are expected to deliver.

Maurice Chevalier, frugal and French, generally handles his own business dealings, but employs a secretary to answer letters, arrange interviews and apppointments, and to act as a buffer between his private life and an acquisitive, inquisitive, public.

Helen Twelvetrees' manager is Jack Woody, one-time motion picture stunt man and actor, now her husband. Sari Maritza's business affairs are looked after by Vivian Gaye, an attractive English girl who at one time was active in theatrical publicity work in London. Miss Gaye, through shrewd handling and excellent judgment, guided Miss Maritza through a series of European pictures and so pointed her career that Hollywood could not avoid inviting her to join its stellar ranks.

Carole Lombard has the benefit of long Hollywood experience in her adviser. He is William Powell, her husband, for whom the film colony and its ways are no secret. Bing Crosby, just finished with his part in "College Humor," is managed by his older brother, Edmund. Miriam Hopkins, Claudette Colbert and Sylvia Sidney, like many another player, divide managerial responsibilities. A lawyer looks after their studio contracts and dealings, a banker watches their financial affairs and investments.

Here And There On The Air

King George's Address on KSD at 8 A. M. Tomorrow.

THE opening of the World Economic Conference in London and King George's address of welcome to the delegates will be broadcast tomorrow morning over KSD and KMOX, beginning at 7:58. Originally, the conference was scheduled to open at 5 o'clock in the morning St. Louis time. However, petitions from network executives, saying that few American listeners would hear the proceedings at so early an hour, resulted in setting the conference opening three hours later. Of course, the clarity of the broadcast will depend on static and general weather conditions over the ocean. Engineers expect that reception by the powerful short wave stations at the end of Long Island will be good. Transmission from these stations to the network key stations for broadcasting over the chains offers no difficulties.

Premier Ramsey MacDonald's address probably will be included in the broadcast.

Henderson Would Sell His Station.

"HELLO WORLD" HENDERSON, whose aggressive talks over his station, KWKH, Shreveport, La., brought him national prominence several years ago, is reported by Martin Codel as seeking to get out of broadcasting. He is said to have given an option on KWKH to Sam D. Hunter, a Shreveport oil man, with the sale price of the station set at $50,000, conditional on approval of the transfer by the Radio Commission. Whether the commission will approve is problematical, in view of the report of Examiner Pratt that KWKH should be taken off the air to give full time to WWL, the Loyola University station at New Orleans, on the cleared channel that the two stations have been sharing. Several months ago WWL asked for KWKH's time allotment, contending that it could give listeners superior service. Henderson's feud with Senator Huey Long of Louisiana has resulted in the Senator urging that Henderson be deprived of his radio privileges.

Policemen May Be Walking Radio Stations.

WARDEN LEWIS LAWES of Sing Sing prison has applied to the Federal Radio Commission for ultra-short wave lengths with which to experiment with portable radio equipment to be carried by prison guards. Warden Lawes proposes to experiment with light-weight radio transmitters and receivers, so compact that they can be strapped to the backs of the guards, with which the guards can talk to one another when at guard-house stations or on foot. The radio equipment would also be useful during prison riots or breaks.

SING SING is the first prison to seek wave lengths of its own for this purpose. Radio Commission records reveal that more than 100 police departments in as many cities use one-way radio from headquarters to cruising cars, and that Boston, Providence, Syracuse, Buffalo, Bayonne and Eastchester, Mass., also use two-way radio on their cruising cars. The development of exceedingly light two-way equipment in recent months augurs extension of this service henceforth, for the sending sets can be operated by nontechnicians as easily as the receiving sets can be operated. The portable equipment usually uses lapel microphones of the type used on the floor of the Republican and Democratic national conventions last year—microphones that can be pinned to the coat and are not much larger than a silver dollar.

THE complete outfits are now being made as light as six pounds, most of the weight being the batteries that power the transmitters. They have a range of several miles and use wave lengths of the order of 60,000 kilocycles (five meters). The receivers are in the unit and take up little space. In fact, receiving sets have been built that are so small they can be encased in an ordinary pocket watchcase. That virtually all policemen some day will carry receivers, if not transmitting outfits as well, is regarded by radio experts as certain. Indeed, experiments with light-weight and compact receiving sets by British and German policemen have already proved highly successful.

A dramatization of Guy de Maupassant's story, "How He Got the Legion of Honor Medal" will be broadcast at 6 o'clock today over KMOX.

Carl Sandburg is to read some of his poetry to his own guitar accompaniment at 5:15 today over the WJZ chain, including KWK.

"Happiness House," a new dramatic series, will begin at 9:30 Tuesday morning on the CBS net, including KMOX.

A play based on Professor Piccard's stratosphere ascents will be broadcast over KSD and the WEAF chain at 8:30 tomorrow night. It will be followed by eight talks by noted aviators and scientists that will lead up to Piccard's attempt to set a balloon ascent record observation flight next month over Chicago.

Radio engineers are in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, to meet James Mattern, 'round-the-world flyer, who plans to make his first landing in Canada there. If all goes as planned, the WEAF and WJZ chains will carry a broadcast by Mattern.

KMOX has begun announcing last-minute changes in programs which come too late for corrections in listings carried by the newspapers.

H. V. Kaltenborn, who is in London to report the World Economic Conference for the CBS chain, will speak over KMOX at 5:30 today on the conference outlook.

WMAQ will broadcast its radio summer school programs, starting June 26. There will be two 15-minute programs daily except Saturdays and Sundays.

Bar X Days and Nights, the CBS chain program based on days in the Old West, will shift from Mondays to 7:45 Saturday night.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, will discuss the industry control bill during KSD'S Radio Forum period, at 8:30 next Tuesday night.

Will Rogers' broadcast tonight is supposed to be his last in this series. Fred Stone will take his place next Sunday night. The program will continue through the summer, but Rogers' successor has not been determined.

New Majestic Auto Receiver Introduced Here.

A new Majestic-"twin-six" auto receiver, with six-inch dynamic speaker, is just being introduced by the Electric Lamp and Supply Co., distributor. Production of this set—Model 66—is under way, according to Herman Hollender, president of the firm, and deliveries are being made.

The set has a special superheterodyne circuit using the new seven-prong pentode tubes throughout, and gives eight-tube performance through dual operation of two tubes. It is all in one unit, which is suspended on brackets bolted to the bulkhead of a car, and the airplane type control is clamped on the steering column, at the driver's finger tips.

Five Boys Added to Troop for World Jamboree During Week.

Five more Boy Scouts from the St. Louis Council have registered to attend the World Jamboree at Godollo, near Budapest, Hungary, it was announced last week. The St. Louis troop now numbers 17, with one additional member from St. Paul.

The latest additions to the scout grand tour are Harry B. Kircher Jr., Troop 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Kircher, 5548 Chamberlain avenue; Randolph J. Lorch, Troop 178, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Lorch, 3778 Holly Hills boulevard; Charles T. Dee, Troop 153, son of Mrs. Emma T. Dee, 128 Bemiston avenue, Clayton; Frederick A. Schultz, Troop 33, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Schultz, 3402 Longfellow boulevard, and Ned Russell, Troop 153, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Russell, 89 Arundel place, Clayton.

Preparation for the European trip last week included application for passports and visas, inoculation for typhoid and smallpox, a rigid physical examination and the gathering together of official Jamboree packs. The troop will go in training for the Jamboree at a special five-day camp at Irondale beginning June 23.

Patrol leaders will be selected there and the scouts will rehearse stunts which they will demonstrate at the Jamboree. The scouts will return to St. Louis for June 28 and leave the next day for New York. They sail on July 1.

While these scouts were getting ready for their European tour others have been preparing for the annual camparall to be held in Forest Park on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Last week 12 boys qualified to participate in the model airplane show to be held in conjunction with the camparall.

In the contest for commercial or fuselage type planes, Billy Pacoe placed first with a flight of six minutes and two seconds. He was followed by Dick Courtial, Ewing Dryden, Donald Lueke, Bernard Groll and Ray Mueller.

In the glider event Dick Courtial placed first with a remarkable flight of 40 minutes, 39 second. Courtial's glider soared so high, however, that the judges, despite binoculars, finally lost it and it was never recovered. Other qualifiers were Billy Pascoe, Edward Levy, Lee Schubert, Wilbur Weiss and Oliver Volk.

First place prize in both events is a free trip to the Chicago Fair; second, two weeks at the Irondale Camp; and third, a complete ground course at Parks airport.

Wheelbase 114 Inches—Speed Up to 85 M. P. H.—Automatic Clutch Feautre.

The Continental Automobile Co. has begun shipping all models of the new Ace line from its Grand Rapids plant. The Mississippi Valley Motor Co. is the St. Louis distributer.

The Ace, the big six of the Continental lines, with list prices from $725 to $875 at factory, completes the trio of new cars that were introduced by the veteran motor builder the first of the year.

Wheelbase is 114 inches. The 85-horsepower Red Seal motor, it is said, will drive the Ace at 85 miles per hour.

Colors give a variety of light and dark shades. Standard models have five wire wheels. There are wood wheels and fender wells on the deluxe models.

The front seat is instantly adjustable. Emergency brake lever is at the left of the driver. Front seat is 44 inches wide, while the rear seat of the sedan models measures 47 inches.

The three-point engine mounting is called "winged power" and is said to absorb torque and engine vibration. The mountings consist of saddle type rubber in the rear and two rubber cored coiled springs in front.

The Red Seal engine has a bore and stroke of 3⅜ inches by 4 inches, compression ratio of 5.23 to 1, and develops 85 horsepower at 3600 r. p. m.

The centrifugal automatic clutch —exclusive on all Continental Ace models—operates on a centrifugal principle through a series of integral weights built into the clutch. It does not rely on outside vacuum control, and whenever the engine speed falls below 400 r. p. m., equivalent to between seven and eight miles in high gear, the clutch automatically disengages before the engine can stall, thus making it necessary to shift to a lower gear, or accelerate the speed.

Hawks' Record Flight Made in 'Plane With An Air-Cooled Engine

Spanning the continent in 13 hours, 21 minutes in his Skychief, powered with a 14-cylinder radial air-cooled Wright engine that developed 700 horsepower, Lieutenant Commander Frank Hawks added another chapter to the history of air cooling.

Taking off from Los Angeles at 5:51 a. m. (Pacific standard time), he was not seen again until he arrived over Floyd Bennett Field, N. Y., at 10:16 p. m. (Eastern standard time). This flight cut his own previous record by more than four hours.

With a mechanical robot pilot at the controls, Hawks did not experience the usual strain of piloting a fast ship hour after hour without stopping for rest. With his engine functioning perfectly Hawks had but to watch his instruments to see that all was going well. The robot pilot and air-cooling have been hobbies of the Commander for years.

Ever since he purchased his first Franklin, he has refused to be worried by water-cooling troubles, either in the air or on the ground.

Three Sport Models On 2 Chassis Added To Pierce-Arrow Lines

To meet a definite demand that has developed with the strengthening of the fine-car market, Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co., announces three distinctive new sport models—a convertible coupe roadster, a convertible five-passenger sedan and a sport coupe with rumble seat. All three body types will be offered in both eight-cylinder and 12-cylinder groups.

In the eight-cylinder group, the new cars will be powered with Pierce-Arrow's 135 horsepower engine and have a wheelbase of 136 inches. Factory list prices will range from $2795 to $3100.

The 12-cylinder models will be powered with the same 160 horsepower engine used by Ab Jenkins last September in his record 24-hour run on the salt beds of Utah. Cars of this group also will have a wheelbase of 136 inches and be priced from $3195 to $3500.

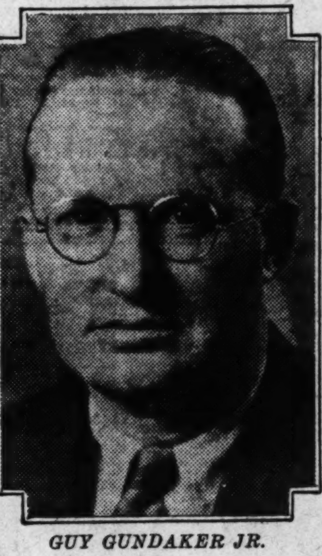
Goodrich Executive Here for Conferences



GUY GUNDAKER JR.

Sales promotion manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., who was in St. Louis Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, conferring with William Stonestreet, branch manager of the Goodrich Co.; William Boulboulle, operating manager, and Earle E. Gordon, manager of Goodrich-Silvertown, Inc., in outlining Goodrich's sales and sales promotion activities for the remainder of the year.

Commenting on business conditions, Gundaker said that since the introduction of the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown "Golden Ply" tire, the Goodrich plants had been working 24 hours a day—seven days a week, with resultant greatly increased employment.

Gundaker pointed out that today's high speeds, 40, 50, 60 and 70 miles per hour, generate considerable heat inside a tire, many times causing rubber and fabric to separate. A blister forms, enlarges and finally explodes or blows out. Gundaker said that the Life Saver Golden Ply has been designed to resist the most intense heat, in order to prevent rubber and fabric separation.

"Old Scout," the curved-dash, single-cylinder Oldsmobile, left Lansing, Mich., for Chicago a few days ago bearing a congratulatory message from Gov. William Comstock of Michigan to Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors. The occasion was the formal dedication of the General Motors Exhibit Building, largest privately-built structure at the Century of Progress Exposition.

The old car was piloted to Chicago by Dwight B. Huss, who in 1905 drove it to victory in the first transcontinental automobile race held in America. That race started from New York 28 years ago this month, and finished 44 days later at the Lewis and Clark Exposition in Portland, Ore. Two years ago Huss, again driving "Old Scout," retraced his route of former years between New York and Portland.

Huss drove "Old Scott" the 218 miles from Lansing to Chicago in two days with one overnight stop, hitting up to 28 miles per hour on the straightaways.

Plymouth Sales Head Addresses Salesmen Here

H. G. Moock Says Wednesday of Previous Week Saw Plymouth Production Record Set.

H. G. Moock, general sales manager of the Plymouth Motor Corporation, was the principal speaker Monday at a breakfast meeting of dealers and salesmen held at the Coronado Hotel. At noon, Moock was a guest of the St. Louis Automotive Association at a luncheon.

"Plymouth sales in the St. Louis territory are going ahead by leaps and bounds," Moock told the salesmen. "There is no doubt in anybody's mind that the automobile business generally is on the upturn. Plymouth in particular is breaking all sales and production records, and May will be the biggest month in our history. When I left the factory last night, we had 25,000 unfilled orders on hand.

Today, more than 80 per cent of all sales are being made in the low-priced field and the "big three" are selling more of the market this year than ever before, with Plymouth leading the parade of increases.

Plymouth's sales increases are not confined to any one section of the country. They are pretty general in all parts of the United States, which is, of course, a good indication of a healthy state of affairs.

"I wish you could see the activity at the Plymouth factory. Last Wednesday was the biggest production day in our entire history—1800 completed cars came off the assembly line and last week was the record week of all time for sales by Plymouth dealers nationally."

Chevrolet Builds 276,827 Units in Five Months of 1933

With a total output of 68,538 new cars and trucks in May, the Chevrolet Motor Co. in the first five months of this year already has built more than 70 per cent as many units as in the full year of 1932, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, announces.

Production in May was higher than at any time since June, 1931, and it was the second month this year to exceed in volume any single month of 1932.

The May figure of 68,500 units compares with 50,672 in the corresponding month last year, an increase of 35 per cent, and with 59,953 in April this year.

Knudsen said that from the first of this year through May 31 his company had built 276,827 new cars and trucks, or more than 37,000 more than in the same five months last year; this despite the interrupted schedules during the March bank holiday.

Brakes on Third of Cars in Dangerous Condition, Merry Says

One of three autos being operated on the streets of St. Louis has brakes that would prove dangerous in case of an emergency stop, according to H. C. Merry, Inc., which is co-operating with the Safety Council in its national brake safety campaign.

The ratio is arrived at by recording the condition of brakes on cars brought in by owners for inspection. The records also show that relatively simple adjustments are sufficient to remedy faults in brakes that are dangerous.

As a corrective measure, the public is being urged to make brake inspection a part of routine car maintenance. Most drivers check their oil and tires frequently, but ignore the brakes on which their safety depends.

Usually a thorough brake inspection requires little time—much less than the motorist realizes. Adjustments must be skilfully made by experts, but are neither expensive nor time consuming. Costs of brake relining are so low at present that there is no longer any excuse for using second grade linings.

H. C. Merry, Inc., 3920 Lindell boulevard, specializes in complete brake service with electrical testers and special tools.

Pontiac Sales Up, R. K. White Reports

National retail sales of the Pontiac straight eight in the last 10-day period of March were larger than the total of deliveries in the first 20 days of the month, it is stated by Sales Manager R. K. White.

"In the first 20 days of March, Pontiac retail sales totaled 2554 units, a figure which was adversely affected by the national banking holiday," said White. "The lifting of the moratorium, however, brought a sharp increase in Pontiac deliveries, which continued through the last 10 days, when 2653 cars were sold. This brought the total for the month to 5207 units."

Drivers' Reactions Tested.

Each applicant for a driver's permit in the District of Columbia is tested by means of an apparatus to measure the length of time which elapses after he sees an obstruction and before he is able to take his foot off the accelerator and put on the brake. The applicant places his foot on one pedal, representing the accelerator, and is instructed to shift over to the other pedal as soon as a red light on the apparatus lights up.

Driving Strategy Won 500-Mile Race Classic for Meyer

In winning the 1933 Indianapolis race, setting a new track record and becoming the second man in 22 years to win the event twice, Lou Meyer, 29-year-old Californian, displayed skill, daring and calculated strategy. At the lineup for the start Meyer's car was seventh, or No. 1 in the third row. At 50 miles he had stepped up to the fifth place at 75 to fourth. He gained third place at 100 miles and at 125 was second to Fred Frame.

Then Babe Stapp, who had come up to third, took the lead which he held from 150 to beyond 300 miles with Meyer maintaining a steady pace behind him while the average for the leading car shrank from 111.463 miles an hour to 109.802. From then on Meyer's mount was never headed.

As in his 1928 victory, Meyer's car was equipped with Champion spark plugs, as were the mounts of all the other drivers who finished the race. The 1933 race was the tenth consecutive Memorial day race which has been won by Champion-equipped cars.

RUGGED!

Half a million miles at 1/14¢ a mile for service That's TERRAPLANING!

If you want a car that will stand up, the Essex Terraplane must stand first on your list.

Daily records of expense have been kept by hundreds of Terraplane owners, and sworn to before a notary. They show only one-fourteenth of a cent for service, including tire repairs, for nearly half a million miles of driving.

Hudson unit-construction has built into the Essex Terraplane a degree of ruggedness which no other car can have—because the Terraplane is the only unit-built car.

We believe that Terraplanes are more severely used by their owners than any other cars—and for one reason. Owners have proved that a Terraplane can take any kind of punishment with a smile, and without repair bills. When you feel the smoothness of the Terraplane engine, and sense the solid construction of body and frame, you will know why.

"314 miles in one day through those mountains? You must have been exhausted, Molly!"

"Not in a Terraplane, Phil. No gear-shifting on hills. No bumps. No vibration. And lovely cushions. You and Tess will never know till you try one."

All 5 Studebaker Cars in First 12 Finishing 500-Mile Race

None of Them Needed Mechanical Repairs—All Averaged Faster Than 96 M.P.H.

Only 14 cars of 42 starters finished the 500-mile run, and every one of the Studebaker team drove through to the end. Each of the Studebakers had been driven in the Memorial day race of 1932 and had won cash prizes in that event.

Of the first 12 cars to finish the race, seven were powered with Studebaker motors. One, which finished in sixth place, had a Commander motor and the others had President motors.

The racing cars ranged from high-priced, 'handmade' cars to semi-stock models. Some cost more than was spent on the entire Studebaker team. The crowd watched many of these high priced jobs drop out. Drivers of others had to make mechanical repairs to stay in the race.

"The race this year was marked with several accidents. Every time there was an accident, the yellow flag was displayed ordering the cars to slow and to hold their positions. Then there were the required refueling stops. The slowing of the race and the forced stops cost the drivers much time. Yet all of the Studebakers averaged better than 96 miles an hour for the entire 500 miles. Of course, they all had to travel a great deal faster to maintain such high averages. All of these cars qualified for the race at speeds above 110 and up to 115 miles per hour.

All five Studebakers finished at speeds from 99.071 to 96.527 miles per hour. There was a difference of less than two and one-half miles per hour between all their averages for the race.

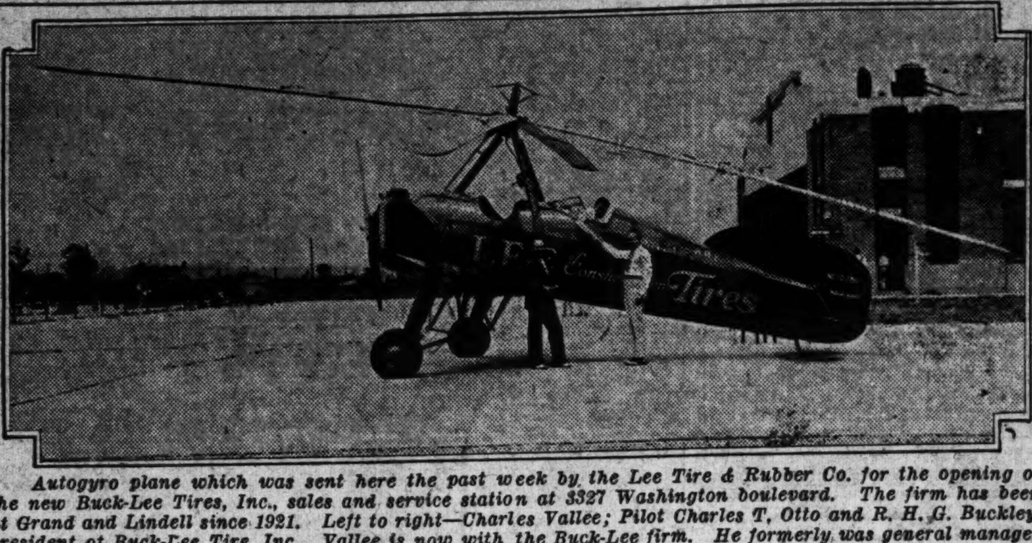
Autogyro Flies Here for Tire Station Opening



Autogyro plane which was sent here the past week by the Lee Tire & Rubber Co. for the opening of the new Buck-Lee Tires, Inc., sales and service station at 3327 Washington boulevard. The firm has been at Grand and Lindell since 1921. Left to right—Charles Vallee; Pilot Charles T. Otto and R. H. G. Buckley, president of Buck-Lee Tire, Inc. Vallee is now with the Buck-Lee firm. He formerly was general manager for the Lee Rubber Co. in Kansas City and also was with the managzine "Motor Age". He started in the tire business with Bettel Leftwich Co., Lee distributor here in 1913. The Lee Tire & Rubber Co., Coshocton, Ohio, is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

There are only eight of this large-type autogyro, according to Buckley. The ship cost $15,800. It is piloted by Otto, who has taken up 3650 persons in 11 weeks in the East and Midwest states. Many St. Louisans were taken up for sight-seeing trips.

More Dodge Cars Shipped in 5 Months Than in All of 1932

Dodge Brothers Corporation plants shipped more Dodge six and eight cylinder passenger cars in the first five months of this year than were shipped in all of 1932.

A. Van Der Zee, general sales manager for Dodge, also says that while the company's total passenger car shipments in January, February, March, April, May, amounting to 27,362 cars, exceeded Dodge passenger car shipments in the 12 months of 1932, the figure does not take into account Dodge trucks and Plymouth sixes shipped to Dodge dealers within the first five months of the present year.

Cars at Chicago Fair.

The exhibition of motor products at the Chicago World's Fair from June 1 to Nov. 1 is to be the biggest automobile show ever staged. The history of transportation and its advance in the last 100 years will be demonstrated in the Travel and Transport Building. From early steam engines to present-day locomotives and from primitive one-lung "horseless carriages" to the latest in motor cars, man's efforts through the years to travel faster and more comfortably on land will be graphically presented.

Waste Product as Auto Fuel.

Creosote oil, a waste product of the gas industry, has been tested so successfully in Belfast, Ireland, as a motor fuel that a motorbus company has adopted the use of it. The cost of the fuel is only about 10 cents a gallon, as compared with nearly twice that figure for gasoline.

Nine World Records In Its Class for Auburn '12' Certified

Official certification of nine new official International Class B speed records recently set by a 160-horsepower 12-cylinder Auburn Speedster with dual ratio, has been received by W. H. Beal, president of the Auburn Automobile Co., from the Association Internationale des Automobile-Clubs Reconnus, Paris, world governing body of organized motordom.

The new records, all made from standing starts, are: 200 miles at 112.93 miles per hour; 500 kilometers (a kilometer is five-eighths of a mile), 113.12 miles per hour; 500 miles, 113.38 miles per hour; 1000 kilometers, 110.81 miles per hour; 1000 miles, 109.30 miles per hour; 2000 kilometers, 105.93 miles per hour; three hours' running, 113.14 miles per hour; six hours' running, 110.75 miles per hour, and 12 hours' running, 105.83 miles per hour. The old records were held by various makes of American and foreign cars.

The average speed for 1000 miles is more than five miles per hour faster than the new Indianapolis speedway record for only 500 miles, set on Memorial day by a special racing car," Beal said. "The Auburn was powered with a stock Lycoming engine, with cooling, carburetion and oiling adapted to meet racing conditions.

"At the same time, this Auburn established 31 new official American Class B non-stock speed records, ranging from one kilometer to 12 hours' running. Fastest speed was 118.32 miles per hour, for one kilometer. Auburn also holds all official American stock car speed records from one to 500 miles in both the open and closed car divisoins, fastest time being 100.77 miles per hour for one mile.

"All runs were made at Muroc Dry Lake, Cal., under the official supervision of the American Automobile Association."

Paris Wars on Noise.

To make Paris, France, "the noiseless city, at least as noiseless as possible," the police have prosecuted no fewer than 8216 persons within the last six months. Of this number 3956 persons were prosecuted for having squeaky cars. Exactly 1188 persons were arrested for honking their automobile horns too assiduously during the daytime, and 1460 at night. For first offenders, mild fines or a reprimand are the only punishment but if they persist, the fines increase in size.

Racing Driver Learns On Tracks to Care For His Car's Brakes

"One of the marks of race drivers is the care with which the brakes on their own cars are maintained," says Col. E. V. Rickenbacker, chairman of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association. "I have had occasion to observe racing drivers for twenty years," says Rickenbacker, "and I have found that, unfailingly, away from the track race drivers are generally far above the average in taking care of the braking systems on their cars. Probably this is because the lessons of safety are so strongly driven home on the track and no driver, with speedway experience, ever is content with less than perfection in this important matter.

"Outside of the reasons of pure safety, it is a well-known fact that a car with good brakes will make better average speed over a long stretch of driving than one with poor brakes. When the driver of a car has a braking system which functions correctly, he has so much better control over his car that he is able to drive with much greater confidence. This elimination of hesitation, due to the fact that the driver knows he is master of his car, permits driving with much more assurance through all sorts of situations, particularly traffic, resulting in a much greater steadiness of road speed, which, of course, contributes materially to the maintenance of a good average."

Plans for Airplane Able to Carry Three Autos as Freight

Plans for new type freight airplanes, capable of carrying 12,000 pounds of freight or three automobiles, on long flights, are announced by L. B. Manning, chairman of the board of American Airways, Inc.

Construction of the first plane will be begun within a few months by the Stinson Aircraft Corporation at Wayne, Mich., he said. The ship will be a twin-motored all-metal Stinson with a cruising speed of 80 miles an hour and a top speed of 100 miles. It will be able to carry three, 4000-pound automobiles, or four smaller cars in the cabin, fully assembled but for the wheels.

The bushings of the Pontiac water pump ought to suit lazy owners who maintain their own cars. They carry a six months' supply of lubricant.

After winning the recent annual Paris-Nice race and defeating some of Europe's finest racing cars, a 320-horsepower supercharged Duesenberg automobile was driven to the Concours d'Elegance Rally at Monte Carlo, where it was awarded the grand prize for the most beautiful car.

E. Z. Sadovich, Duesenberg distributer in Paris, drove the car in the race. Despite the fact that many competing cars were racers, it was equipped with a touring body by Fernandes and Darrin of Paris. Included in the field were such makes of cars as Alfa-Romeo, Bugatti, Fiat, Mercedes and others.

London Bus Drivers Rated High.

Bus drivers in London, England, who are generally regarded as the best drivers in the world, are put through an exhaustive series of tests before they are allowed to drive their busses through streets and thoroughfares.

'Packard Blue' Said To Be Second to Black in Popularity

A few years ago all motor cars were painted black. Now black is coming back into its own in automobile finishes. It is now said to be second in popularity only to "Packard Blue," a deep shade much like navy blue.

Many different color combinations are offered for the Packard eight and Packard super eight cars as standard paint schemes.

Everybody is Talking Pontiac

"BALANCED VALUE"

"Pontiac makes a hit with me because of its Straight Eight performance. I get away first every time."

"I like it because its weight and strength make me feel safe and it is so comfortable and easy-riding."

"I'm strong for Pontiac because it is so economical—easy to buy and easy to own."

EVERYBODY is talking Pontiac this year. Why? We should like to tell you what we believe are some of the reasons.

Different people like it for different qualities. The artist, for example, stresses its appearance. The business man is impressed by its durability and economy. Others especially like its roomy comfort and its safety. A boy or a girl is thrilled by nothing so much as its performance.

Yet none of these people would be satisfied with a car that had only the one feature they talk about.

Even the man who talks most about his car's pick-up and speed, also wants durability, comfort, safety, appearance and economy.

That's Balanced Value—and that is why everybody is talking Pontiac this year.

It is the biggest Straight Eight in the low-price field. It has a wheelbase of 115 inches; 181 inches from bumper to bumper. The four-door sedan, for example, weighs 3265 pounds (curb weight). And size and weight are important for roadability, safety and comfort. It has a 77-horsepower Straight Eight engine that gives you 78 real miles per hour.

Bodies by Fisher have the famous Fisher No Draft Ventilation, which makes summer driving cool and comfortable.

Its prices begin as low as $585, f.o.b. Pontiac—and owners will tell you it gives them 15 miles or more to the gallon. And it gives that, not only for the first few thousands of miles, but for many thousands.

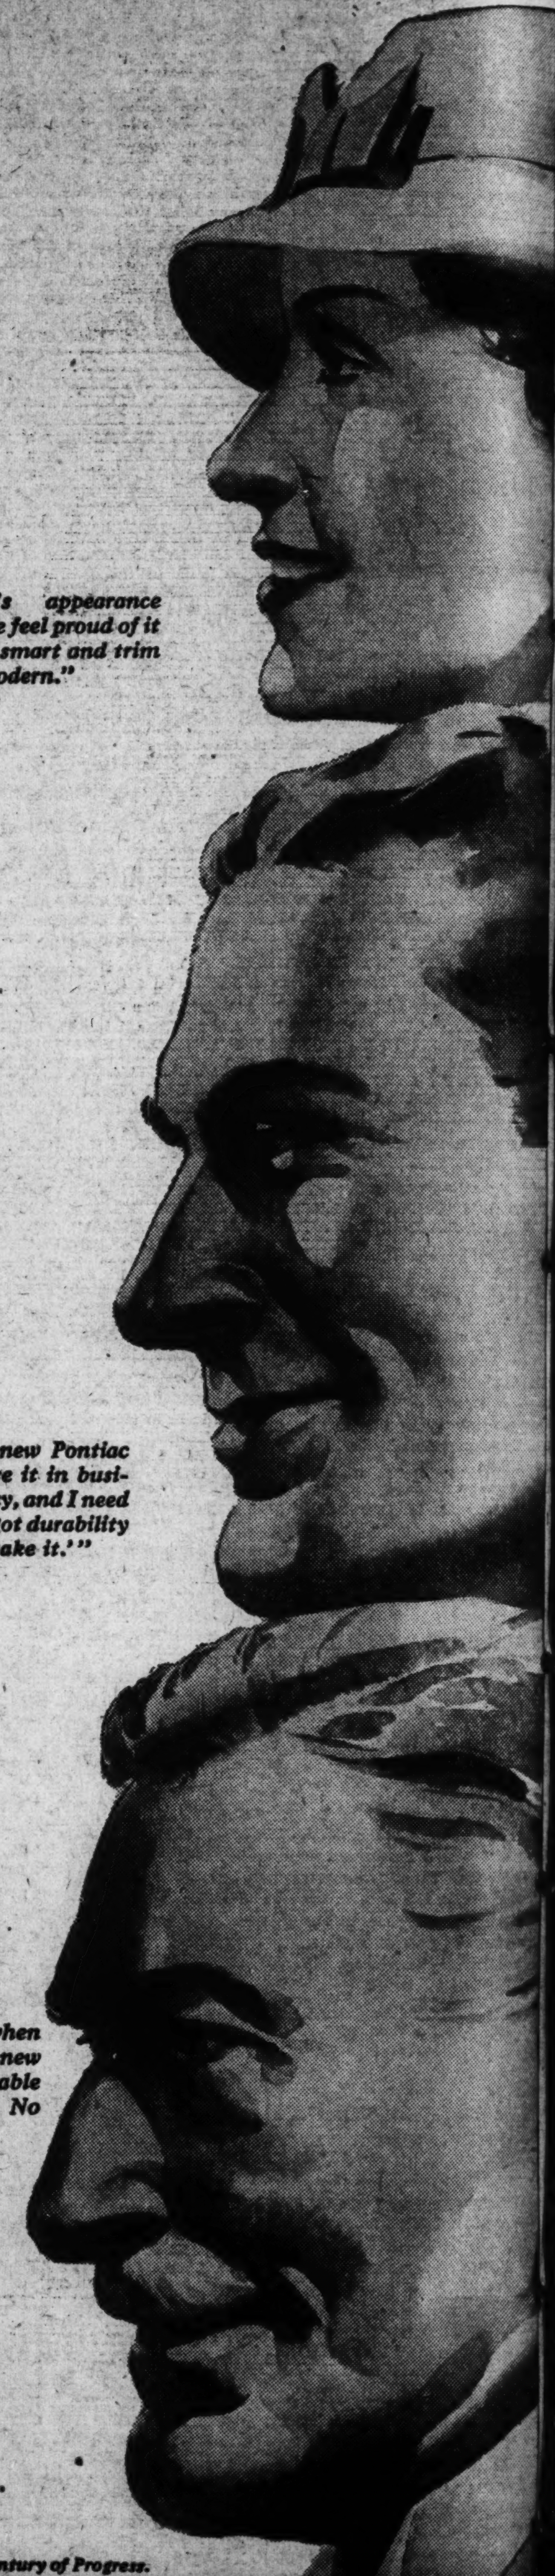
And what's the net result of all this to you?

Simply this: Because in Pontiac all the parts are so scientifically balanced and related to each other, stresses and strains so well equalized, owners find after, say, 25,000, or more, miles, of carefree, economical use, that their Pontiacs have fulfilled every expectation, lived up to every hope. That's Balanced Value as Pontiac gives it.

All this, we realize, sounds almost too good to be true. But ask any Pontiac owner. Any Pontiac dealer will gladly give you a demonstration. Drive it yourself. Try it out in any way you can think of. Once you do that, we know you'll agree that Pontiac deserves its success. It's a General Motors Value—a car you'll like to own and drive.

It takes all of these qualities: Economy—Durability—Comfort—Safety—Performance—Appearance (not some of them) to make a modern car.

Ask for copy of the FREE booklet—"What do you mean—Balanced Value"



"Pontiac's appearance makes me feel proud of it—it is so smart and trim—very modern."

"I like my new Pontiac because I use it in business every day, and I need a car that's got durability enough to 'take it.'"

After Persuading People to Return To Live on Farms, Mussolini Reports, Big Problem Is to Keep Them There

Not Sufficient to See That They Make a Living, Italian Dictator Has Found, but Rural Population Should Have the City Dweller's Little Luxuries, Too.

By BENITO MUSSOLINI,

ROME, June 10.

IN countries prevailingly industrial and where an increased use of the machine has created permanent unemployment—which is called technological unemployment—the cry of "Back to the soil" rises from time to time.

The programs of many political parties in various nations of the world contain his postulate. Agriculture is coming to the front, not alone in Italy, but in Germany, ngland and the United States. Already in the greatest blossoming of capitalistic onomy, sociologists warn us of the disproportion, not alone democraphic, which is owing between the country and city.

I remember having read a book on this ubject written by a Belgian economist at st 25 years ago.

War, depopulating the countryside and elling the cities, has made the phenomenon ill worse; men who are thoughtful of the stiny of their nation cry out that this akes it now necessary to turn things the her way. It is essential to see whether this ossible within the limits of human will.

ift to the Cities.

In the period which can be called the gold- epoch of industrial capitalism, men of the elds were drawn to the city by security of ork and by the convenience of wages.

The peasant in Italy does not see much oney—it only occurs in time of harvest. The dustrial workman instead has a weekly or rtnightly wage in money. A crisis resulted. se imposing masses of former peasants former inhabitants of small rural communities, have they a likelihood of being resorbed in the resumption of industry?

The probabilities are absolutely uncertain. e must resign ourselves to put up with quota of chronic unemployment more or less rong. Is it possible to lead this mass of rmer combatants back to their villages hich they abandoned? It is possible, but ere is need not to have any illusions.

Only those who have become residents of e city in the last 10 years, only those com- g late who have not yet assumed the city ychology and have been surprised by the isis, are able to feel nostalgia to return to e fields. Those who for more than 10 ars have established themselves in the ies, even if they desired it, would not be to return since they have acquired a network of interests and acquaintances and new ations which have put the old in the background.

Only those who still have the rural psychol- y can return and then only after they have en goaded and discouraged by years of employment and suffering.

Since 1926 I have adopted drastic measures deflating the great urban agglomerations, the results, while comforting considering e discipline of the people and the energy th which the Fascist ordinances are ap- ied, are far from having eliminated the enomenon.

Naturally I shall continue this policy, but ere I have the greatest promise—as I have eady had fruitful results—is in the other licy of trying to keep the rural population their lands. The task is also relatively sier, but it is necessary to follow this di- ction in order to attain the aim.

From the moral viewpoint, men of the elds must be honored and farmers must be nsidered elements of the first class in the tional community, to be remembered often d not alone at election times.

The political and moral revaluation of the mer and of agriculture will turn out more acious as it is made more remote from e Arcadian concepts of those who come to ow the country by having seen it when aveling.

griculture Not Poetic.

In the same way that the authentic soldier the trenches despised the writer who gave olor" to war, so the farm worker smiles en the life of the fields is depicted in an natural way in poetic colors; as if to till and were an idyl, instead of hard work at oftentimes waits in vain for reward. us, the farmer detests those who wish to eigle him. Exaltation of the farm work- therefore, must be earnest and virile and ch as to render him proud to work the d. My numerous addresses to agricultur- sts have always kept along this line.

In the second place, it is necessary that onomic conditions of the farmer correspond most of the elementary exigencies of life. is does not concern only his wages and er conditions of work, it concerns his me.

Today in many European countries and o in Italy conditions in rural houses are solutely deplorable. Room and the most mitive hygiene are lacking. The young mer who during his years of military ser- e has seen houses of the city compares d does not adapt himself easily. In my nion, a large enough house, clean and sanitary, is indispensable if it is desired that the family of the farmer shall remain united and not disperse in an exodus to the city.

The third factor toward holding the rural population in their villages is that of making them familiar with and knowing how to utilize progress in technique and modern scentific inventions. The village must have electric light, washing machines, telephones, a movie house, radios, and a street system facilitating the traffic of rural products and the movements of men. If the village looks like a prison, the farmer will be induced to escape.

Other Factors Involved.

But the return to the soil, rather than the staying on the soil, has a presumption which involves everything—the solution of which is necessary. I mean the solution of the agricultural crisis.

I said elsewhere, and I confirm it here, that agriculture is the first to slump in a crisis and the last to recover. Indebtedness of agriculture in all countries has reached hyperbolical figures and the hardships of farmers are cruel.

In certain countries, radical measures have been adopted, such as compulsory reduction of interest, or a moratorium, or suspension of confiscation on the part of creditors. My Government has pursued a policy of intervention by the State without, however, effecting too radical changes, whose consequences sometimes cannot be foreseen.

I have said oftentimes that, if surgery can be resorted to in politics, it is not always the same thing in economics where medicine is more efficacious, even though it has to be drastic at times.

Measures adopted by the Fascist Government for improving the lot of national agriculture, which has been particularly hard in certain districts of North Italy, have been manifold. The principal ones are the following:

First, adequate customs protection for certain commodities without, however, resorting to the wretched quota system.

Second, special measures in favor of districts which have been hit more severely than others, consisting of contributions by the State to the payment of interest on heavier debts.

Third, payment by the State of 6,000,000 lire a year for the duration of 30 years in favor of the Agricultural Consortiums Association, which is the body that supplies agriculturists with machinery, fertilizers and seeds.

Fourth, unamortizable loans to particularly efficient farmers in the proportion of 46,000,000 lire per year for the duration of 25 years.

Italy Pays the Bill.

The total burden placed on the Italian Treasury in consequence of these measures reached, even though apportioned in many years, 1,740,000,000 lire, which, if capitalized at their present value, represent about 900,000,000 lire.

These and other measures that are being planned have not solved the agricultural crisis, but have certainly helped improve the situation.

The real solution lies in a rise of prices and a rise will not be the result of monetary maneuvers, but of increased power of consumption. This will be in consequence of a general situation which may make possible business recovery in a political atmosphere based on collaboration and world peace.

Flyer Sights Ancient City Under the Mediterranean

By the Associated Press.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, June 10.—While flying near Nelson Island, Group Capt. John T. Cull saw something shaped like a large horseshoe beneath the clear Mediterranean. He informed Prince Omar Tousson, Egyptian archeologist, who sent a diver down. It was ascertained that the horseshoe was made up of columns of marble and red granite and the foundations of ancient buildings.

Among relics brought up was the head of a marble statue of Alexander the Great.

Experts believe the ruins may be those of Canopus, a fashionable seaside resort during the Roman rule of Egypt.

PEOPLE are asking:

Is the Chicago world's fair worth going to see?

Is it equal to the best expositions of the past—those of Chicago in 1893 and St. Louis in 1904?

The answer is yes and no. Yes, to the first question. No, to the second.

Chicago's A Century of Progress, popularly called the 1933 World's Fair, is worth the price of admission, and, with its associated attractions, is well worth traveling from a distance to see. If the exposition-goers of 40 and 29 summers ago got more for their money, that was their good luck. The fairs they saw can now be seen only in memory and in picture books. The big tax-raised subsidies which built them are not being given now, and foreign nations are not sending costly exhibits merely because some prominent American goes over and asks them to.

But whatever the comparison in dollars and floor acreage, this year's fair is good entertainment, well diversified, and it serves the purpose indicated by William McKinley when he said in his last speech at Buffalo, "Expositions are the timekeepers of progress."

Latest Style in Fairs.

In fact, it is convincingly likely that Chicago, which in 1893 set the style in expositions for a generation, has again given the builders of fairs, big and little, a pattern which they will be following for the next two or three decades.

Then, it was Chicago's White City which was copied by the builders of later fairs, including the bigger and costlier one in St. Louis. Now, the water fronts reflect the walls and towers of pastel palaces, only one-fifth of the painted surface being white. Twenty-four colors have been used, showing the moderation of Joseph Urban, who had more than 40 colors in the spectrum to choose from.

The World's Columbian and Louisiana Purchase Expositions had central groups of imposing edifices of classical designs, plaster-coated to look like stone, on sculpture-lined avenues. Ornamented richly without, the buildings within were plain sheds where the visitor was supposed to admire the exhibits, and not to mind bare beams or rough edges. Windows and skylights were abundant, and electricity, used with circumspection because of the great fire hazard, gave supplementary lighting.

The present fair's builders planned and did differently. They scrapped outdoor statuary, and no one has to ask whose bust that is, or what some group symbolizes. They rejected Greek pillars and Spanish turrets, and erected flat, windowless walls, with square shaft towers, some plane surfaces of blue, green or orange, some fluted or ribbed. They made interiors smooth and ornate; they made all lighting artificial, and they used asbestos in such quantities that most of the buildings are deemed fireproof, an assumption not yet put to the ultimate test.

Architecture Conceals Size.

Some of the walls, as those of the General Exhibits group, seem to belong to billboards rather than to buildings. In most cases, the effect is to conceal the size of the main structures, the extent of which is not realized until one walks through or around them. The Agricultural Building looks like a concrete viaduct, and the great green box which upholds and largely hides the dome of the Travel and Transport Building also screens the rest of that big structure. The Electrical group, with Egyptian pylons at its water front, and the Hall of Science, first large building to confront the visitor arriving by the main entrance, show their size to better advantage than the others.

When I saw the fair, soon after its opening, the buildings, lighting and color effects were still the chief attraction to a public drawn largely from Chicago and its suburbs. With the school vacation season and with the completion of farmers' delayed planting, a rush of motor and rail tourists is expected. Then it may appear whether this downtown fair and its Midway can capture the American public as the fair at Jackson Park, and its Midway Plaisance, captured the folks from the 44 states and five territories of Grover Cleveland's day.

Can the polychrome flood lights and gas tubes of these exposition nights, dazzlingly wonderful, but widely familiar, bring such gasps of admiration as did the dim bulbs of red, white and blue strung around the edge of the old Grand Basin, or seen through the spray of the Art Hill cascades? Can the rocket car thrill an airwise age as the Ferris wheel thrilled its customers in Chicago and St. Louis? And can any of the concessions gain the attention of press, pulpit and corner grocery as did the Streets of Cairo?

Pay as You Enter.

This fair has its Streets of Cairo, housed Orientally, and with the bazars, camel rides and dances which have become standardized in fairs and carnivals since "Little Egypt's" Midway debut in '93. As befits the East, "Cairo" was delayed in opening, and the "Paris" concession, with peep shows tepidly picturing Montmartre resorts, scored first in the ingathering of the curious.

The sky ride, across an 1850-foot expanse of land and water at a height of 200 feet, is at a speed of 10 miles an hour, and a charge of 40 cents. The same charge is made for ascent, by day or night, to the top platform of either of the supporting towers, which are 628 feet high.

These charges, and those made for admission to the very attractive Belgian Village and other Midway attractions, are to be expected; but it occasions surprise to see a pay gate at the entrance to Old Fort Dearborn, which has been advertised as a prime historical exhibit of the fair, and which is pictured on a lately issued one-cent postage stamp. The Lincoln group of buildings and the Horticultural Building also have pay gates.

General admission to the Fair is 50 cents, and the larger concessions charge 25 or 40 cents. The visitor who pays the regular admission charge at the gate and enters all the 71 concessions will be paying about $25.

That includes the sky ride mentioned and a lift in a captive blimp, but it does not include ground locomotion, which can be had at $1 an hour in wheel chairs propelled by college students, or can be enjoyed in more exalted and exotic fashion in jinrikishas pulled, not by Japanese youths, but by track stars of American colleges. Track team captains of Illinois and Cornell universities are among these tractioneers, who perform their task in vari-colored shorts. The gondoliers who ply the so-called lagoon, really a boat harbor as wide as most navigable rivers, were hired, not in Venice, but from the rowing teams of Eastern schools.

Within Walk of Downtown.

It is an easy walk from downtown hotels to the Fair's main entrance, near Field Museum, or from parts of the South Side to the Thirty-ninth street gate, nearly three miles south. But considering the amount of walking to be done within the grounds, it is just as well to take a bus to the entrance. A bus line, operating within the grounds, on a dime fare, is a step-saver rather than a sight-seeing facility, as the greater part of its route lies in the rear of buildings.

For practical purposes, the whole 424-acre site is an island, for it must be reached by bridges across railroad tracks. But in the fair parlance, the island is the eastern promontory of the made ground which composes the site, and it is reached by three causeways from the mainland. Both the island and the mainland were pumped from the bottom of Lake Michigan by sand-suckers and piled behind wooden and stone bulkheads. Prepared top soil, for the growing of grass and the nourishing of transplanted trees, was added, and today it is difficult to realize that Burnham Park, as the tract is named, does not date from the days of Fort Dearborn or of the Great Fire.

The Foreign Exhibits.

The list of foreign nations participating or represented in this World's Fair is soon told. Italy's airplane-shaped pavilion, conspicuously located at the end of the Avenue of Flags,

Ferrero's View of America's Troubles

GENEVA, June 10.

SO, in the West, everything is in a state of collapse, both states and currencies? After the German Republic, the American dollars?

Among the bombshells that have burst upon the world within the last 18 years, the dollar adventure will remain one of the most memorable. Is the richest nation in the world, like so many others, ruined, about to commit its sacrilege against that Dea Moneta to whom the ancients raised temples?

Among the various causes that go to explain this extraordinary occurrence, there is one that deserves particular mention: Debts. With the devaluation of the dollar, the United States is attempting an operation that has been performed over and over again throughout history. The Latins had a concrete name for it: Tabulae novae. It is, if not the abolition, the lightening of debts, obtained by a lowering of the intrinsic value of monetary unity.

Europe finds it difficult to visualize the United States, like Rome in the days of Caesar, at grips with the question of debts. It is well known in Europe that the American farmers have a great many debts and that their lands are riddled with mortgages; but the United States has always been regarded as a creditor nation, in fact as the creditor nation par excellence.

It would seem paradoxical, absurd, inexplicable, that a creditor nation should wish to lighten the dollar, with which its debtors are to pay it. But while the United States was in the process of becoming the creditor of the world, it was getting into debt with itself to a fabulous degree; that is what is less well known in Europe and which must be taken into account to understand what is taking place on the other side of the Atlantic.

If the farmers were the only ones to tremble in the United States at the idea of the coming reckoning! But since 1919 everyone in the United States has more or less lived and worked on credit—the Federal Government, the states, the towns, the large corporations, industry, agriculture, trade, speculation and individuals.

Industries and trades developed their business, railways built their Babylonian stations on borrowed money. Every town in America, large, small or medium, was enriched with fine public buildings, given a heavy crown of skyscrapers, or enlarged by enormous new districts within the space of a few years, all of it by dint of mortgaging.

Neither public nor private bodies possessed sufficient funds for the building of so many new towns, boroughs and edifices in 10 years. Finally, even the workman and small tradesman was granted, with the system of credit applied on the widest scale to the retail business, what was formerly a lordly or royal privilege, the right to incur debts.

It was the most gigantic inflation of credit yet witnessed by the world. It provoked a plethoric circulation of wealth, which for several years gave the American colossus the illusion of inexhaustible vitality. But what alarm when the circulation started to slacken in that body worn out by its excess of effort!

The workman or small employe no longer paid the retailer, who no longer paid the wholesaler, who no longer paid the factory, who could no longer pay back the bank, which found itself in difficulties with its depositors.

At the same time, by repercussion, the value of real estate went down and the gigantic system of mortgages built up on that value started to vacillate. From month to

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Arkansas Default.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE read with much interest your splendid editorial in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch entitled "The Truth About the Arkansas Bond Scandal," and heartily concur with the views expressed therein. Indeed, it would seem that the default goes even further than set out in your editorial.

Repeated statements have appeared in the press setting forth Gov. Futrell's view that all State obligations are co-equal, and, by implication, leaving the impression that the repudiation will be something in the nature of what might be called "co-repudiation of co-equal obligations," regardless of the actual contracts made and entered into when the bonds were issued and equally regardless of what was understood as being the "full faith and credit of the State." Notwithstanding all this, however, it now is openly stated that if the State of Pennsylvania sues on the bonds held, the State of Arkansas will rely upon the priority of the road district bonds which were first assumed and which, therefore, constitute a first claim under Act No. 11 of 1927, No. 80 of 1927 and No. 65 of 1929 of the Arkansas General Assembly.

Such a position would seem inconsistent with either the co-equality or the full faith and credit position which should be taken by a great State. A vacillating position seems to destroy confidence in both positions.

Failure to pay just debts is repudiation. Weak defenses are specious and unworthy. The State can and should refund its obligations along lines of fairness to its creditors and consideration of its own ability to pay. A firm statement of this position should be announced without delay, thereby to restore a confidence in the State now fast disappearing.

Missouri Should Join the Parade.

IT is about time for Missouri to take action in the outright repeal of the eighteenth amendment, now that Illinois has joined the wet parade with an overwhelming majority of 800,000 for repeal. Woodrow Wilson was right when he said the Constitution was no place to define what should be done with the liquor traffic.

WILLIAM BAGGOT.

Charity Rackets.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Charities Bureau of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce steps forth to protect its members from the so-called charity moochers who prey upon the generosity of the unsuspecting public. The effort is commendable, and citizens should back it up to the fullest extent.

St. Louis has long been a "happy hunting ground" for promoters of charity enterprises, who are usually ingenious enough to give a small share of the proceeds to some worthy local organization, in order to command patronage.

Most of the fleecing has been due to failure of the business man or woman to investigate each appeal before contributing. The public has been warned repeatedly by the newspapers to beware of fake charity solicitors and worthless forms of advertising. This nefarious practice has been curbed to some extent, thanks to the constant vigilance of the newspapers, the Better Business Bureau and local law enforcement agencies.

The plan of the Chamber of Commerce will intensify the good work previously done, and result in the saving of thousands of dollars annually to St. Louis business firms and individuals. There are enough calls for deserving charity without our people freely handing over their dollars to promoters under the guise of charity or advertising.

Hogs on the Highway.

ANOTHER tragic accident can be laid to a truckload of pigs. A car driven by university students crashed into a double-decked truck of porkers. Several weeks ago a woman was killed when the driver of a load of hogs appropriated the road for his own purposes. The car's owner was judgment-proof. The son of this woman wrote a particularly simple appeal for somebody to start something that will result in protective legislation.

We are all—every time we use a public highway—just exactly what two smart young men have called us: 100,000,000 guinea pigs!

MERCURY JR.

Protesting Against Hitlerism.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN response to critics of protests against the persecution of Jews in Germany: Would these critics be of the same opinion if they were in the minority class or creed? If so, they would probably be in a better position to judge by visualizing fathers like themselves deprived of means of making a livelihood, their children on the verge of starvation, their mothers' hearts broken, their sisters and brothers committing suicide.

Wouldn't they then encourage a nation like ours, founded on the principle of freedom, to join the other leading nations of the world in protesting against the systematic economic extermination of an innocent, defenseless people by a supposed civilized nation?

GEORGE WEINER.

The World and the Gold Standard

Before 1914, the principal countries of the world maintained their currencies at a parity with gold and permitted its free export and import. This well-nigh universal use of gold as the world's standard of value was frequently spoken of as the international gold standard. Although this pre-war gold standard was not perfect in its operations, international trade flourished under it. To those countries which were floundering in the morass of inflation in the early post-war period, a return to the monetary conditions of 1914 seemed the ideal. A few countries returned to gold before 1925, and England's resumption of specie payments in that year was soon followed by similar action in almost all of Europe and South America. By 1928, most of the world was back on the gold standard.

The developments of the past four years have been a sad blow to the hopes of those who felt that the restoration of the technical provisions of the international gold standard meant that the monetary systems of the world would function as they did before 1914. These four years have revealed something that was not generally appreciated. The international gold standard of pre-war days was more than the mere existence of particular monetary statutes in the principal countries: It was an economic institution whose successful functioning was dependent upon certain practices and traditions.

The annual international trade of the world was much greater than its total gold supply. Debtor countries made large payments to creditors without disruption of monetary systems. This was possible because imports were paid for by the export of goods, and debtors made payments by commodity movements and not through gold shipments. The small gold flows which did occur fostered the price movements upward and downward that facilitated these trade adjustments. Tariffs, particularly in creditor countries, were much lower than they have been since the war. Monopolies, cartels and similar organizations to maintain prices, although important, did not play the dominant part in economic life that they have in the past decade. There was sufficient flexibility in the world's economic set-up to permit adjustments to take place without breaking the gold standard.

The international gold standard of the period after 1925 was technically little changed from that of 1914, but the conditions under which it functioned were very different. War debts, reparations, increased private indebtedness and the setting up of new frontiers in Europe called for a flexibility of international economic life, a capacity for change in response to new conditions. In the face of this situation, however, the post-war economic system took on an extreme rigidity, marked by high tariffs, quotas and price-fixing schemes of one sort or another, both domestic and international. For nearly a decade, large foreign lending by the United States gave a temporary equilibrium in the balance of payments of debtor countries, but left a still greater problem of adjustment to be met when lending stopped after 1929.

The strain created by this pressure for adjustment, coming to bear upon a rigid international economic structure, goes far to explain the collapse of the gold standard in the last two years. The abrupt stoppage of foreign lending, much of which had been unwise, put a severe strain on the balance of payments of debtor countries; gold moved to settle debts which would have been paid in goods had not tariffs interfered; producers in creditor countries found export markets dwindling when investors no longer bought foreign bonds.

Bimetalism or a paper standard on an international scale is conceivable, but at the present time both seem outside the realm of political possibility. Hence, when men talk of the necessity of having an international monetary standard, they generally mean the restoration on a world-wide scale of the gold standard. If this reconstructed gold standard is to function successfully, it must have an economic environment different from that of the past decade. Upon the gold reserves of central banks must not be thrown the burden of debt adjustment that should be made through commodity movements. Tariff barriers must not prevent these movements, price-fixing must not hamper necessary price changes. The profitable interchange of goods in international trade must be resumed.

It is heartening that in the agenda of the economic conference considerations of this nature are given an important place in the discussion of the restoration of the international gold standard. There is an appreciation of the fact that its restoration is not a separate problem, but is part of a larger question of political stability, tariffs and similar trade restrictions, international lending and central bank co-operation. A statesman-like handling of these problems will remove most of the difficulties in the way of the restoration on a firm basis of the international gold standard.

Will the Laclede Listen to Reason?

Recognizing the practical difficulties standing in the way of obtaining rate reductions through the process of hearings and orders by the Public Service Commission, City Counselor Hay has asked the commission to summon the Laclede Gas Light Co. to appear before it for a conference on the subject of lower gas rates for St. Louis.

The purpose of Mr. Hay, a fluent orator, whose lashings have been felt by many a worthy foe, is to talk the gas company into a voluntary rate reduction. If he succeeds, he will have accomplished something which his predecessor, Judge Muench, failed to achieve through a long and able campaign, prosecuted according to the formalities of the law.

It is true that Judge Muench won a signal legal victory when he succeeded in obtaining a decision of the State Supreme Court reversing and criticising the commission's valuation of Laclede, upon which present gas rates are based, but still further processes and legal resorts, capable of long delay, lie between that decision and realization of its fruits by the people.

Will Laclede listen to reason, recognizing the changed conditions, and voluntarily give up something which by virtue of its monopoly and the law of the land it might continue to collect for a long time to come?

It is something to talk about to Harley L. Clarke of Chicago, the holding company magnate behind Laclede, not forgetting that Mr. Clarke once listened too freely to the sales talk of one Charles A. Munroe, whose profits from the unloading of Laclede upon its present owners have seen him safely through the depression.

Our Trees Are There

How many persons know that from our hillsides and plains have gone native American trees that now grow in beauty and usefulness in every quarter of the globe? How many know that the United States produces the greatest variety of economic forest trees and that other nations have selected freely from them in their work of reforestation? Very few, but such is the case. Darel McConkey, formerly of West Virginia University, has made it the subject of an illuminating article in American Forests.

So far as this investigator has been able to discover, the emigration of our Eastern arbor vitae, in 1566, to Germany was the first introduction of an American tree into Europe. Shortly before the settlement at Jamestown, our black locust was taken to Germany. Through the intervening centuries, it has spread over the whole continent, thanks to the absence of the locust borer, growing even better than in the land of its nativity. Anne, daughter of James II, was on the throne when the American white pine landed in England, soon to move across the channel and become a naturalized citizen of several countries.

The Douglas fir, named for the English plant hunter who found it on the Pacific coast, has become the most successful of all European importations from America. It now grows from Scandinavia to the Balkans and from Scotland to the Carpathians—and, what is more, it grows much more rapidly than at home. There are many other instances of curious change, due to a new environment. Our green bay, an important timber tree, in Europe became a shrub, generally grown against a trellis.

Perhaps the most unusual of our straying trees is the Monterey pine, commonly called the "remarkable pine." Its native heath is the California coast. Just 100 years ago, Douglas took it to England and thence it went to Australia and New Zealand, where it today covers thousands of acres formerly barren of trees. Those far-off lands call it "the North's great gift to the Antipodes."

Europe grows our red oak and red gum, our maples and poplars. The American who tours the world will find his juniper in India, his box elder in Manchuria, his slash pine in Zululand, his citrus trees in South America, his mesquite in Hawaii.

There are many other wanderers among our 1100 tree species, but these will suffice. Surely, there has been a cooling breeze blowing through this recital of their globe-trotting.

Last Battle of the World War

Do those curiously perverted reasoners who assert that a good war just now would restore prosperity consider the costs of the World War? That conflict is still going on, says Dr. James T. Shotwell, professor of history at Columbia University, and its last battle is the present world-wide depression. Dr. Shotwell looks beyond the casualty lists, the war expenditures and the debts to consider the greater costs of the war—the ruin it has wrought in the post-war economic structure. Capital, trade and industry are terribly mismanaged, he concedes, but even so, the world might muddle through were it not for the obstacle of recovery from war, which "destroys the prosperity of years to come as well as of those gone by." Nor can the destroyed capital be restored by internal writing off of the debts, as in Germany, or by international cancelation. The future must be mortgaged anew to get fresh capital to restore industry, so the war debts reappear, in another guise, to handicap future generations.

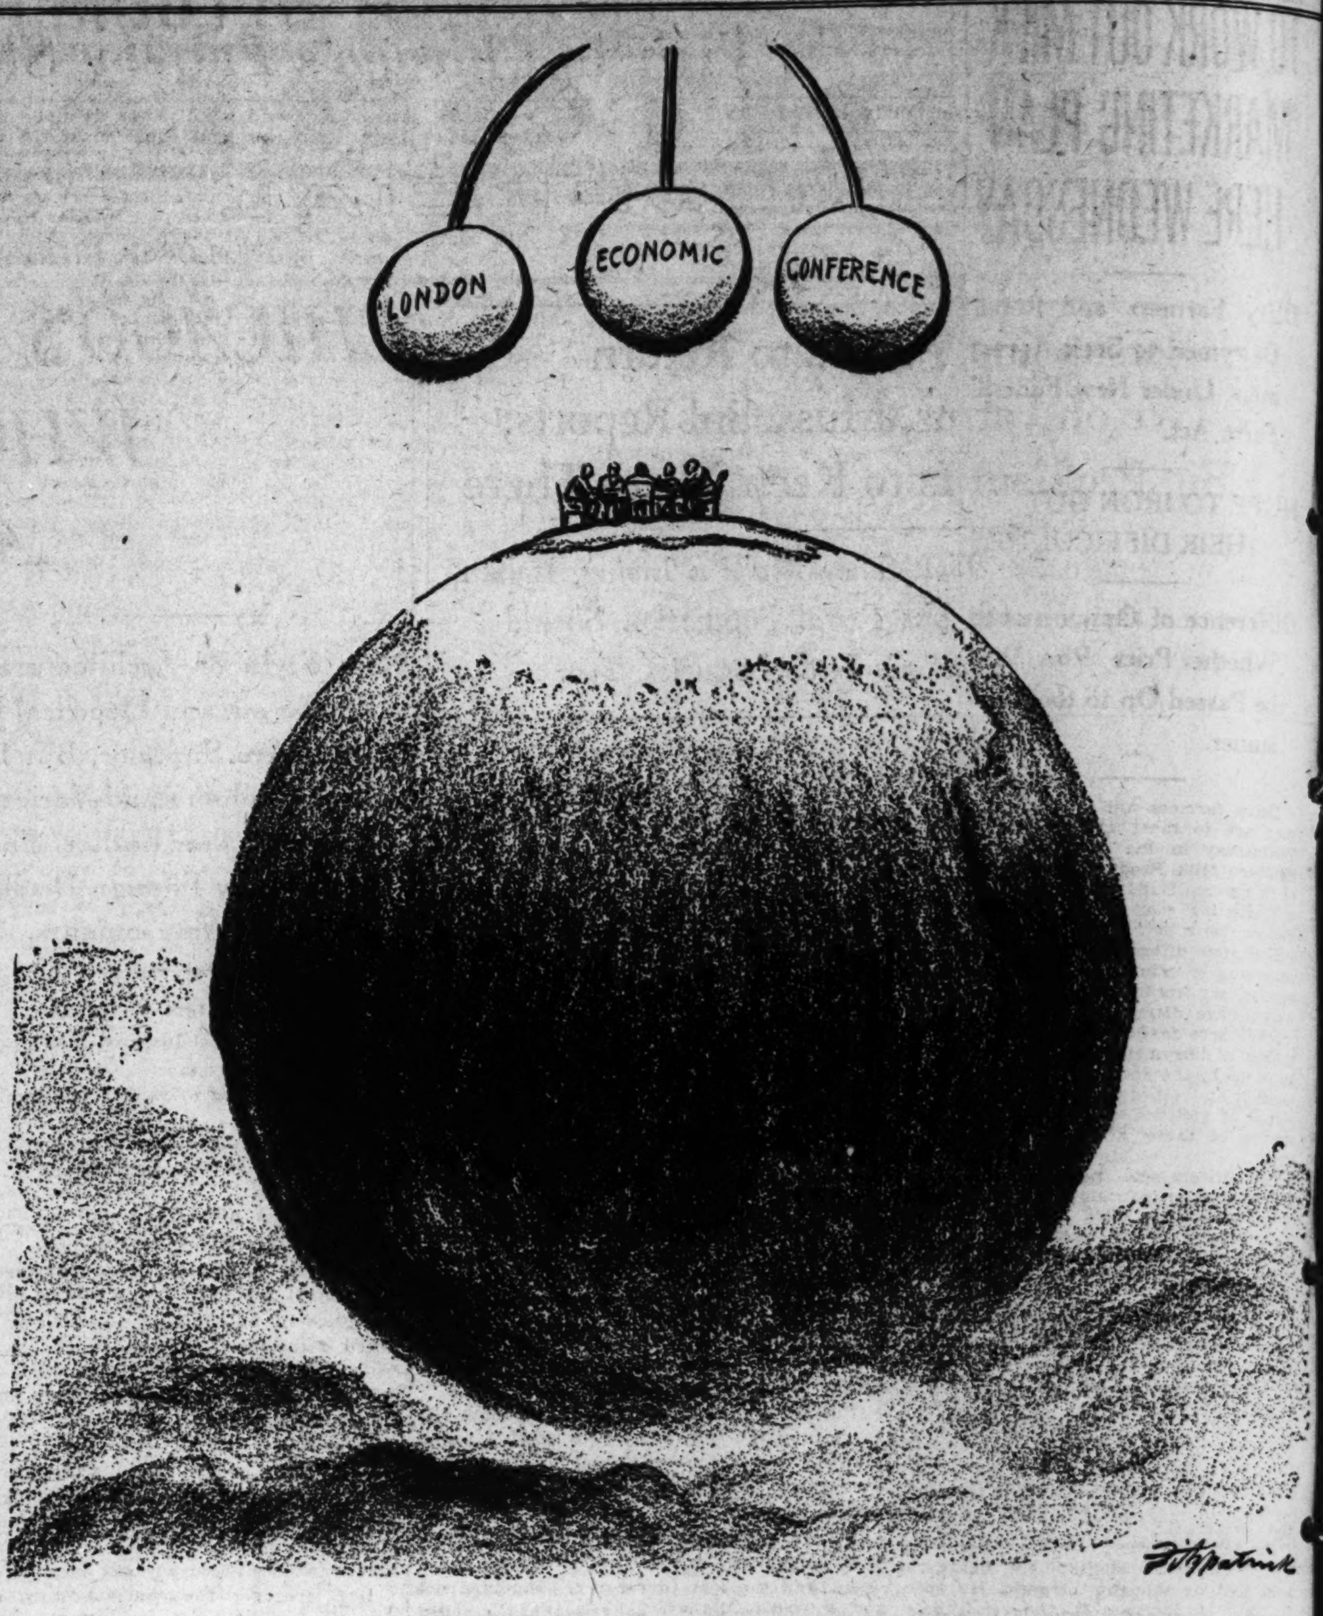
The gains of the momentary war boom are lost in the subsequent reaction. War means one doubtful step forward in prosperity, and 10 long steps backward. Further, one war breeds another, with all its attendant destruction. As Premier MacDonald said on his visit to America: "The one certain thing about a war is that it makes another one certain." The peace movement is an important part of any program to restore world equilibrium. Those who prescribe a good war as a remedy defeat their own interests.

Jewish Rights Before the League

Now that the matter of Jewish persecutions in Germany has come before the League of Nations Council, the Nazi Government's anti-Semitic attitude has been somewhat modified, at least by the German delegate's pledge at Geneva. The matter is apparently a domestic affair, although it has aroused the greatest international concern. However, a means was found for bringing it into the League's jurisdiction. Franz Bernheim, a Jew who had lost his employment in Upper Silesia because of the Nazi orders, drew up a petition citing the German-Polish convention of 1932, in which Germany pledged "full and complete protection of life and liberty to all inhabitants of Germany, without distinction of birth, nationality, language, race or religion." The petition was advanced to the head of the agenda, so important was it considered.

The answer of the German delegate, Friedrich von Keller, was far different in tone from previous Nazi statements on the subject. His Government authorized him to say, he declared, that "international conventions concluded by Germany cannot be affected by internal German legislation." Past actions in Upper Silesia he explained as "conducted by subordinate organs, acting in erroneous interpretation of the law." Von Keller became irate when Germany was criticised for permitting such conditions, but later calmed himself and pledged for his Government that Jews would be restored to their positions there.

If Germany modifies her Jewish policy in Upper Silesia, will it not be found necessary to do likewise all over the Reich? The barbarous tactics toward Jews and other minorities have roused world sentiment against Germany. It has been obvious for some time that other nations would continue to be suspicious of a government that pursued such practices. A perception of this attitude may by this time be penetrating into the councils of the dictatorship.



HOW TO REDEEM A WORLD?

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

A Prophetic Book?

THE NEW BACKGROUND OF SCIENCE. By Sir James Jeans. (The Macmillan Co., New York City.)

IT appears now that as long ago as 1912 it was possible to prophesy with accuracy the general direction in which the so-called practical world would drift, and the general nature of the results of that direction. This appears possible because it was done; and even if it had not been done, the possibility would be apparent from the vantage point of the present.

Yet, curiously enough, such prophecy would have seemed, in the conventional way of seeing, to be based upon the flimsiest of data. It may seem so still: for the stuff of the future, out of which valid social prophecy may be wrought, is not, in the view here set forth, the material fact of the moment. This stuff of the future is to be sought in the immaterial realm of changing persuasions, theories and beliefs, which may seem to have no connection whatever with the practical doings of men; and yet, in the long run, they will prove to be a controlling factor in shaping the material world of "practical" men.

The year 1912 is mentioned because at about that time those disintegrating forces, which may be given the common name of "impressionism," were sweeping like a hurricane through the "impractical" realm of all the higher human values. The gale had been freshening for some time, as we see now; but such winds are scarcely to be recognized until they have developed sufficient force to set old signboards flying all over the place; and the signboards began to fly merrily along about 1912. Impressionism is used here as a blanket term for those anarchic forces, for the reason that the term signifies the individualistic way of regarding the world, as opposed to a social way.

If, at the time, some philosopher had pointed out to the most intelligent practical man of affairs in the street what was being done, for instance, in the realm of esthetic values, the practical man would have shrugged his shoulders, remarking something to the effect that he "should worry" about the "nutty" doings of poets, painters and their inconsequential breed.

Perhaps the philosopher would have been no more effective had he attempted to show how the anarchic forces at work in poetry, painting, music, etc., were no less conspicuously operative throughout the whole immaterial realm of thought and feeling where dominant social persuasions are formed—even in the realm of science. The practical man of affairs would have felt safe within his going, practical world, being certain that there is no reality save that which common sense may grasp, weigh, measure and manipulate at will.

Nevertheless, it would have been true then, as it is now seen to be true, that the very patterns which were destined to determine the material actualities of the world were taking prophetic form in the changing general persuasions of men. The philosopher could, no doubt, have gone back to the invention of the steam engine, the industrial revolution and the triumph of the laissez-faire conception of economics by way of tracing the development of those anarchic forces then raging among the higher human values and prophesying the approach of social chaos.

The foregoing remarks are intended to suggest a basis for considering the proposition that, in writing "The New Background of Science," Sir James Jeans, in the long view, may well have made a more significant contribution to a possible social science than to physical science, so called.

It is the purpose of the author to contrast the materialistic, mechanistic view of the universe, which was triumphant in the nineteenth century, with the view now held by the most highly accredited scientific thinkers, and to show by what experiments and processes of thought the present view was reached.

In the heyday of the nineteenth century, science still supported the belief in a thoroughly organized mechanical universe made out of hard pellets of literal matter in accordance with the evidence of the senses, and operating in keeping with ascertainable universal laws. Space was infinite extension, and time was the steady flow of change through space, a flow that clocks were made to measure.

There are still millions of people who hold this naive sense view of their world, and many of them are among the most intelligent and capable of practical men. There are millions more who unconsciously act in keeping with that view. Once these were among the "advanced," but now they are belated; as much so as were their grandfathers when materialistic science was fighting its battle with the Victorian religious view of the universe and had not yet been declared the victor and the only trustworthy explainer of nature.

That Sir James Jeans has authority to speak for science in 1933, no one will question. Yet we do not read far until we come to the statement that, in following his discussion of the findings of science, we must bear in mind that "they are a description, not of nature, but of human questionings of nature." And as we follow the masterly and fascinating narrative of the great intellectual adventure that is called science, all the once cherished certainties of the nineteenth century universe fade away one by one, until we find ourselves in an Alice's Wonderland, where space is curved and finite, and where time is somehow not to be conceived as a motion but as something in the nature of simultaneous extension; a universe with no conceivable absolute, but all a complexity of constantly shifting relativities, and without the slightest indication of what the stuff of reality may be.

In fact, the suspicion occurs to this great scientist himself, as it does to the lay reader, that all the searching after objective truth may be no more than a systematic examination of subjective mental process. Certainly the drift of the discussion seems to be in the direction of metaphysics. The author still holds fast to the term "physical," fearing, no doubt, to be wholly lost without it; but he is "tempted to conjecture that our minds are in contact with reality through other than physical channels!"

There are tremendous possibilities in this admission.

Is it to be doubted that this is truly a book of social prophecy by implication, considering the fact that what we have here is a new world view in the making, wh is destined to reach the great mass of m in the form of unconsidered persuasi and attitudes?

It was no coincidence that the univ of nineteenth century science and the g social and economic scheme of the ti were in strict accord, both being based u the mechanistic, materialistic conception. is no coincidence that the old conception the universe has vanished with the disin gration of the society that held that conc tion and lived by it. Nor is it, perha foolish to assume that the new world vi which began to form in the realm of ence at the beginning of the present tury, and is here set forth, at least general direction, may prove to have b prophetic of a new social trend.

The new view is obviously still incho and the centrifugal force that destroyed old cosmic conception is still conspicu as it is still conspicuous in the practi affairs of the world. But the direction the new world view that is forming is cl ly away from the brutal limitations of old materialistic, mechanistic concepti and it is easily conceivable that concepti now described as "spiritual," and regar as superstition, may be admitted into future picture of the scientific universe. is conceivable, as one follows Sir Ja Jeans, that science, in order to make cosmos out of its puzzling data, may compelled to include in its realm of acc ed reality the great body of psychic nomena heretofore ignored.

Such a change in world view as that considered would shift the emphasis o man life to a higher level than that which we have been trying to live, with success.

Science began destroying its old unive about 30 years before the breakdown of society which was built upon its disca ed conceptions. May not the present tr of science be regarded as equally prophe

SON OF EARTH. By Howard Erick (Lincoln MacVeagh, The Dial Press, York City.)

THIS story of one Tolf Luvversen, a ish farm hand in Iowa, undoubtedly serves favorable comparison with the American fiction in its special field, in ing the novels of the late O. E. Rolvaag is a simple tale with very little "action," no drama of the more obvious sort; b is written with a depth of insight, ec of expression and a manifest honesty purpose that serve to set it apart fro great majority of "realistic" farm nove

Tolf grows up cherishing the ambitio rise above his "greenhorn" status and an American girl. His efforts, both rous and pathetic, to achieve the goal end in failure, and, when the closes, he has transferred his ambitio his children.

Were not the tale so justly proporti in every particular and so true in ch terization, it could be dismissed as another impertinent celebration of the viously sordid and even bestial in huma ture on the lower levels. But a genuine ing for the tragedy of frustrated h dreaming lifts the book well above the of merely sordid novels.

TO WORK OUT MILK MARKETING PLAN HERE WEDNESDAY

HOPE TO IRON OUT THEIR DIFFICULTIES

Difference of Opinion as to Whether Price Rise Will be Passed On to the Consumer.

Dairy farmers and retail dairymen are to meet at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday in the offices of the Sanitary Milk Producers, Chamber of Commerce Building, to work out a marketing plan under the new Federal farm act.

The step offers the first hope, according to officers of the co-operative, for ironing out difficulties which have disrupted the dairy market here for several years, entailing a dairymen's strike, investigations by the Social Justice Commission and other agencies, and a period of violence which led to issuance of three Federal injunctions.

The officers said that dairymen, feeling that prices paid them were oppressively low, were restrained from joining in the recent strike movement in other states only by the prospect of relief under the new legislation.

Who Will Pay the Increase.

One difference of opinion has arisen prior to the beginning of the conferences. The law is designed to restore farm prices to parity with farm necessities, as in the levels of 1909-14. A rise in the price paid dairy farmers is a foregone conclusion. The question remains, will that rise be passed on the consumers?

Dan C. Kerckhoff, head of the Pevely dairy, the largest here, has said that he thought it would. He forecast an increase in the retail price of one cent a quart. E. W. Tiedeman, president, and A. D. Lynch, secretary-manager of the producers' organization, have expressed the opinion that, under present conditions, a material increase can be made to producers withou tincreasin gthe 10-cent retail price.

Both Kerckhoff and the farmer representatives, however, pointed out that consumers were protected under provisions of the law. The plan, including the specific retail and producer prices, must be passed on at Washington by the administrator to be appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, and, before it can be approved, consumers will have opportunity to state their position, along with dealers and farmers, in public hearing.

Other Factors in Prices.

"We have no positive information of distribution costs upon which to speak," Lynch explained. "We do not have access to the retailers' books. But we do believe the dealers here ought to be able to pay what dealers elsewhere pay farmers on a 10-cent market."

Lynch and Tiedeman, who returned last week from conferences at Washington with Speaker Rainey and Agriculture Department experts assigned to administration of the act, were not ready, however, to assert that both producer and retail prices might not in time advance due to inflation, rise in feed prices or diminishing supply—factors entirely foreign to the marketing plan.

Pevely Paying 10c More.

Pevely dairy announced a 10-cent increase in producer prices last Thursday, to $1.35 a hundred pounds for milk of 4 per cent butterfat delivered at the St. Louis plant. The rise was laid to tightening of supply a month earlier than usual, probably because of hot weather immediately following prolonged rains.

Figures quoted by the co-operative, on milk it sells for its members, to other St. Louis dairies, differ from those quoted by Pevely because the milk is sold on a different basis. Actually the competing prices are about the same level. While June prices of the co-operative have not been set, it is expected that they will reflect the rise announced by Pevely.

month the American wealth seemed to be melting away by some sort of black magic.

It is easily understood that all classes and all parties should be making an effort to cure that strange evil. Is the devaluation of the dollar the right remedy? Among the objections put forward the one that perplexes me most would appear to be the simplest. In order that the position of the debtors should be truly ameliorated, the dollar should lose at least half its value. But would a monetary amputation of that magnitude be possible without a tremendous upheaval in the whole of American life?

Whatever is to happen in the future, what matters most at present is to explain that monstrous inflation of credit, for what reasons it was rendered possible. By its consequences it has been and must still be one of the most painful of the new experiments made by the world since 1914. Let us hope that it will also prove to be one of the most instructive.

That inflation of credit is usually attributed to pride, folly or sometimes merrily the stupidity of American bankers. "Mad, senseless, absurd, preposterous," that is how it is judged by Europe and by books. However, it yet remains to be seen why the Americans allowed themselves to be so easily carried away to the point not only of borrowing, but also of lending such enormous amounts.

It required no genius to foresee that prosperity brought on by inflation of credit could not last; a little common sense would have been sufficient. Mistrust is a professional quality of all keepers of treasure, bankers included. American bankers possess quite as much of it as European ones; what strange spell sent their mistrust to sleep and blinded them after 1914?

The solution of that riddle is also to be found in the World War. The inflation of credit that upset American society was the result of the abundance of money suffered or enjoyed by the United States after 1915; and that abundance was yet another result of the war.

We know that in time of peace trade among nations is carried on by means of an exchange of goods and services. Gold only intervenes as a means of payment to settle small active or passive differences in international accounts. Even the interest or capital borrowed abroad is in the normal course of events paid in kind.

What happened during the World War? The belligerent countries were compelled to make large purchases from America while having very few goods to give in exchange for they were obliged to fight instead of work. Consequently, they had to pay for a considerable part of those goods in gold. Gold accumulated in the United States.

For reasons too long to state here the American accumulation of gold did not come to an end with the war. Supplementary causes continued and even accentuated, in time of peace, that accumulation begun during the war.

In short, after 1914, the United States enjoyed—or suffered—a sudden, rapidly increasing, almost violent, abundance of monetary means; not depreciated paper, as in the case of the belligerents, but good solid metal.

That, as a matter of fact, is what is brought about by all wars on a varying scale; they direct gold and silver onto certain privilege points, rarefying it elsewhere. But a currency is of value only by reason of the use to which it is put. What was to be done with all the gold that was flowing in from all corners of the earth?

Americans brought two solutions to the problem. The first, increased consumption; every one began to spend more. Whence the rise in prices. But the consumption was not sufficient to absorb all that money. The surplus had to be employed in productive investments. The inflation of credit, like the excess of speculation, was born of all that money that did not wish to lie idle.

A prominent New York banker insisted to me that the American banks had been compelled to make a constant stream of credit by a public clamoring to lend its money, provided that it could get an attractive yield on it. That defense seemed to me to be a little farfetched, for it reduced the banker to somewhat too modest part of passive victim of the public and its vagaries.

But on the whole the explanation seems to me to be the right one.

That is how they arrived at that paradox; the richest country in the world up to its ears in debt, not because it had too little money, but because it had too much.

Common sense would have it that we contract debts because we have not enough money. After 1919 the Americans did the contrary; they got into debt among themselves to the point of ruining themselves, because the world had too much money and did not know what to do with it.

Conclusion: the war enriched no one. Not even the peoples it would appeared to have enriched. There was something unnatural and contradictory about those riches created by the war, that made them useless. The only true wealth is that produced by universal effort, intense and slow, in time of peace.

America and Europe knew the enjoyment of that effort from 1848 to 1914. The immense riches created by humanity during that happy period were not always justly distributed; certain countries and certain groups of society benefited by them more than others and more than they deserved, but that enrichment, if rapid, was at the same time gradual, general and evenly balanced.

Gold, and consequently monetary means, increased in the same measure as the other blessings required by humanity. There was always a certain balance between currency and other forms of wealth which did away with or mitigated the abuses for which wealth is so easily liable when it is too scarce or too plentiful.

It was an account of that balance that the fifty years before the World War were the true golden age of history. But the World War shattered that balance, like all the others. It has completely ruined one part of the world, impoverished another, and capriciously enriched a small number of peoples, Spain, Switzerland, Holland, the Scandinavian countries and the United States, by providing them with an abundance of monetary means which had no counterpart in the increase of the general wealth.

In all countries those riches are becoming exhausted beneath the action of different causes and leave nothing behind, beyond an inheritance of paradoxical difficulties, different in each one of them.

The only true wealth is that created in peace and by peace. In time of war it is easier to grow rich than in time of peace, for certain individuals, certain groups of certain peoples. But it is far more difficult to make a reasonable use of riches and, in consequence, to keep them.

comes nearest to being such a building as the principal nations had in past large expositions. Sweden, Japan, Czecho-Slovakia and Egypt have small but attractive buildings, and there are Chinese and Moroccan villages.

France, Germany and South America are unrepresented. England and Mexico have loaned famous trains, the Royal Scot and the Presidential Train. Canada, Denmark, Norway, Irish Free State and the little Grand Duchy of Luxemburg have exhibits in main buildings. Polish and Ukrainian pavilions are listed among the concessions, as is the Belgian Village, where Flemish rather than French is the official language, and where stout and bearded burghers wear costumes of red and yellow resembling those of London Tower's Beefeaters, or the Swiss Guard at the Vatican. The wearers insist, however, that the gay garments belong historically to Belgium.

A few Orientals, and quite a few American Indians, supply most of the costume variations to be seen along the Fair's streets. In this respect, this exposition cannot compare with the St. Louis Fair, with its Philippine tribesmen, Boer veterans and dwellers in Jerusalem, Tyroleans and hairy Ainu, pygmies and Patagonians, who were seldom out of view in the Pike or on the main avenues.

States Hold Down Expenses.

This fair, with its new architectural lines, did not desire the usual type of state buildings, which in the past have run to replicas, such as Mount Vernon, Monticello or Daniel Webster's birthplace. The states, as it happened, were not anxious to spend money on buildings at this time, so everything was settled nicely by attaching a Court of States to the Federal Building, and giving each state an exhibit hall—or stall.

Missouri's display, one of the largest, features the Ozarks and the lake thereof. California shows redwoods, fruits and a model of San Francisco, with each filling station and switch shanty represented, Indiana has excellent murals interpreting early Hoosier history. The lake states, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, try to help the motor tourist decided where he shall go next. Illinois, as host state, has a hospitality building near the main entrance, as well as exhibits in the state space. Puerto Rico and Alaska each have put a good territorial foot forward, and Florida is all over the place, having a sponge-fishing exhibit in the lagoon and a residential promotion within its space.

The classification of exhibit buildings seemed to me an improvement on that of past expositions. There are the Hall of Science, devoted to basic principles, and an adequate group of other buildings, devoted to processes and products. It was announced that this exposition was to show processes rather than products, and so it does, probably to as great an extent as is practicable.

You can see a shirt made, an automobile assembled, a tire fabricated and a tube of tooth paste prepared for its highly competitive market. You can see a good many other forms of manufacture in miniature, or in still or moving pictures.

Pure science, shown on the two floors of the Hall of Science in the branches of mathematics, physics, chemistry, biology, geology and medicine, is further explained by uniformed guides, graduates and undergraduates of technical schools. Here the student can calculate the velocity of light with Prof. Michelson's apparatus, can view sound waves on their travels, can see chemistry at work in the human body, and can puzzle over the torsion apparatus, new divining rod for the finding of oil deposits. Astronomy is omitted in this building, as the Adler Planetarium, permanent and famous Chicago institution, is within the Fair grounds.

Prof. Piccard's aluminum gondola, in which he went 53,856 feet above the earth in his stratospheric expedition from Switzerland last summer, and the steel bathysphere in which William Beebe went 1426 feet below the Atlantic Ocean's surface, are in one of the display courts of the Hall of Science.

Mechanical Cotton Picker.

In the agricultural group, the latest planting and harvesting machinery for grain has a new neighbor, the mechanical cotton-picker. If, as historians have said, Whitney's cotton gin multiplied the value of slave labor, and thus brought on the Civil War, what new cataclysm may be wrought by a machine which threatens to displace the plantation laborer? A placard on the cotton machine says that it has not been brought to a stage of entirely satisfactory performance, but that its makers expect to perfect it soon.

Transportation's future, likewise, may be sheathed in the silvery frame of the aluminum railroad coach, in the Travel and Transport Building. This building, with its outlying motor palaces, those of General Motors and Chrysler, is likely to be the schoolboy's favorite, as I recall that the corresponding building was in the '93 and '04 World's Fairs. For one thing, the transportation people, railroads, air and bus lines, are about the only ones at this fair who are giving away the printed matter with which—another memory of the '93 fair—a boy loves to stuff his pockets.

Ford Not Represented.

The two motor concerns mentioned are exhibiting in a big way—the "G. M." of the larger building can be seen almost from the other end of the grounds. Henry Ford, whom some would credit with having aided in the progress of the century, is not listed among the exhibitors of A Century of Progress.

The Dairy Building of the agricultural group is devoted to glorifying the American cow and increasing her yield of butter fat. Here a large model cow is shown in compartments, with bullet-headed robots in each compartment working busily at the processes of compression and mixing by which the preferably contented bossie converts green grass into white milk. This exhibit is good for a deep, healthful laugh.

In the almost unsightly General Exhibits Building, a rambling neo-warehouse in five sections, are the products not falling under other classifications. At earlier expositions, the Manufactures and Varied Industries Buildings served the same purpose. In this building are an African diamond mine, with diamond-bearing soil brought from Kimberley, a Gutenberg printing shop with Johann's original press, and oil-refining and textile process exhibits.

New Houses, Steel or Glass.

Most of the 11 exhibit model houses of the home planning group were still unopened when I was at the Fair, but wives were dragging their husbands through the Stran-steel house, built by Detroit architects on plans furnished by a housekeeping magazine, and figured to cost $7900, exclusive of equipment and, of course, exclusive of site cost.

Other model houses are of enamel, of brick reinforced with steel rods which make the house virtually one piece, of a limestone-shale compound, of cypress lumber, of colored glass bricks, and of clear glass, with interior drapes for shading and privacy. Wives pronounced them "dear"; husbands believed they would be.

On the Island, the combined Social Science, Radio-Communications and Electricity Building forms a figure 5, of which the arc is the Electricity Building. In its waterfront court, at night, flows a brilliant fountain of chromium light reflections, illuminating jets of water. Such glorious use of electricity had not been learned 40 years ago, when the Columbian Exposition's builders, designing the facade of their Electricity Building, could only put up a statue of the kite-flying Franklin, with grandiloquent Latin inscription, and string light bulbs on the surmounting arch.

The Horticultural Building, with admission charge and continuous loud-speaker ballyhoo, is on the Island. Here, it seemed to me, anyone who had the privilege of seeing the recent National Flower Show, at the St. Louis Arena, might well save his time and his money.

Golden Pavilion of Jehol.

Serenely disregardful of the new architecture around it, the Golden Pavilion of Jehol, or Lama Temple, stands near the Hall of Science. Its exterior is beautiful; its interior, to which admission is charged, is a gorgeous show of the intricate lore of polytheism, with weather deities, dragons, Buddhas, prayer wheels, trumpets, gongs and masks. The Pavilion was built in the city of the Manchu emperors, where its original stands, was brought to the Fair in 28,000 pieces, and was assembled and painted by Chinese artisans and artists. It gives the visitor one of his most interesting half hours.

The Maya Temple, reproduction of the Nunnery of Uxmal, Yucatan, is classed among the main exhibit structures, and has no pay gate. Archeologists of Tulane University, New Orleans, designed the replica and collected the casts and photographs shown within, showing ruins and remnants of tropical America at a time probably before the Christian era.

The Fine Arts Department of the Fair is not on the grounds, but at the Art Institute on Michigan boulevard. Whistler's Portrait of My Mother, loaned by the Louvre and seen recently at the St. Louis Art Museum, is perhaps the most famed item of a loan collection, assembled for this occasion, which is valued at many millions, and which includes old masters, works of the past century and the contemporary period.

Nearer to the exposition grounds, and included in its publicity broadcasts, are Field Museum of Natural History and Shedd Aquarium, standard and famed Chicago institutions.

The Hall of Religion, where the Chalice of Antioch, treasured relic of the early Christian church, is to be among the exhibits, was not ready for the public at the time of my visit.

Among the Concessions.

Finest of the Fair's concessions are the Lama Temple and the Belgian Village, already mentioned, and Pantheon de la Guerre, French cyclorama on the midway. Pantheon's host of war heroes, grouped by (allied) nations, includes a large complement from Russia, with Czar Nicholas in the foreground, and somber memorial shaft to the destroyed Franco-Russian Entente. The background, no less striking, seems to show the whole extent of the West Front in France. The portraiture of war's glory and honor leads to a tomb, where a widow kneels.

The Battle of Gettysburg cyclorama, likewise on the Midway, was at the fair of 40 years ago. At that time, it was related, a Confederate veteran, viewing the painful scenes o fthe South's defeat, asked why it was that no one had made a panorama of Bull Run.

A Midget Village, a freak assemblage, Ripley's Believe It or Not collection of freaks, oddities and demonstrations of skill, and the baby incubators, are among the Midway's bids for business. The incubators are not so different from those shown at the St. Louis World's Fair, but the babies are new and real, and when I saw them, included twins. A sequel of the St. Louis Fair, remembered by lawyers and newspaper workers, was a suit over the custody of one of the Pike incubator infants, which was in the courts here for years.

Three days is not too much time for seeing the Fair's main exhibits and leading sideshows, or four days for the Fair and the outside art and scientific displays. This is assuming that no time is spent in business or visiting; in such a case, a week may be kept fairly full The flooring and paving, except for the Belgian Village cobbles, seem to afford easy walking; yet one may blister his feet at this Fair, as I demonstrated to my own dissatisfaction.

I am unable to judge what will be the song hit of this fair, or whether it will send any song circling the world as "After the Ball" was sent by the Chicago Fair of 40 years ago. Better songs than "After the Ball" were being written then, and better ones are being written now; but the radio makes for quick popularity and quick subsidence, and probably no song now could have the hardy persistence that Charles K. Harris' ballad of bathos had in the 'nineties. The fair's avenues are lined with speakers, from which music proceeds most of the time. The only air I heard more than once was "Shuffle Off at Buffalo," which has a foot-starting rhythm.

Destitute Jobless Look On.

Outside the grounds, particularly on the viaduct leading to the Twenty-third street entrance, destitute men gather for a distant sensing of the Fair's sights and sounds. The Social Science Building, with its educational and sociological display, does not quite show what can be done about this.

Opening later (May 27) than the '93 and '04 fairs did, and ending Nov. 1, this fair will have about as many days as did its predecessors. Congressional restrictions kept the earlier World's Fairs closed on Sunday; this one, with no Federal bounty, wrote its own calendar of seven days a week. Attendance marks of the past, which the management of this fair hopes to exceed, are: Chicago, 1893, 27,500,000; St. Louis, 1904, 19,700,000; and San Francisco, 1915, 18,400,000. Of these, about two-thirds were paid admissions.

COMMITTEE ON CHILD CARE RESOURCES IS ANNOUNCED

Community Council Agency Formed Because of Need of More Funds.

Formation of a Committee on Child Care Resources, to gather information and to assist homeless and neglected children, was announced yesterday by Mrs. E. H. Steedman, president of the Community Council.

Decreased income for the care of needy children has resulted from fewer and smaller voluntary contributions and lessened ability of parents and relatives to contribute toward support of children, Mrs. Steedman said. There are fewer foster homes available, also, she added.

15,000 TICKETS SOLD FOR BUSINESS EXHIBIT

Workers for the Board of Religious Organizations last week began the ticket selling campaign for its Exposition of Progress to be held July 17 to 22 at the Winter Garden, 520 De Baliviere avenue.

Mrs. Norman S. Brown, president, said the organization's 6000 members have volunteered their services in the ticket campaign and have sold about 15,000 tickets. There are 150 teams of volunteers, divided into 10 divisions. Their goal is 75,000 tickets to be sold by the end of the advance campaign, three days before the exhibition is to begin.

The exhibition was planned to raise funds needed to carry on the work of the organization this year. It is to receive only about $15,000 from the recent Community Fund campaign for character building agencies and will need another $25,000, Mrs. Brown said.

"While one of our chief objects is to raise money to carry on the work," Mrs. Brown said, "it is also a movement to start a revival of business and a restoration of confidence. Nearly all types of business and industry will be represented at the exposition. Both exhibits and entertainment will depict twentieth century progress, showing striking comparisons of the new with the old."

Exhibit space, Mrs. Brown said, is being sold readily. The week of the exposition, she said, is to be designated by the Mayor and the Chamber of Commerce as "Exposition of Progress week."

The Board of Religious Organizations, composed of woman members of Protestant churches, is engaged in such activities as training foreign-born women in English and citizenship, entertainment of patients at institutions, volunteer service to relief agencies and instructing crippled children unable to attend school. Each year it operates a Christmas toy shop, where mothers of needy families can obtain reconditioned toys for their children.

It operates the Girls' Club at 4474 McPherson avenue, where a temporary home is provided for girls in need. It is associated with the Big Sisters in the operation of a girls' protective department on the eighth floor of the Equitable Building.

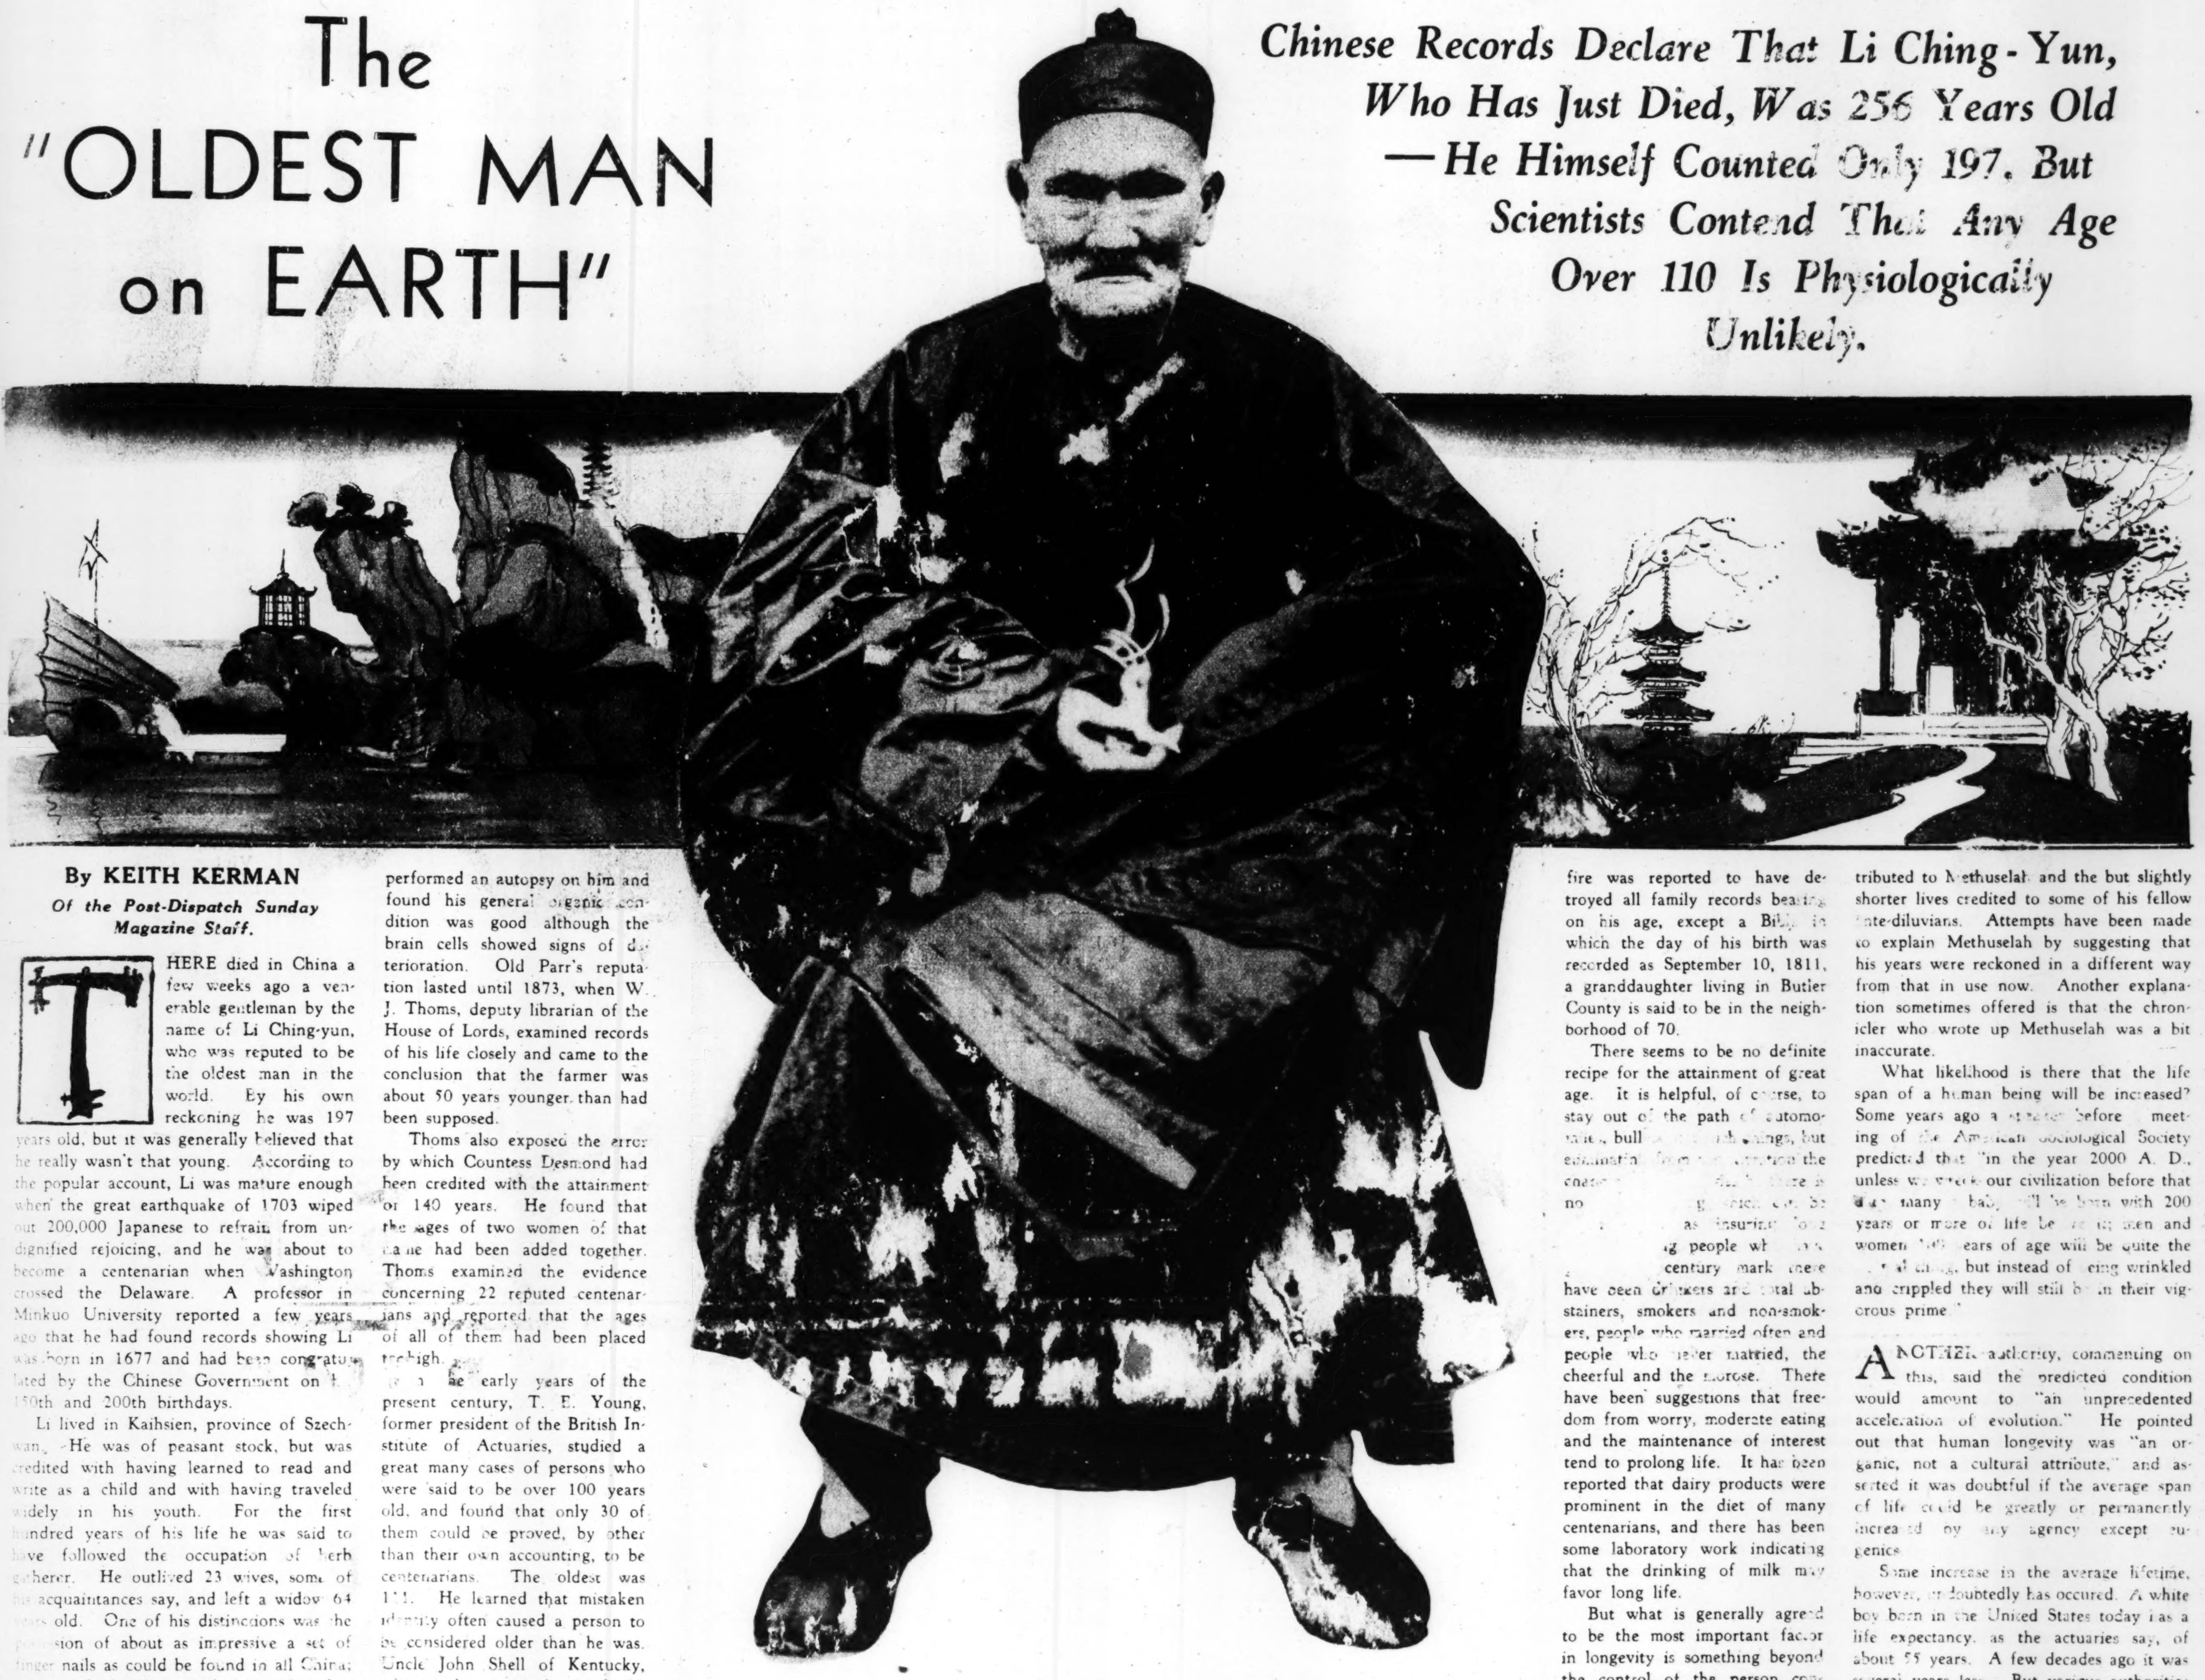
The "OLDEST MAN on EARTH"

Chinese Records Declare That Li Ching-Yun, Who Has Just Died, Was 256 Years Old—He Himself Counted Only 197. But Scientists Contend That Any Age Over 110 Is Physiologically Unlikely.



The Honorable Li Ching-Yun and his fabulous finger nails.

By KEITH KERMAN
Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff.

THERE died in China a few weeks ago a venerable gentleman by the name of Li Ching-yun, who was reputed to be the oldest man in the world. By his own reckoning he was 197 years old, but it was generally believed that he really wasn't that young. According to the popular account, Li was mature enough when the great earthquake of 1703 wiped out 200,000 Japanese to refrain from undignified rejoicing, and he was about to become a centenarian when Washington crossed the Delaware. A professor in Minkuo University reported a few years ago that he had found records showing Li was born in 1677 and had been congratulated by the Chinese Government on his 150th and 200th birthdays.

Li lived in Kaihsien, province of Szechwan. He was of peasant stock, but was credited with having learned to read and write as a child and with having traveled widely in his youth. For the first hundred years of his life he was said to have followed the occupation of herb gatherer. He outlived 23 wives, some of his acquaintances say, and left a widow 64 years old. One of his distinctions was the possession of about as impressive a set of finger nails as could be found in all China; on his right hand the nails were 12 inches long and magnificently curly.

The cultivation of peace of mind was one of Li's recipes for long life. He also once advised a pupil to "keep a quiet heart, sit like a tortoise, walk sprightly like a pigeon and sleep like a dog." But a different explanation of Li's longevity is given by some of the old men of Szechwan Province, who say their grandfathers as boys knew the patriarch and he was then well along in years. They think that Li used a secret elixir made from some of the herbs with which he was so familiar.

LI WAS AN HERB GATHERER

Whatever this Chinese did to prolong his life it seems unlikely that he will go down in scientific history as having attained 256 years, or even the 197 he claimed for himself. Waiving the question of whether a man could escape death in the famines, floods, pestilence and wars of China for two centuries or so, medical science takes the view that a person simply can't live that long. A little more than 100 years is the longest the human body can function, in the opinion of biologists. A writer on this subject stated a short time ago that "the most extreme case of longevity that medical records show fully substantiated was not quite 111 years."

A good many people have been credited with ages far beyond the scientifically acceptable maximum. But when such cases have been investigated it has almost always been discovered that there was error in calculations or records, or that the only evidence was the word of the person being investigated. It is regarded as significant that a large proportion of the cases of extreme longevity are reported in regions where birth and death records are not carefully kept.

One of the reputations for great age which failed to survive investigation was that of Old Parr, an Englishman, who was supposed to have lived from 1483 to 1635. In the latter year he was working as a farmer, when the Earl of Arundel discovered him and took him to London, where he was exhibited as a phenomenal old fellow who not only had attained the age of 152 but had married when 120 and fathered a child. Old Parr soon died under the strain of London life. William Harvey, discoverer of the circulation of the blood, performed an autopsy on him and found his general organic condition was good although the brain cells showed signs of deterioration. Old Parr's reputation lasted until 1873, when W. J. Thoms, deputy librarian of the House of Lords, examined records of his life closely and came to the conclusion that the farmer was about 50 years younger than had been supposed.

Thoms also exposed the error by which Countess Desmond had been credited with the attainment of 140 years. He found that the ages of two women of that name had been added together. Thoms examined the evidence concerning 22 reputed centenarians and reported that the ages of all of them had been placed too high.

In the early years of the present century, T. E. Young, former president of the British Institute of Actuaries, studied a great many cases of persons who were said to be over 100 years old, and found that only 30 of them could be proved, by other than their own accounting, to be centenarians. The oldest was 111. He learned that mistaken identity often caused a person to be considered older than he was. Uncle John Shell of Kentucky, who, at the supposed age of 131 had been exhibited as "the oldest living human being," was pronounced "about 100 years old possibly a year younger or older."

A few years ago a Kurd, Zaro Agha, from Istanbul, was being considerably publicized as "the oldest man in the world." Zaro, described as a veteran of six wars and 12 marriages, came to the United States in 1930, and his passport gave his birth year as 1774. He had quite a lively time in New York, buying a set of false teeth, posing for pictures, giving interviews through an interpreter, showing a marked preference for brunettes, and getting hit by an automobile. In telling the story of his life, Zaro said he had fought against Napoleon in Syria and Egypt, in a war against Greece, and in four wars against Russia.

He was 103 when he served in his last war, he related, and part of his duty was to carry cannons about. His bowed but tremendous back made that seem not entirely incredible. He worked as a porter, he explained, until he was 112 years old.

After leaving America Zaro went to England and got a job with a circus. Early this year he was back in his old job as office boy in the Istanbul City Hall, happily drawing a salary of $25 a month. Before his return, however, another Turk had bobbed up to dispute his old-age record. Iimur Agha, a villager, said Zaro was only 125, instead of 158, and he insisted he knew because he had dangled Zaro on his knee when the latter was a boy of 5. Iimur gave his own age as 165.

Many reported cases of extreme longevity are found in Southeastern Europe and Asia Minor. A Russian university professor found a village of 120 inhabitants in the Caucasus which has 18 men who said they were centenarians. Kurdistan produced Zair Effendi, who in 1925, when he was reputed to be 151 years old, went to Rome to be examined by an anthropological society. Henri Barbusse, French author, interviewed an inhabitant of the Soviet republic of Abkhasia, Transcaucasia, who said he was 142. Farther north, a Latvian farmer, some years ago, proved to the satisfaction of his government that he was 125 years old and was granted a pension. It was announced in 1928 that Soviet Russia contained 29,493 persons listed as centenarians.

In the 1930 census in the United States 3964 persons gave their age as 100 or over, but the Census Bureau did not consider the figures reliable. It said: "Because persons of advanced age sometimes knowingly report themselves to the enumerator as older than they actually are, or, not knowing their true ages, make exaggerated guesses, the returns undoubtedly overstate the number of centenarians, particularly in the Negro population."

Missouri has a resident who gives his age as 120 years. He is Ben Hodge, who lives in a farm cabin about 15 miles from Poplar Bluff. He is reputed to be the oldest man in the State, now that Thomas Kemp, who also lived in Butler County, is dead. Kemp died last September, a few weeks after what he said was his one hundred and twentieth birthday. Although a fire was reported to have destroyed all family records bearing on his age, except a Bible in which the day of his birth was recorded as September 10, 1811, a granddaughter living in Butler County is said to be in the neighborhood of 70.

There seems to be no definite recipe for the attainment of great age. It is helpful, of course, to stay out of the path of automobiles, bull [illegible] things, but [illegible] the chances [illegible] there is no [illegible] which can be [illegible] as insuring long [illegible] people who [illegible] century mark there have been drinkers and total abstainers, smokers and non-smokers, people who married often and people who never married, the cheerful and the morose. There have been suggestions that freedom from worry, moderate eating and the maintenance of interest tend to prolong life. It has been reported that dairy products were prominent in the diet of many centenarians, and there has been some laboratory work indicating that the drinking of milk may favor long life.

But what is generally agreed to be the most important factor in longevity is something beyond the control of the person concerned—heredity. Scientists think that to live to a great age it is almost essential to have inherited a certain toughness of constitution which throws off disease and keeps the body in working order for longer than the average lifetime. Almost all centenarians who have been investigated have been found to come from long-lived stock. The Missourian, Kemp, used to say that a sister of his lived to the age of 126.

ZARO WAS A PORTER

There has been a scientific estimate that the potential life span of a human being is 100 years; that is, if none of its parts was damaged by outside conditions such as injury and disease, the bodily machine would stay in working order for a century. It is doubtful, however, if anyone lives out his life with his bodily functions unimpaired by external influences. Some physicians say death from uncomplicated old age—the mere wearing out of the human machine—is extremely rare. Some say it never occurs. As Sir Humphrey Rolleston, former president of the Royal College of Physicians of London, has expressed it: "In fact, at the best, old age is almost always but relatively physiological: in other words, as Metchnikoff wrote in 1903, there is at present, from the conditions of inharmonious environment, no chance of a really physiological old age and death of mankind." Rolleston had previously defined "physiological old age as a process of involution and atrophy uncomplicated by superimposed pathological changes."

If there is acceptance of the theory that a person's capacity to live is limited to about 100 years, even under the most favorable conditions, reports of ages which far exceed this limit are bound to be received skeptically.

There is scientific opinion, too, that this capacity to live has not changed since man first appeared on earth; that the body of a baby born today is in construction no better and no worse fitted to survive to an old age than was that of Adam. In other words, in the million years or so since Homo sapiens was evolved there has been no improvement in the body which makes it potentially capable of longer life. Of course, one can hardly hold this view and give full credence to the 969 years attributed to Methuselah and the but slightly shorter lives credited to some of his fellow ante-diluvians. Attempts have been made to explain Methuselah by suggesting that his years were reckoned in a different way from that in use now. Another explanation sometimes offered is that the chronicler who wrote up Methuselah was a bit inaccurate.

What likelihood is there that the life span of a human being will be increased? Some years ago a speaker before a meeting of the American Sociological Society predicted that "in the year 2000 A. D., unless we wreck our civilization before that day, many a baby will be born with 200 years or more of life before it; men and women [illegible] years of age will be quite the normal thing, but instead of being wrinkled and crippled they will still be in their vigorous prime."

ANOTHER authority, commenting on this, said the predicted condition would amount to "an unprecedented acceleration of evolution." He pointed out that human longevity was "an organic, not a cultural attribute," and asserted it was doubtful if the average span of life could be greatly or permanently increased by any agency except eugenics.

Some increase in the average lifetime, however, undoubtedly has occured. A white boy born in the United States today has a life expectancy, as the actuaries say, of about 55 years. A few decades ago it was several years less. But various authorities ascribe this lengthening of the average life largely to the decrease in infant mortality and to the fact that medical science keeps the "weakly" alive longer than in the past; many think that after a person is 60 or so the likelihood of his attaining a very old age is less than it used to be, due to the accelerated pace of modern life. Incidentally, there are more women than men among the very old.

In "The Science of Life (Doubleday, Doran and Company), Wells, Huxley and Wells discuss old age under the heading: "The Wearing Out of the Machine." They say in part:

"The chemical basis of this wearing out is at present not understood. Old age seems to be associated in some way with defective calcium metabolism; the brittleness of senescent bones is due to the reabsorption of lime salts into the blood. Moreover, there seems to be an accumulation of poisonous substances in the blood . . . Sooner or later one or other of the essential organs fails and the body dies.

"It is important to realize that our cells do not die because mortality is inherent in their internal structure. They die because they are parts of a very complicated system based on co-operation, and sooner or later one of the tissues lets the other down . . . As a matter of fact, living matter is potentially immortal. If one keeps a culture from the tissues of a young animal and takes subcultures regularly, the race of cells can apparently go on growing and dividing indefinitely. Death is a consequence of incomplete organization; the tissues die because they are parts of an imperfectly balanced body.

"How far it may be possible for a body to sustain its balance and continue indefinitely, or at least for a much longer period than the normal life of its species, is an interesting matter for speculation. Such a prolongation is not Nature's ordinary way . . . Much more experiment is needed in this direction (glandular treatment) before we can confidently and safely hold back the advance of age . . .

"A time may come when men as a race will live more sanely and fully and suffer less. But it seems inconceivable that any individual human body will ever evade its final goal of death."

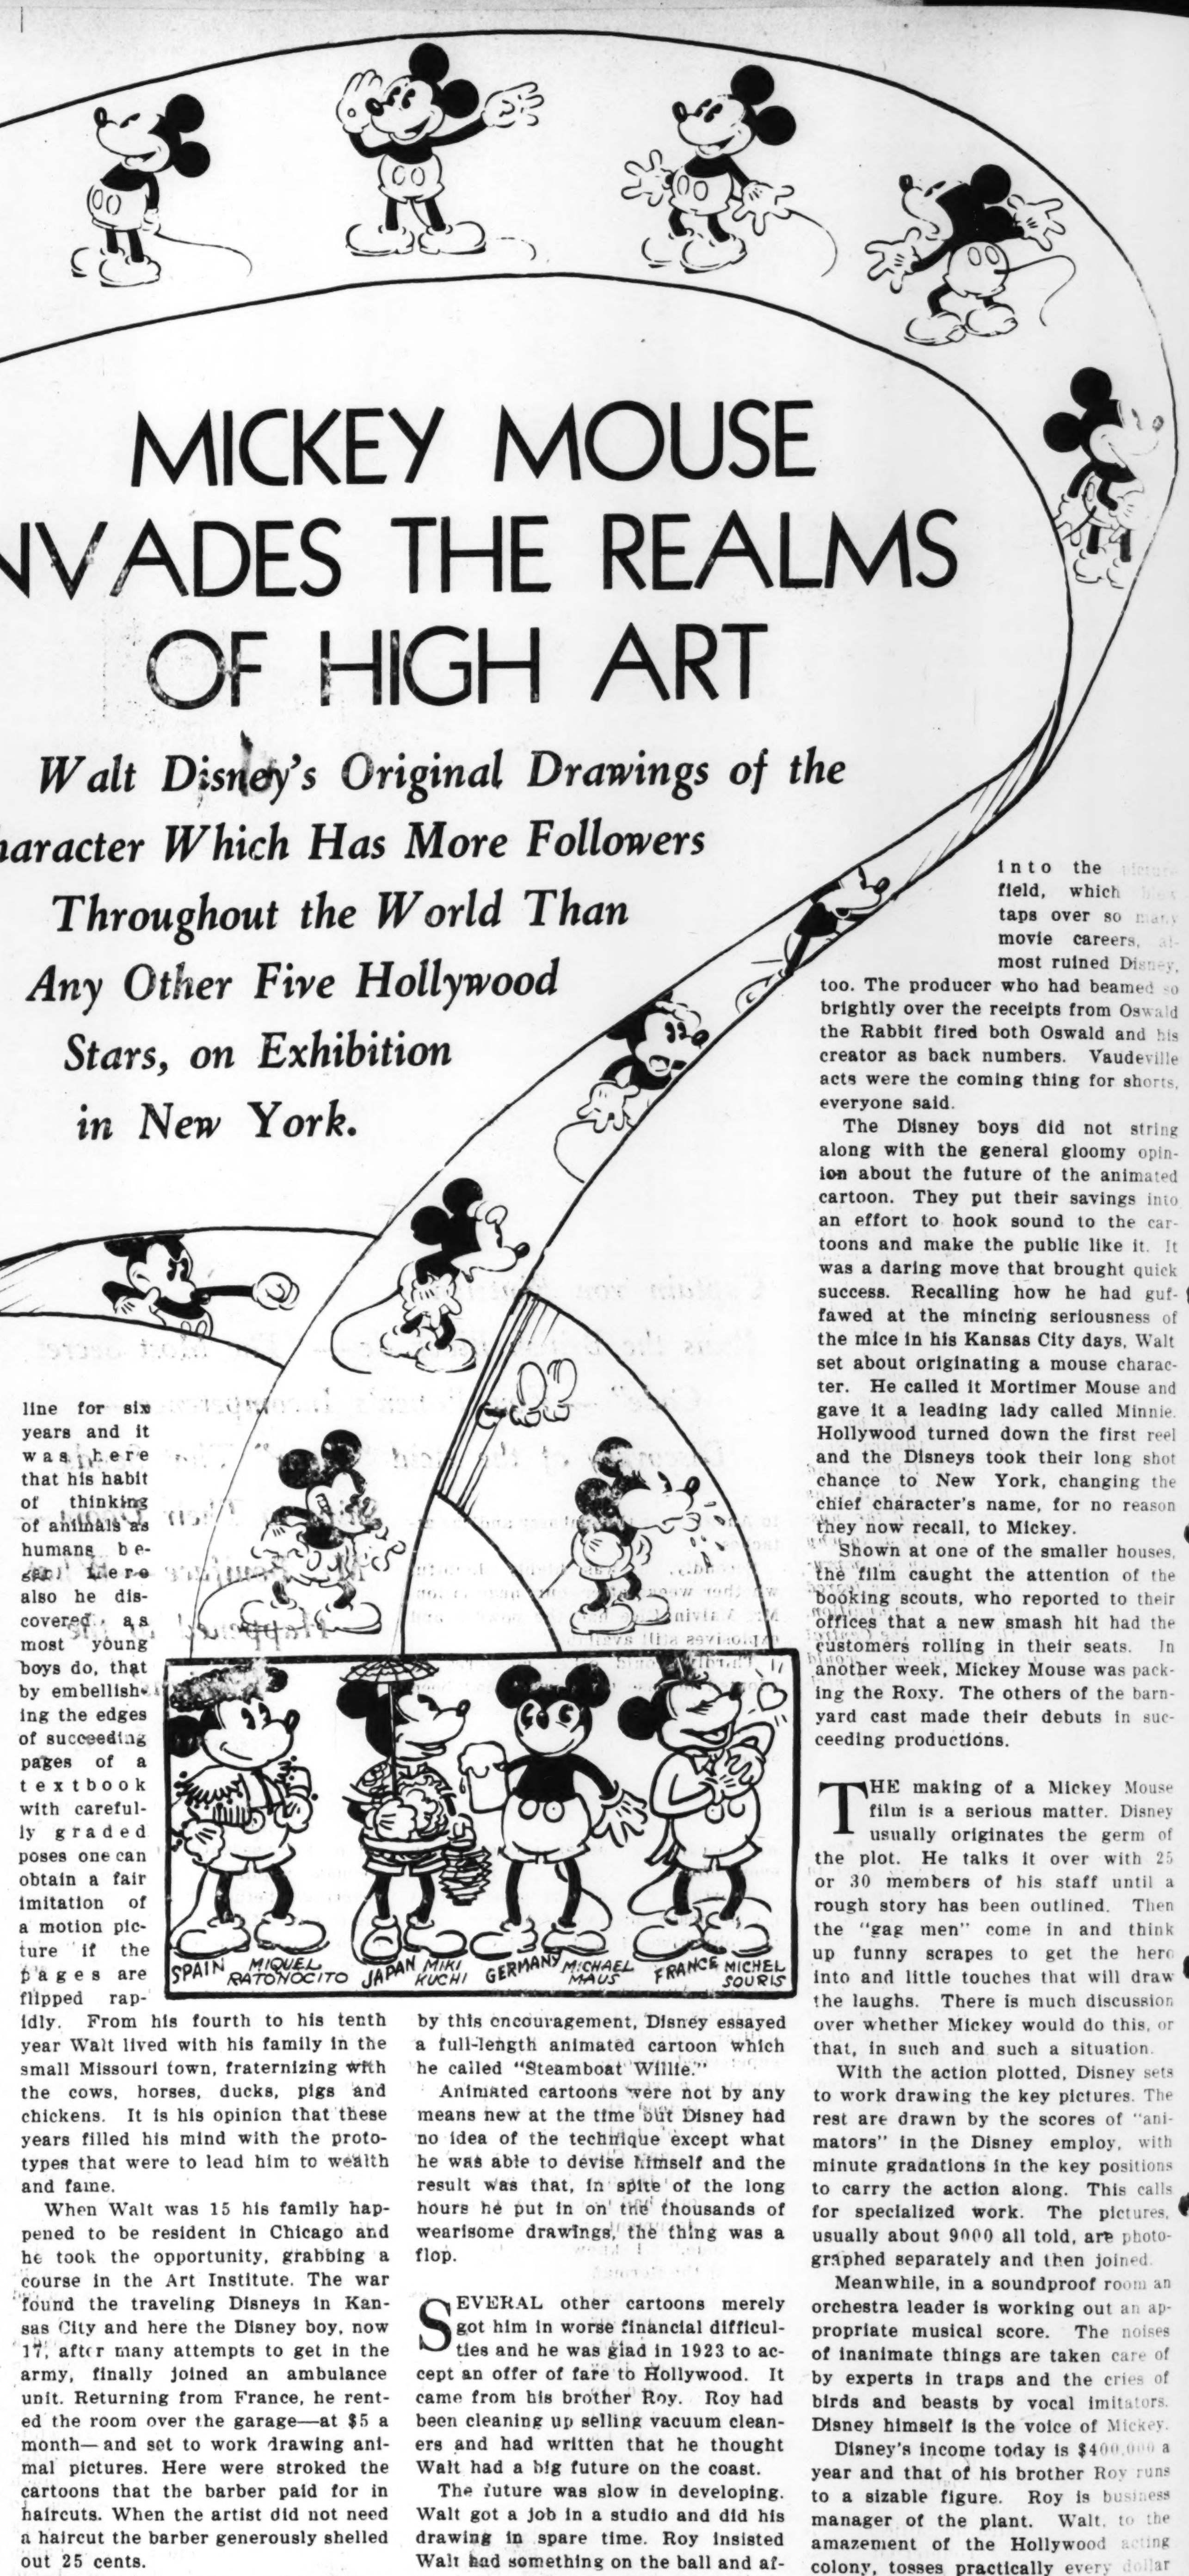
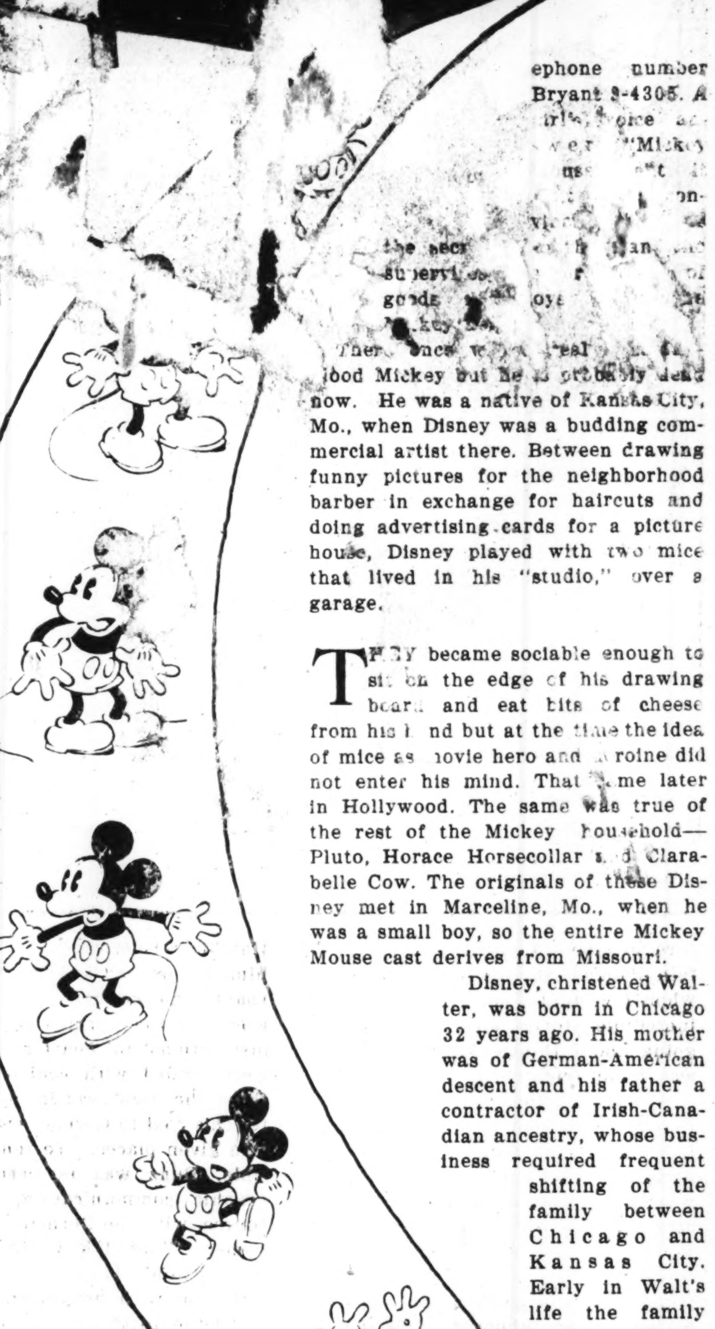
MICKEY MOUSE INVADES THE REALMS OF HIGH ART

Walt Disney's Original Drawings of the Character Which Has More Followers Throughout the World Than Any Other Five Hollywood Stars, on Exhibition in New York.





By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

AMONG those present at the White House discussions which greased the machinery for the World Economic Conference in London was none other than that well-known statesman, Mickey Mouse. Mickey and Minnie and Clarabelle Cow and Horace Horsecollar, the flatfooted nag, and Pluto, the grateful dog, danced into the library with the coffee and cigarettes and when the lights were switched on again the Prime Minister of England and the envoy of France were in stitches.

This was not an unusual triumph for Mickey. King George and Queen Mary, and perhaps other rulers too dignified to admit it, have a soft spot for him, also. Tokio children clap their hands and shout approval of Miki Kuchi. Spain knows him as Miguel Ratonocito, Germany as Michael Maus and France as Michel Souris. He is more popular in foreign countries than Charlie Chaplin in his heyday. He has more followers than Chevalier, Garbo, Dietrich and Marie Dressler put together. His fan mail is the biggest Hollywood has ever seen. Unquestionably, Mickey is one of the strong men of Hollywood. Once an orphan of the West Coast colony, he is now the adored of exhibitors. He jams houses and causes wholesale abdominal spasms. While flesh-and-blood stars fear to appear in more than half a dozen films a year, Mickey swaggers through 18 pictures annually and his popularity bounces on. One observer writes that Mickey appeals because, like Chaplin, he is the little fellow trying to do the best he can. This is as good a guess as any but it is more fun to laugh than to analyze and one is less apt to make a mistake.

In one of the older art galleries in New York—the Kennedy Galleries—an exhibit of Mickey Mouse originals—sketches direct from the pad of Walt Disney, Mickey's creator and best friend—is now being put on. In these sketches the art critics find "genius . . . integrity of draftsmanship . . . effective massing of spaces . . . the drama of the eternal ego." Throughout the land industry is producing and business selling, by the grace of the Mickey tag, ginger ale, bathing suits, ice cream, pencil boxes, watches and a hundred other articles. There is magic in the name. A comic strip is syndicated to 160 newspapers and its "balloons" are translated into 27 languages for foreign distribution.

In the outskirts of Los Angeles, just off Hollywood boulevard, is Mickey's $150,000 studio, its white stucco respendent in the sun, its facade topped by a large figure of Miguel Ratonocito himself waving a welcome. Within, Disney and a staff of advisers plot Mickey's adventures, which are pen-and-inked into action in from 8000 to 10,000 separate drawings by 175 artists, hooked up to a sound track made in another part of the building and broadcast to the world through a large distributing agency. In a tiny garage in the yard are two midget model sedans bearing nameplates of Mickey and his leading woman and one true love, Minnie. The cars are used by studio workers for errands. Indoors, the walls are hung with drawings of Mickey in a thousand poses. On the door of a private office is a red and gold shield bearing a coat of arms and the name "Ickmay Ousmay," which is "pig Latin," or gibberish, for Mickey Mouse.

Mickey seems so much of a reality that it is hard to realize that he is a mere mental figment. He is part of the day-to-day life of almost every civilized country and his joyous personality pervades the Disney studio like corn beef and cabbage but it is impossible to lay a finger on him, naturally. Children who visit put the attendants to all sorts of prevarication and invention with their demands to see Mickey in person. The usual gag is to say that he is on his way to San Francisco for a special brand of cheese and won't be back until morning. The closest thing to actual contact is achieved by dialing the Manhattan telephone number Bryant 9-4305. A [illegible] once [illegible] ver "Mickey [illegible] the secr[illegible] supervi[illegible] goods [illegible] oye[illegible] [illegible]key [illegible].

There once [illegible] real [illegible]ood Mickey but he is probably dead now. He was a native of Kansas City, Mo., when Disney was a budding commercial artist there. Between drawing funny pictures for the neighborhood barber in exchange for haircuts and doing advertising cards for a picture house, Disney played with two mice that lived in his "studio," over a garage.

THEY became sociable enough to sit on the edge of his drawing board and eat bits of cheese from his hand but at the time the idea of mice as movie hero and heroine did not enter his mind. That came later in Hollywood. The same was true of the rest of the Mickey household—Pluto, Horace Horsecollar and Clarabelle Cow. The originals of these Disney met in Marceline, Mo., when he was a small boy, so the entire Mickey Mouse cast derives from Missouri.

Disney, christened Walter, was born in Chicago 32 years ago. His mother was of German-American descent and his father a contractor of Irish-Canadian ancestry, whose business required frequent shifting of the family between Chicago and Kansas City. Early in Walt's life the family lived in Marceline for six years and it was here that his habit of thinking of animals as humans began. Here also he discovered, as most young boys do, that by embellishing the edges of succeeding pages of a textbook with carefully graded poses one can obtain a fair imitation of a motion picture if the pages are flipped rapidly. From his fourth to his tenth year Walt lived with his family in the small Missouri town, fraternizing with the cows, horses, ducks, pigs and chickens. It is his opinion that these years filled his mind with the prototypes that were to lead him to wealth and fame.

When Walt was 15 his family happened to be resident in Chicago and he took the opportunity, grabbing a course in the Art Institute. The war found the traveling Disneys in Kansas City and here the Disney boy, now 17, after many attempts to get in the army, finally joined an ambulance unit. Returning from France, he rented the room over the garage—at $5 a month—and set to work drawing animal pictures. Here were stroked the cartoons that the barber paid for in haircuts. When the artist did not need a haircut the barber generously shelled out 25 cents.

The proprietor of a motion picture house saw the pictures and hired Disney to draw animated cartoon slides for screen advertisements. Heartened by this encouragement, Disney essayed a full-length animated cartoon which he called "Steamboat Willie."

Animated cartoons were not by any means new at the time but Disney had no idea of the technique except what he was able to devise himself and the result was that, in spite of the long hours he put in on the thousands of wearisome drawings, the thing was a flop.

SEVERAL other cartoons merely got him in worse financial difficulties and he was glad in 1923 to accept an offer of fare to Hollywood. It came from his brother Roy. Roy had been cleaning up selling vacuum cleaners and had written that he thought Walt had a big future on the coast.

The future was slow in developing. Walt got a job in a studio and did his drawing in spare time. Roy insisted Walt had something on the ball and after many failures, Walt finally, in 1927, produced a saleable cartoon. Oswald the rabbit was the hero and the public liked him so well that Walt felt financially justified in getting married. Lillian Bounds of Los Angeles was the girl. But the advent of sound into the picture field, which blows taps over so many movie careers, almost ruined Disney, too. The producer who had beamed so brightly over the receipts from Oswald the Rabbit fired both Oswald and his creator as back numbers. Vaudeville acts were the coming thing for shorts, everyone said.

The Disney boys did not string along with the general gloomy opinion about the future of the animated cartoon. They put their savings into an effort to hook sound to the cartoons and make the public like it. It was a daring move that brought quick success. Recalling how he had guffawed at the mincing seriousness of the mice in his Kansas City days, Walt set about originating a mouse character. He called it Mortimer Mouse and gave it a leading lady called Minnie. Hollywood turned down the first reel and the Disneys took their long shot chance to New York, changing the chief character's name, for no reason they now recall, to Mickey.

Shown at one of the smaller houses, the film caught the attention of the booking scouts, who reported to their offices that a new smash hit had the customers rolling in their seats. In another week, Mickey Mouse was packing the Roxy. The others of the barnyard cast made their debuts in succeeding productions.

THE making of a Mickey Mouse film is a serious matter. Disney usually originates the germ of the plot. He talks it over with 25 or 30 members of his staff until a rough story has been outlined. Then the "gag men" come in and think up funny scrapes to get the hero into and little touches that will draw the laughs. There is much discussion over whether Mickey would do this, or that, in such and such a situation.

With the action plotted, Disney sets to work drawing the key pictures. The rest are drawn by the scores of "animators" in the Disney employ, with minute gradations in the key positions to carry the action along. This calls for specialized work. The pictures, usually about 9000 all told, are photographed separately and then joined.

Meanwhile, in a soundproof room an orchestra leader is working out an appropriate musical score. The noises of inanimate things are taken care of by experts in traps and the cries of birds and beasts by vocal imitators. Disney himself is the voice of Mickey.

Disney's income today is $400,000 a year and that of his brother Roy runs to a sizable figure. Roy is business manager of the plant. Walt, to the amazement of the Hollywood acting colony, tosses practically every dollar back into his work and lives on a surprisingly modest scale. Large sums are being poured into the Silly Symphonies. This series, in which Mickey does not appear, deals with birds and animals generally. It has fancy orchestration and is done in colors. The brothers hope that eventually it will prove another Mickey.

Walt and his wife live in the same six-room English house they bought when they were married. It is located in a quiet residential district a few blocks from the studio so Walt can get to his drawing board quickly if an idea comes in the middle of the night. Not long ago they bought their first electric refrigerator. Their moderate-priced American car contrasts sharply with the orchid and platinum cars of the popular film actors.

Economical in his daily life, Disney is extravagance itself in his work. Throughout the depression he has not cut salaries. He refuses to let his men work overtime or at night and has installed an air-washing system and a set of ping-pong tables lest they become jaded. Usually he is over-staffed. There are always dozens of men sitting around "turning over ideas."

THE DARK INVADER

Captain von Rintelen Runs the British Blockade — "The Most Secret Code" — Von Papen's Incompetence — Discovery of the Acid "Cigar" That Sends Ships to Their Doom — Mr. Boniface — What Happened to the [illegible] Munitions Fleet.

This is the second of a series which will appear weekly in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine telling the inside story of and by Captain Franz Rintelen von Kleist, Germany's Master Spy and Chief agent of destruction in America during the great war.

Last week "The Dark Invader" told how bad diplomacy and intrigue at Berlin kept the German fleet out of battle; how the cautious German Admiral Spee steamed to the Falkland Islands and was sunk by a superior British fleet as might have been expected, and the mystery at the German Admiralty as to why Von Spee should have taken so imprudent a course; how the Germans feared that superior American ammunition, furnished to the Allies when the Central Powers were ammunition-poor, would cause their defeat; and how Von Rintelen was secretly ordered from his post at the Berlin Admiralty to the United States to stop the ammunition shipments in any way he could regardless of American law or international agreements.

Von Rintelen then prepares to leave for America, having agreed to meet in New York one Malvin Rice, who claims to be a member of the board of a great American powder factory and with whose help Von Rintelen hopes to make powder purchases so large in the American market that munitions shipments to the Allies will be drastically curtailed. Von Rintelen is doubtful of Malvin Rice's aid. But he drives to the railroad station in Berlin, ready to start his journey.

By CAPTAIN FRANZ RINTELEN VON KLEIST

Of the Imperial German Navy

I STARTED from the Stettiner Bahnhof, on which the German flag was flying in honor of the birthday of the Emperor William I, on March 22, 1915. Upon my arrival at Christiania I succeeded in obtaining at the British and American consulates magnificent genuine visas for my counterfeit Swiss passport, and I felt safe. When the steamer was on the high seas a British cruiser sent a Lieutenant and a couple of sailors on board to see if the ship was harboring any Germans. The Lieutenant ascertained that there were no Germans on board.

Where I should have been met by Malvin Rice, who was to take me by the arm and show me where I should find the powder ready for "spot" delivery . . . there was no Malvin Rice at all. The whole edifice which he had constructed before my eyes disappeared Fata Morgana-wise.

I stood there on that pier of New York entirely alone, left to my own wits, but bent upon going through with what seemed ill-starred at the beginning. Single-handed I now ventured an attack against the 48 United States!

So, more or less, all the forebodings which I had prior to my departure from Berlin had been correct.

Firstly, I might have been captured in the North Sea, or out in the Atlantic by some mischievous British cruiser, and my Swiss nationality might have been doubted. In this case, I had but one task—to swallow the two tiny capsules which contained in duplicate the brand new "most secret code" in miniature, which I was to bring over to America for the Embassy and the attaches.

Secondly, it was highly doubtful whether weeks after our negotiation, Mr. Malvin Rice had the powder and explosives still available.

Thirdly, could other measures be adopted in case the powder had been sold? Yes, they had to be—all the more so because at that time the Russians were gaining victory after victory in Galicia, and their actual invasion of Hungary was to be feared, with the result that Italy's entry into the war became a darker thought than ever before.

Fourthly, it was quite possible that my proposed mission to America, and the objectives I had in view, might quickly cause an international affray between America and Germany.

Fifthly, would not the naval and military attaches consider themselves superseded in some way and make my position a very delicate one henceforth? Indeed they did, and that was the worst of it all. But still, I drove to the German Club in order to have a word with the naval and military attaches, for I had to hand over that important document, the new "most secret code." I knew that they both lived at the German Club where I had been a member for some years. I cannot say that they were very glad to see me. The naval attache, Captain Boy-Ed, had a couple of gold stripes more on his sleeve than I was permitted to wear, which settled once and for all that his opinion was superior to mine. I tried my level best, as I had known him socially for several years and we had worked in co-operation in intelligence matters, for a long time, too. He had already received a wire from Berlin that I was on my way. He felt aggrieved, for he thought that he did not need my help and that I might just as safely remain in Germany. The military attache, Captain Papen, was likewise not pleased to see me, which made him side with Boy-Ed. As I had anyhow not expected either of them to burst out into whoops of joy when I made my appearance, I was not much worried at their ill-humor. Following my instructions, I handed over the precious document that I had brought with me. Berlin feared that the old secret code which the Ambassador and the attaches used in their telegrams home, was no longer secret, and it was suspected that the British were able to read our cipher messages. The only code to be used in future was the one I had brought over. We then parted, the attaches to pursue, as hitherto, the path prescribed by their official duties, while I disappeared into "obscurity."

Captain von Rintelen

I moved into a modest but good hotel in Fifty-seventh street and began to make inquiries with a view to discovering whether it was really possible to buy sufficient explosives seriously to damage the manufacture of munitions for the Allies. I went to several firms and told them that I was a German agent, anxious to purchase powder, but within a few days I was satisfied that it would be quite impossible to buy up the vast quantities of explosives that were by now available in the American market. The daily production was so great that if I had bought up the market on Tuesday there would still have been an enormous fresh supply on Wednesday. So during the first few days of my stay in New York I went about and acquired wisdom.

I began to lead a dual existence. In the evening I went about as "myself" in dress suit and white tie. I had decided that it was much more dangerous to go about New York under a false name. If, however, I did not conceal my identity it would be assumed that I was in America on some peaceful economic mission.

During the day I dressed unobtrusively and went first of all through the whole of the dock district, where I saw numerous English, French and Russian transports waiting to take munitions on board.

Systematically I studied the conditions in the New York docks, and I soon became aware that a large number of German sailors, mates and captains were hanging about the harbor with nothing to do. The merchantmen in which they would otherwise be serving lay in dock and were unable to leave, since they would be captured by the British on the high seas.

It occurred to me that a large proportion of the dockers consisted of Irishmen, who were far from friendly to England or those allied to her.

What on earth could bring me in touch with these Irishmen?

The one man who should have been the first for me to apply to, and who had in the meantime received cable instructions from the War Ministry in Berlin that he should lay his plans before me, was the military attache, Captain Papen. But no matter where or when I went, I heard so many almost incredible stories about how he was going about things that I must say I was a bit frightened.

Captain Boy-Ed and Captain von Papen.

Already in Berlin I had been told that he might not be "quite up to the task" now incumbent upon him. Indeed, it was all too clear that too much was being expected of this young cavalry officer, who had been sent to Washington to take a post of minor importance, at least from the viewpoint of the large standing armies of Europe. For whoever was sent to America as military attache had to possess good horses, good address and similar social amenities. And when Papen was appointed, I think in 1913, there was no thought that any bigger task might devolve on him.

I WAS told that originally he belonged to a provincial cavalry regiment, and having married a Miss Poche, the daughter of an Alsatian pottery manufacturer, his new wealth permitted him to be transferred to a Potsdam regiment of Uhlans, and thence to Washington.

And the splendid helpmates which I was to find afterwards among the German captains and mates flatly refused to be under Papen's command.

Neither could the two attaches, Papen and Boy-Ed, agree among themselves. I decided to leave Herr von Papen the "glory," and gladly gave way in petty details.

So all this then did not appear to be a start under good auspices, as far as assistance might be forthcoming from the German officials or officers on the spot. Very well then! I set out to "pick my own way."

I soon found out that there was one man in New York who was trusted not only by the German seamen, but also by the Irish. This was Dr. Bunz; he had formerly been German Consul in New York and now represented the Hamburg-American Line. I called on him, for we had known each other for years, and he had already begun to work for the German cause. He had instructions to charter ships, which were loaded with coal and reconnoitred the high seas in order to transfer this coal to German cruisers at certain given places. To render this possible, Bunz was in permanent telegraphic communication, in code, of course, with the German authorities at home. When I saw him he told me that it would be useful if I could furnish him with detonators.

"Detonators? What do you want detonators for?"

"Well, you see," said Dr. Bunz, "my people want a change. I must tell you what my methods are. I charter a tramp steamer, the captain receives a couple of thousand dollars and disappears. In his place I engage one of the numerous officers of the German mercantile marine, who are compelled to hang about idle, and, as you know, these men generally belong to the naval reserve—that is to say, they are now on active service and they want to get into action. My men have asked me to provide them with detonators. When they are sailing about on the open sea, waiting for the cruiser in order to hand over their coal, they find that time hangs heavily on their hands, so they have thought out a neat plan. If they have detonators and meet another tramp taking shells to Europe, they will hoist the war flag, send over an armed party, bring back the crew as prisoners, and blow up the ship with its cargo. So, my dear Captain, please get me some detonators."

I had no objection to Dr. Bunz's men sinking munition transports; but where in New York could I procure detonators without drawing unwelcome attention to myself? The Consul had, however, done me a very important service. He gave me the address of a capable man, an export merchant whose business had suffered through the war. This was Mr. Max Weiser, and I soon found that he knew his way about New York harbor. We hit on the idea of setting up first of all as honest merchants. We founded a firm which we called "E. V. Gibbons Inc.," the initials being the same as those of my Swiss pseudonym. We rented an office of two rooms in Cedar street, in the heart of the financial quarter of New York. I sat in one of our two rooms as a director of the concern, and in the other sat my "staff." While I was still wondering how to get hold of the detonators, and in fact how to further my plans at all, I happened to find the right man. I had by now established contact with all sorts of characters, some of whom had secret schemes, and one day I was visited by the German chemist, Dr. Scheele. I received him in my newly furnished office, in the first room of which sat Max Weiser, dictating to the stenographer.

Through this room came Dr. Scheele. He began by presenting a strong letter of recommendation from our military attache, Captain Papen, and continued by saying that I was a man with varied interests, and that he was a chemist, with a new invention which he would like to offer me. He took a piece of lead out of his pocket, which was as big as a cigar, laid it on my desk and began to explain.

THIS piece of lead was hollow. Into the middle of the tube a circular disc of copper had been pressed and soldered, dividing it into two chambers. One of these chambers was filled with picric acid, the other with sulphuric acid or some other inflammable liquid. A strong plug made of wax with a simple lead cap made both ends airtight. The copper disc could be as thick or as thin as we pleased. If it were thick, the two acids on either side took a long time to eat their way through. If it were thin, the mingling of the two acids would occur within a few days. By regulating the thickness of the disc it was possible to determine the time when the acids should come together. This formed a safe and efficient time fuse. When the two acids mingled at the appointed time a silent but intense flame, from 20 to 30 centimeters long, shot out from both ends of the tube, and while it was still burning the lead casing melted away without a trace.

We soon came to terms. He was first given a round check in return for allowing me to use the "cigar" in any way I wished. I asked him to return on the following day, and in the meantime I secured a few assistants—captains of German ships with whom I had already become good friends, and Irishmen whose "approval" I had won. The Irishmen had no idea who I was, nor did they ask me. It was sufficient for them that I was not very friendly towards England. I came straight to the point and explained to them that I had found a means of stopping the hated shipments of munitions, and one which would not infringe American neutrality as far as I was concerned.

The construction of the "cigars" was explained to them, and I inquired

Eugene Talmadge, Governor of Georgia.

Fourteen Cities in the State Have Created a Unique Situation by Authorizing the Sale of the New Beer in Defiance of the Prohibition Law.

ATLANTA, Georgia.

BEER drinking is attended with a special pleasure in Georgia these days. In quaffing the 3.2 brew Georgians may experience not only the uplift of the spirit ordinarily associated with this activity but the further satisfaction of thumbing their noses with impunity at the State bone dry law. In 14 towns, at least, they can drink legitimate beer without fear of molestation by the police despite the fact that it is forbidden by State statute.

The explanation is that there is a beer revolution on in Georgia. Fourteen municipalities have revolted against the State prohibition law and have authorized by ordinance the selling of beer. They have levied taxes on the business and are collecting much-needed revenue from it.

Governor Eugene Talmadge, although he has refused to call an extra session of the Legislature to have the State dry law modified to exempt beer from its prohibitions, apparently is not disposed to try to force the 14 towns to obey the State law. As a matter of fact, there doesn't seem to be much that he could do with these recalcitrant cities. Their police are under municipal control. The Governor has no power to remove Mayors or Sheriffs. And he can't call out the militia except to prevent disturbances or quell riots. The sale of beer is causing no riots in the 14 towns; their residents are getting their beer and taxes from it and appear to be in quite a pleasant frame of mind. The only cognizance the law has taken of the situation was a raid by the Sheriff of Fulton County.

It was historic Savannah, founded 200 years ago by General James Edward Oglethorpe, that started the beer revolution. This was rather astonishing, for Savannah is a center of conservatism, of tradition, of social customs that date back to days before the Civil War. But Savannah looked about and saw that all states adjoining Georgia except Alabama had legalized beer, and that from them plenty of 3.2 brew was flowing into Georgia to the profit of bootleggers but not of state or cities. So just after it had finished celebrating its two hundredth birthday—which was also the two hundredth birthday of Georgia—Savannah adopted an ordinance permitting the sale of 3.2 beer in the city. And in a very short time these 13 other cities had followed her example: Atlanta, Savannah Beach, Thunderbolt, Lincolnton, Eatonton, Cochran, Metter, Graymont-Summit, Vidalia, Leesburg, Douglas, Alma and Quitman.

The prelude to the beer revolution was the last regular session of the Legislature, which began in January of this year. A bill legalizing beer was presented, but nothing was done about it. In fact, Georgia newspapers claim this session of the Legislature set a world's record for doing nothing of any kind—during working hours.

Concerning this record of the assembly, the Atlanta Constitution said editorially: "The charge is openly made that the chaos of the last legislative session was largely attributable to shad dinners, lobby-sponsored carousals and other indulgences keeping the members of the legislative assembly from the discharge of the duties for which they were elected."

And the Walton Tribune remarked: "About the best thing that can be said of the recent session of the Georgia Legislature is that it is over at last."

After the Legislature had adjourned, neighboring states passed beer bills and it soon became apparent that there would be lots of beer in Georgia but State and local governments would reap no benefit from it. There resulted an insistent demand for a special session of the Legislature to legalize the 3.2 beverage. City councils, grand juries and finally members of the Legislature itself appealed to Governor Talmadge to call the session.

BUT the Governor refused. He defended his refusal by various pronouncements. In one he said the people of Georgia didn't want beer. On another occasion he said: "You can't settle the prohibition question by legalizing beer. The church people, through the best of intentions, brought this prohibition question about, and they are the ones that ought to settle it by electing officials that will correct the evil it has done . . . You won't stop illicit whisky in Georgia with legal beer . . . Georgia is a hard-liquor drinking State. We may as well recognize that, and when we act, settle the whole thing."

A certain lack of confidence in the reputedly playful Legislature also was manifest when he said: "It seems that we didn't keep that 70-day Legislature in session long enough, but they stayed here a sufficient time to table a beer bill, and now they want to get back. Atlanta is an attractive place, but if they were called back into session it might be the attractions would be so great that they would stay here until snow flies."

A meeting of law enforcement officers adopted a resolution asking the Governor to call a special session for legalization of beer and he responded by saying that there was already enough beer in Georgia for anybody who wanted it. This provoked Mayor James L. Key of Atlanta to caustic comment. He made it to the Sunday school class which he teaches each week in a movie theater, following his withdrawal from Grace Methodist Church because the pastor objected to his criticism of prohibition.

"We don't need a session of the Legislature to get beer," the Mayor said. "We do need action by the Governor and the Legislature so we can regulate and tax beer we already have and make it do some good instead of letting it make the criminal element richer and stronger than it already is.

"Governor Talmadge's piddling around on this beer question is costing the State at least $1,000,000 and the local governments at least $1,000,000 more that they should be getting in revenue from beer. That makes Governor Talmadge a $2,000,000 luxury we are having to support, and in these times I don't see how we can afford it. I don't know anything we can do about it except to just go ahead and let the towns and cities face the facts as they are and adopt local ordinances."

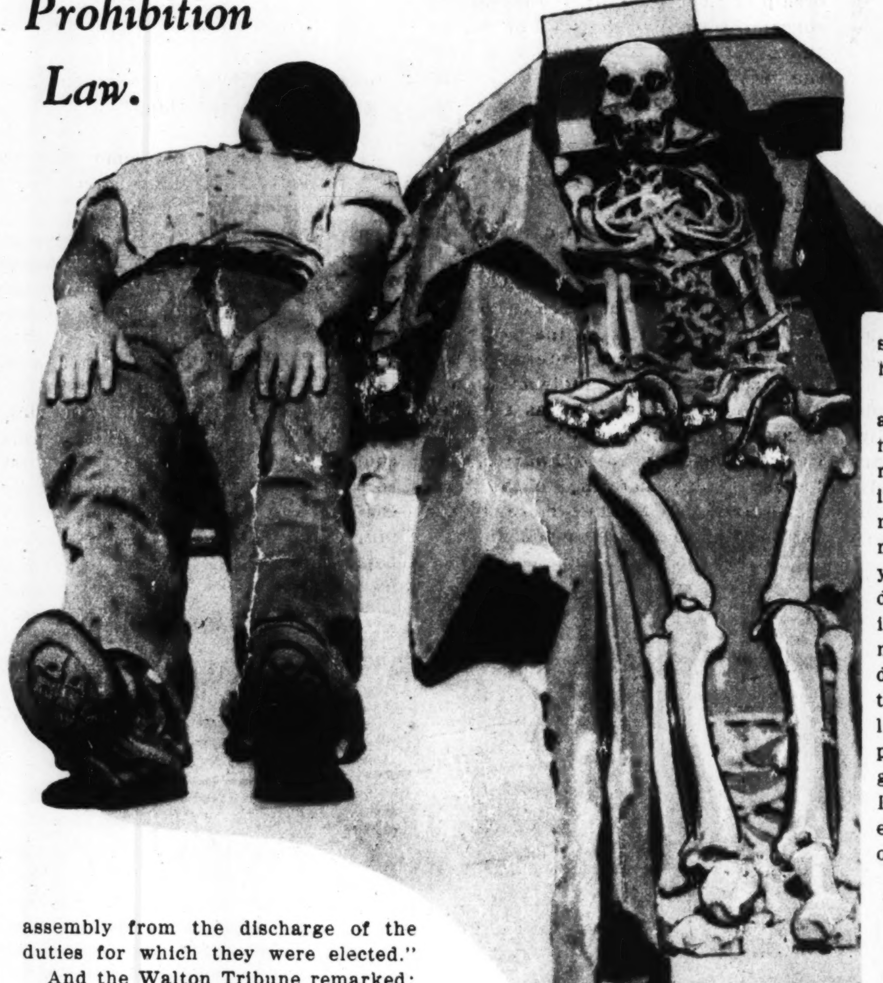
It was Mayor Key who gave the first serious intimation, about two years ago, that doubt of the wisdom of prohibition had begun to arise in the emphatically bone dry State of Georgia. When attending a convention of American Mayors in Paris, he said in an interview that national prohibition was a failure and the sooner the law was repealed the better off the nation would be.

This statement enraged prohibitionists, and a movement to recall the Mayor was quickly begun. The recall election brought out a larger vote than had any other city contest in Atlanta's history. Mayor Key was retained in office by an overwhelming majority.

AN ANCIENT OZARK GIANT DUG UP NEAR STEELVILLE

Strange Discovery, Made by a Boy Looking for Arrowheads, Gives This Missouri Town an Absorbing Mystery to Ponder.

Billy Harman, the boy who made the find.



The skeleton of the Ozark giant placed beside Lane Eaton, a 6-foot citizen of Steelville, to show its great height.

By GUY FORSHEY

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff.

STEELVILLE, Mo.

THIS quiet little summer resort town of the Ozarks has just come to grips with an absorbing mystery of a sort it has never before been called upon to solve. It all came about as a result of Billy Harman's hunt for arrowheads a few weeks ago.

Poking about in Puckett's Cave in a Meramec River bluff some 10 miles northeast of here, young Harman reached for something white in a hole in the ground and, to his vast amazement, came up with a handful of human bones. Soundly startled, the 16-year-old lad put them down and dashed for home. Then, after gathering his courage and some reinforcements, he went back and proceeded to dig on the site of his discovery. From the ancient accumulation of ash and limestone debris he turned up the complete skeleton of an 8-foot giant. The grisly find was brought to Dr. R. C. Parker here and stretched out to its enormous length in a hallway of his office where it has since remained the most startling exhibit Steelville has ever had on public view. People have come from far and near to examine it and fire a broadside of questions at the harassed doctor.

Who was this giant? When did he live? To what race did he belong? Was he simply a freak among people of normal stature or did he belong, possibly, to some extinct race of stone-age giants who roamed over these hills before the coming of the Indian? What was the manner of his death? Did he come to his end from natural causes or does that lone arrowhead found among the bones tell its own story of violence? Was he, perhaps, an Ozark Goliath brought down by some David of the Missouri hill country who used a bow and arrow instead of a sling?

IF anybody can answer these questions he is pretty likely to find a warm welcome in Steelville, especially at the hands of Dr. Parker. Anthropologists are scarce hereabouts and the doctor's fund of information about such things was exhausted in the first 20 minutes. An appeal to Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, anthropologist of the National Museum in Washington and celebrated authority on primitive races, is expected to help. Dr. Parker has written to him, offering to forward the skull or the whole skeleton, if necessary, for scientific study.

Meanwhile, speculation is proceeding at a lively rate. The consensus of local opinion is that these prodigious bones are the remains of an Indian—maybe an Osage, since the Osages inhabited this region a century or so ago—but in any case a chief. For, it is argued, a man of such gigantic stature must have been a chief among any primitive people. The skeleton itself is seven and a half feet long without the cartilage layers that once separated the vertebrae, and with some of the bones of the feet missing. Dr. Parker believes the man must have been close to eight feet tall in life, but was apparently of slender build, for the bones are not of extraordinary size except as to length. His slenderness, too, must have been accentuated, in appearance, at least, by the extremely small size of his head. With all his magnificent stature, this primitive chief, if chief he was, really was something of a pinhead. The skull measures only 20 inches in circumference—a pretty small skull even for a man of normal height. The heads of most average-sized men measure from 22 to 23 inches in circumference. A 20-inch dome perched on the shoulders of a giant eight feet tall must have looked tiny indeed.

His brow, too, was anything but noble. Height of forehead, once popularly believed to be a sort of hallmark of high or low intelligence, has been largely discredited as such an indicator now, so this cave man's sloping brow may not necessarily be regarded as a stamp of low mentality. But it may be set down anyway as one of the cranial characteristics which fit very neatly into the general "pinhead" picture. Of course, he had considerably more above the eyes and ears than such extremely primitive types as the Peking man, Piltdown man and the Neanderthaloids. But he did have a low brow and, what is probably more significant, a very narrow one. His jaw, too, while not of the prognathous type characteristic of the most ancient men, was somewhat heavier than that of the average man of today.

As to his age at the time of his death, there is only the condition of the teeth to serve as an indicator. The fact that most of them were still doing service would argue that he had not attained advanced age and the fact that the molars were considerably worn would indicate he was no longer a stripling.

The cave in which the skeleton was brought to light is not essentially different from hundreds of other caves to be found in the limestone bluffs of the Ozark country except that it is easily accessible both from above and below. Many of these Ozark caves are not. The entrance is about 100 feet above the river valley and may be reached by a stiff climb from below or by means of a narrow limestone ledge that runs around the face of the cliff from above. John Puckett of Steelville, who was born and reared in the vicinity and who owns the cave, says he has known for 50 years that it was once inhabited, for its floor at the entrance is covered with an ash and charcoal accumulation two or three feet deep. As a boy he was accustomed to hunt for Indian relics in the place and in later years used it as a livestock shelter. As the cave faces east, with a bluff and a heavy forest to protect it from winter winds on the west and north, it makes a capital shelter for livestock—and for the same reason it made a capital dwelling for early races of human beings.

A corner in the north wall just within the entrance formed the giant's tomb. The body apparently had been placed in a kneeling position in a shallow grave dug in this niche and covered over with about two feet of soil and debris scooped up from the floor of the cave. The skull, when found, lay face down. Whether the man inhabited the cave in life or took up his abode there only after death is a question which, like a good many others concerning him, has not been satisfactorily answered. In either case, it seems evident that the cave had served as a human dwelling place long before his burial, for mixed with the ash and limestone debris both above and below the skeleton were numerous fragments of crude clay pottery—the dish breakage of several generations maybe. Apparently the cave dwellers did not bother about such housekeeping details as sweeping out broken dishes.

There were other things besides pottery fragments in the grave, too. Whether they were placed there with the body or were merely part of the cave rubbish with which the grave was filled is problematical. But here is the list: two stone awls or drills, two to three inches long; three small bird arrowheads, one of them neatly serrated; one larger arrowhead which might possibly have been the cause of the giant's death; a thin oval piece of polished shell roughly the size of a quarter; a segment of bone an eighth of an inch in diameter and half an inch long, polished and hollowed out for stringing, and a 2½-inch fragment of a canine tooth or fang, possibly the fang of a saber-toothed tiger of prehistoric times. It is slightly curved and broken off perhaps an inch from the point. If it is the fang of a saber-toothed tiger, its presence in the cave would not necessarily mean, of course, that the buried cave-dweller was a contemporary of this animal, now long extinct.

AS to the age of the skeleton, estimates are loose and highly variable. They range all the way from 100 to 2000 years. Just now it appears that one man's guess is as good as another's, but the weight of evidence seems to be on the side of the higher estimate. For a good many years now scientists have been uncovering evidence that the Ozark region once was inhabited by a primitive race of cave-dwelling savages long antedating the Indian. They lived in caverns in limestone bluffs—caverns similar to Puckett's Cave—and led what appears to have been a lowly existence.

Some 13 years ago, Gerard Fowke, field explorer of the Bureau of Ethnology, Smithsonian Institution, spent several months investigating these cave-dweller remains. He visited hundreds of caves and found, in some, evidence of continuous habitation over a period of 1000 to 2000 years, his estimate being based principally on the depth of ash accumulations from camp fires. One of his most astonishing discoveries was evidence that these aborigines were cannibals, for along with the bones of animals which they had used for food he found also human bones which had been cracked for the extraction of the marrow they contained. These people, he believed, lived at least 1000 years ago.

Reason appears, therefore, for belief that the giant of Puckett's Cave may have been one of these prehistoric bluff dwellers who was roaming the Ozark woods in the days, perhaps, when backwoodsmen considerably farther along in the scale of evolution were descending upon Rome from the depths of Middle European forests.

He visited hun-reds of caves and found, in some, evi-ence of continuous habitation over a eriod of 1000 to 2000 years, his esti-ate being based principally on the epth of ash accumulations from camp ires. One of his most astonishing dis-overies was evidence that these ab-rigines were cannibals, for along with the bones of animals which they had used for food he found also hu-man bones which had been cracked for the extraction of the marrow they ontained. These people, he believed, ived at least 1000 years ago.

Reason appears, therefore, for be-lief that the giant of Puckett's Cave may have been one of these prehistoric bluff dwellers who was roaming the Ozark woods in the days, perhaps, when backwoodsmen considerably farther along in the scale of evolution were descending upon Rome from the depths of Middle European forests.

A Camp for Unemployed Operatic Singers

STONY POINT, New York.

CHASTENED by the depression, grand opera is divesting itself of some of its high and mighty traditions and is going back to the soil to try to get a fresh start in life with a new set of ideals and a drastically revised schedule of values.

In a woodland depression camp near here, 400 or more professional singers and musicians, all of them formerly members of leading opera companies, but all now unemployed, are engaged upon a unique experiment. Under the leadership of Max Rabinoff, widely known impresario and exponent of popular priced opera, they are working on a plan whereby they hope to put opera on a co-operative basis, to cut it loose from the high-priced star system and the eight-eighty gate which have almost brought it to annihilation, and make it what it has never been before in America—self-supporting. They are living in log cabins and tents of their own devising, subsisting on hard-times rations such as beans and "mulligan" stew and working early and late in preparation for a barn-storming tour of neighboring states. Through this they expect to demonstrate the soundness of their conviction that in opera, as in drama, "the play's the thing"—not the star.

Of course, the primary purpose of these woodland song birds is to make jobs for themselves. But to make them secure and to save opera from passing out altogether, they believe, the old system has to be changed radically. The experience of the last two years has demonstrated this conclusively. Since 1930 opera has faced one continual round of half-filled houses, salary cutting, retrenchment, dismissals of musicians and chorus members, deficits and attachments. The Chicago opera venture was abandoned entirely and the public is even now just getting over the scare occasioned by announcement that the Metropolitan might not open next season.

For a while there was grave danger that it might not open. It closed the 1932-33 season with a deficit of $350,000 and there was little reason to believe that the next season would find conditions much better. It appeared that the historic old opera house, with its famous "Golden Horseshoe," had had its day and was destined to go the way of other famous old theaters which have become white elephants and then jobs for the wrecker. Finally, a committee made up of boxholders and stage artists stepped into the breach and, under the vigorous leadership of Lucrezia Bori, the celebrated soprano, set about the task of raising funds. Appeals were broadcast over the radio, the hat was passed around at public performances and new patrons of opera were rounded up. After much work, $300,000 was raised, enough to make continued grand opera a certainty.

But the situation served to call attention to a good many things that were wrong with the Metropolitan's method and there was much outspoken criticism. For one thing, it was charged with making more effort toward a show in the audience than a show on the stage. It was attacked as a society monopoly, which gave little consideration to ordinary music lovers; a place catering to the "carriage trade" that came more to see and be seen than to hear music.

The Metropolitan's long-established star system came also under fire. For the last 25 years it has hunted only for great stars. It has depended upon these great names—names such as Sembrich, Caruso, Gadski, Schumann-Heink and Scotti—to draw the crowd to its doors. In prosperous times that system worked very well. But it did not result in the sort of opera that could survive when rich patrons could no longer afford to contribute to its expensive upkeep. What grand opera needed, the critics said, was a scaling down of high salaries and better balanced performances; fewer stars and more co-operative spirit.

That is what Max Rabinoff has set out to achieve with his company of unemployed musicians in the woods camp.

"A few great stars can no more make an opera company than a few great players can make a great baseball team," says Rabinoff. "In Europe, where opera is a vital part of every nation's life, they have the 'ensemble opera,' with artists of even ability sinking their personalities in the whole production with the general feeling that 'the play's the thing.'

"THE time has come now to make American opera self-supporting. The big stars have been overpaid, while chorus singers and other performers have been cruelly exploited. Two things have kept the public away from opera—the society atmosphere with the $8.80 gate and the distorted kind of performances resulting from the star system."

This veteran impresario, who first brought Pavlowa and Mordkin to this country, who gave Chicago its first resident opera and who built up the Boston opera and took it on a national tour just before the war, has preached popular-priced opera for years, but not until last year did his big chance come to try out some of his ideas in practice.

Last year, when many of his friends, comprising some of the finest talent in New York, Chicago and Boston, began to find themselves without jobs, he invited them to make a musicians' refuge of a large tract of land he owns near Stony Point. By pooling their funds, he thought, and living on a co-operative basis they might hold out for a longer time.

So, starting out merely as a home for unemployed, Rabinoff's camp of musicians developed into something else. The artists, finding time on their hands, thought it a good idea to continue with their art in the rustic surroundings. They turned a barn into a rehearsal hall and auditorium. From their ranks they recruited principals and supporting cast and produced several operas on a co-operative basis, charging little more than the village movie.

THUS was the big idea born. Noting the success of his friends, Rabinoff set to work to mold their undertaking into a tremendous enterprise, and today it takes care of some 400 unemployed musicians and singers.

Starting May 10, a full quota of vocal and instrumental artists, dancers and scenic artists, began training in Rabinoff's barn and, when the weather permits, under the oak trees.

They live in log cabins they have built themselves and in tents contributed by the Government. Rabinoff is now in Washington fighting to have the Government allow his troupe $1 a day per person, as is paid to the unemployed now working in the reforestation army.

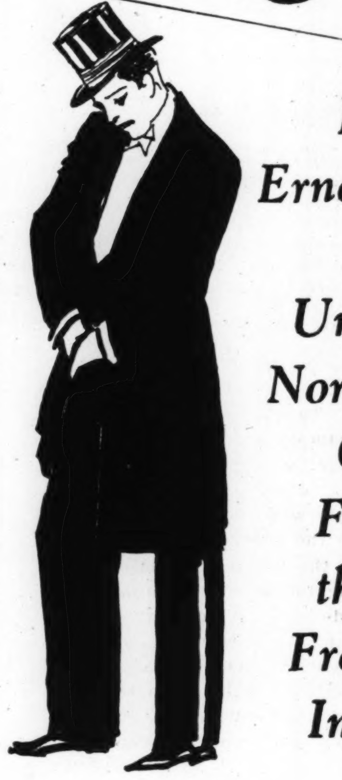
By dint of benefit performances and a $1 membership campaign, $5600 has already been raised and is in the bank for financing their first production.

It is their intention to make a tour through neighboring states this summer, giving outdoor operas wherever possible, at moderate prices, and in a short time to become self-supporting.

"The time is ripe," Rabinoff said, before starting for Washington, "to democratize opera in America. Our group means to bring this great gain out of the depression."

THE COST OF "DATING" AT AMERICAN COLLEGES

Professor Ernest R. Groves of the University of North Carolina Compiles Figures on the Subject From Several Institutions.



By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

IT IS undoubtedly conducive to success in romance to astound everybody by addressing the waiter in French, to develop a magnetic personality and to learn to play any musical instrument in 12 easy lessons. But such things are not enough. A fellow—or a girl—has got to spend some money, too. The way of a man with a maid, and vice versa, is strewn with dollars and cents.

This was known even before the depression caused almost everything to be considered from the standpoint of economics. Before the World War there was a popular song entitled "The High Cost of Loving." Probably the cave men complained of the expense of keeping themselves supplied with clubs for wooing purposes. The post-war period, however, with its emphasis on entertainment, on going places and doing things, has given new importance to the cost of association between young men and women in actual or synthetic courtship. And research has got around to the subject; modern fact-finding has invaded the field of sentiment and brought out some cold and exceedingly unemotional figures.

A collection of these figures on the cost of "dates" is given in a book just published by Henry Holt & Company, New York. The book bears the title, "Marriage," and its author is Ernest R. Groves, professor of sociology at the University of North Carolina. It is presented as a "text on marriage" for the use particularly of college students who wish to add to their preparation for life by a serious study of this subject. For eight years the University of North Carolina has given a course on marriage, open to men of the senior class. In the last few years several other colleges have instituted courses designed to give their students special preparation for matrimony.

The figures on the cost of dates—dances, house parties, football games, and so forth—are offered in Prof. Groves' chapter on "Problems of Courtship." The data were supplied by men and women in several colleges.

Despite the progress of women toward equality with men in responsibility as well as privilege, it is still the usual practice for a man to pay the expenses when he and a girl go out together, although Groves finds that there is a trend toward the sharing of these expenses. Even without such sharing, the girl pays as well as the man, he points out, because her engagements require additional money for clothes and beauty services.

The fact that a girl expects her beau to spend money on her does not brand her as a gold digger, in the professor's opinion. He says:

"THE demands made of the boy by the modern college girl are not always selfish or thoughtless, since often when she accepts a 'date' which carries no expense she suspects that she is cheapened in the thought of the man or is being sacrificed that he may have sufficient funds for entertaining some other girl. In self-defense, therefore, she frequently resents inexpensive entertaining, fearing that if she allows this policy to prevail she will be outrivaled by someone else."

There is no attempt to give averages or general figures on what boys and girls spend in relieving for each other the tedium of the bright college years, beyond estimates that ordinary dates cost a boy $1 to $2 and dances from $5 up. It is doubtful if any calculations of the kind could be made which would have any significance. Too many diverse factors govern the expenditures—the wealth and proclivities of the student, and the character, customs and location of the school. For students at a co-educational college in a small town a Wednesday night date might call merely for a visit to the movies and malted milks at the Co-op, but if the school was in a large city the entertainment might involve theater tickets, taxicab fares, cover charges and a fifth of gin. An equally wide disparity in expenditure may be attributed to individual character.

Where one girl prepares for a beau merely by a fresh application of lipstick and borrowing a sorority sister's scarf, another feels it necessary to get a shampoo, finger wave, manicure, facial and a new hat. So there is the contrast in Prof. Groves' statistics of one girl having four dates without spending anything but 10 cents for a pair of earbobs, and another disbursing $560 for one. The professor presents his data on the cost of courtship in the form of individual students' expenditures for specific dates, and the information is enlightening.

From Bucknell University, a co-educational school at Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, come data on the dating expenses of both men and women. Here are some of the accounts:

Formal dress	$29.00
Slippers	5.00
Stockings	1.00
Bunny coat	25.00
Handkerchief	.50
Evening bag	2.95
Total	$63.45

Evening dress	$59.50
Finger wave	.50
Evening shoes	6.00
Stockings	2.50
Manicure	.50
Total	$69.00

For a formal dance Miss C spent:

Dress	$25.00
Shoes	7.50
Underwear	8.00
Earrings	12.00
Evening bag	7.50
Stockings	1.95
Bath powder	1.00
Finger wave	.75
Manicure	.75
Eyebrow arch	.50
Gloves	8.50
Total	$73.45

Dress	$19.75
Shoes	5.00
Finger wave	.75
Total	$25.50

Dress	$12.75
Hose	1.35
Handkerchief	.50
Finger wave	.50
Perfume	1.00
Total	$16.10

Miss H got an evening dress for a dance for $10 and kept her total expense down to $14. It cost Miss J $4.75 to prepare for a fraternity dance and $3.50 for a college dance.

Expense lists of various men at Bucknell show that while they can get along without much outlay for special clothes and other adornment for their dates, footing the entertainment bill brings their costs up to considerable amounts. Here is A's itemized account of a week-end date:

Carfare	$40.00
Candy	2.00
Auto Expense	10.00
Dance Friday night	2.00
Dinner after dance	3.00
Dance Saturday night	6.00
Total	$63.00

FRIDAY		SATURDAY
Gas	$3.00	Food	$5.00
Food	2.50	Football	5.00
Theater	6.60	Liquor	4.00
Hotel	4.50	Theater	6.60
Tips, etc.	.70	Hotel	4.50
Liquor	4.50	Miscell.	1.50

SUNDAY

Gas and oil	$3.05
Food	2.00
Sundries	1.50
Grand total	$54.95

In a survey among Vassar girls, 20 out of 78 said they spent nothing in preparing for a dance, and 21 reported that their only expense in attending these affairs was for transportation. But one Vassar girl had this rather imposing list of expenses for one dance:

Train fare	$12.00
Taxis and tips	2.00
Meal on train	1.75
Shampoo, wave, manicure	5.00
Evening dress	195.00
Evening wrap	275.00
Slippers	37.50
Stockings	4.50
Gloves	6.50
Bag	20.00
Telegrams and telephone	.75
Total	$560.00

This young woman explained that her dress would be worn again, her evening wrap would be worn for two or three years, slippers and stockings would last about two years, gloves one season and bag two years.

Opinion was divided among the men at the University of North Carolina as to whether girls expected their beaus to spend too much for their entertainment. One figured his "courtship" expenses as follows:

About two shows a week	$ 1.60
Gasoline per week, about	2.00
Drug store treats, per week	.50
Occasional trip (once every two months)	$10 to 25.00
Occasional play or athletic event	$5 to 6.00

Another said his expenses for an evening date were: Refreshments, 50 cents; gasoline, 50 cents; movie, $1; dance $2 to $4.

ON "big week-ends" at the university a man's expense in entertaining a girl may run from $10 to $25.

Several University of Alabama girls were questioned about the expense of accepting attentions from young men, and one said that in preparation for her last date she had spent $8.95 for a new dress and $3 for a shampoo, trim and finger wave. Another told of going to her home city for a football week-end at a total cost of $19.25—which included $1 for a hair wash and wave. A third, whose home is in the East, reported: "Went to Cambridge for Yale-Harvard football game. Spent exactly $25 on fare, hotel, porters. Estimated cost for clothing attributable only to this date, $7. Spent nothing for meals except on train."

THE TRUANT TWINS

THE PLAYERS

EDDIE—The other bear twin.
JOHNNIE MOUSE—A mischievous pupil.
MISS TABBY—The teacher.

THE PLAY BEGINS

MISS TABBY—(Raising her head.) Johnnie!

JOHNNIE MOUSE—(Looking innocently at Miss Tabby.) I wasn't doing anything.

MISS TABBY—That's it, and you are supposed to be studying. (Teddy enters.)

TEDDY—Good morning, Miss Tabby.

MISS TABBY—Good morning, Eddie. I suppose you have a good reason for being late.

TEDDY—I'm Teddy. Eddie and I were going fishing. We thought this was Saturday. Mr. Mike Opossum met me and told me that I had my days mixed up.

MISS TABBY—So that's it? Where is Eddie?

TEDDY—I guess he's down by the creek fishing.

MISS TABBY—You had better go and get him.

TEDDY—All right, Miss Tabby. (He leaves and Miss Tabby lowers her head and Johnnie Mouse grins at the other students.)

MISS TABBY—(Raising her head.) Well, children, I wonder who can tell me what important thing usually happens on this day each year?

JOHNNIE MOUSE—(Facing teacher.) Gosh! If it was something important we ought to get a holiday. (Teddy enters.)

MISS TABBY—Couldn't you find Eddie?

TEDDY—(Acting surprised.) Who, me?

MISS TABBY—Oh, I see, you are Eddie. You brothers look so much alike I can't tell you apart. (Eddie enters, followed by Truant Officer Snoop.)

OFFICER SNOOP—I found this young feller down by the creek fishing. He said he thought this was Saturday.

MISS TABBY—Hm-m. Teddy, why did you lead me to believe you were Eddie?

TEDDY—I couldn't find Eddie and I didn't want him to get an absent mark.

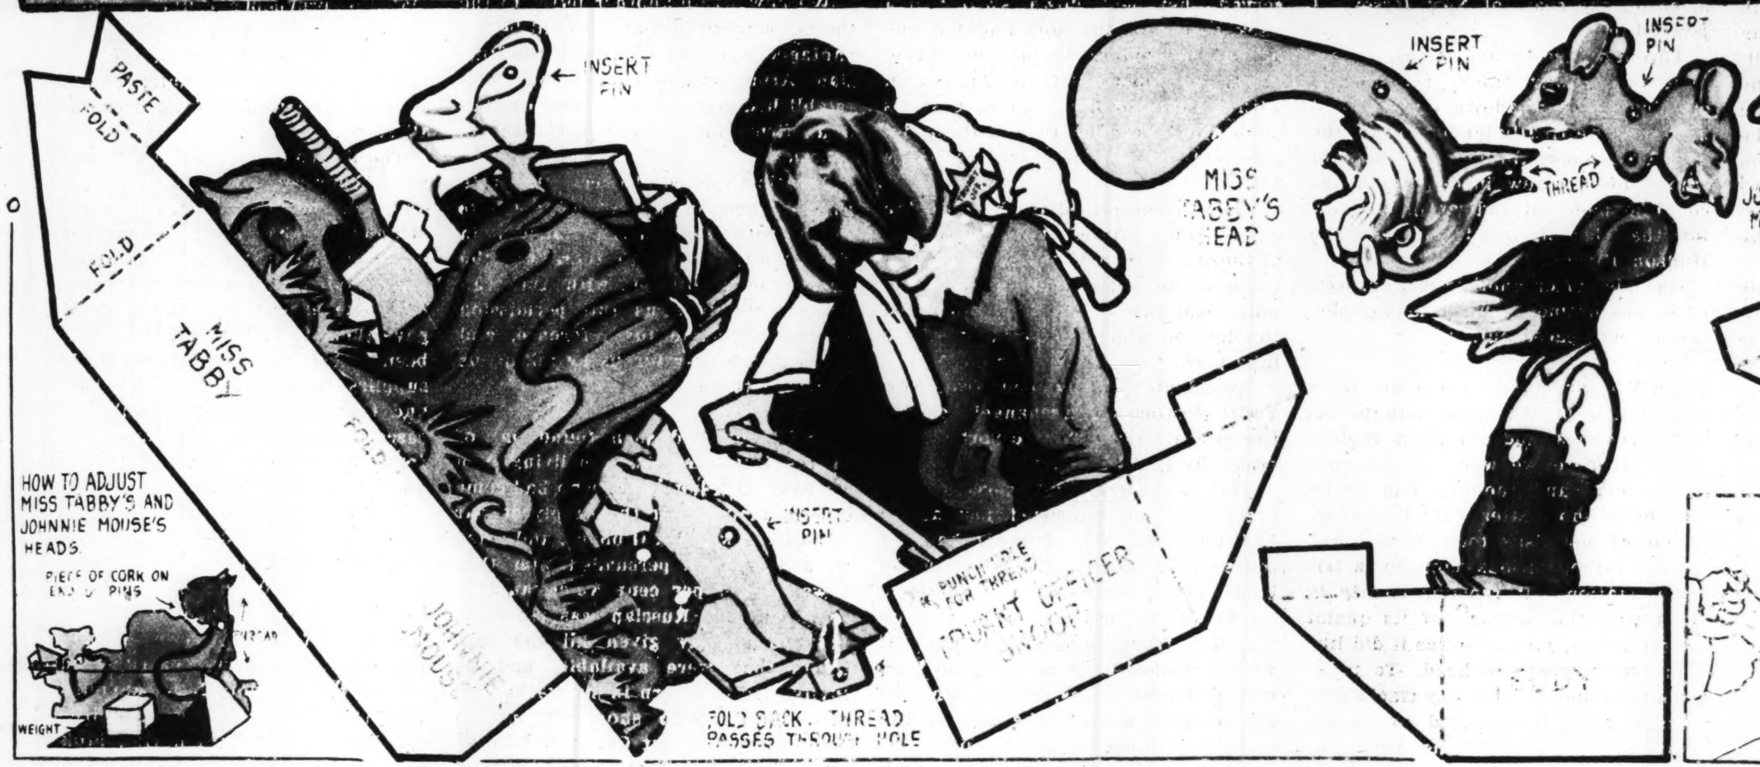
MISS TABBY—It was very noble of you to be willing to take an absent mark for your brother. But it was wrong for you to deceive me. However, I forgive you, and as I was saying, children, the important thing that usually happens on this day is the closing of school for the summer.

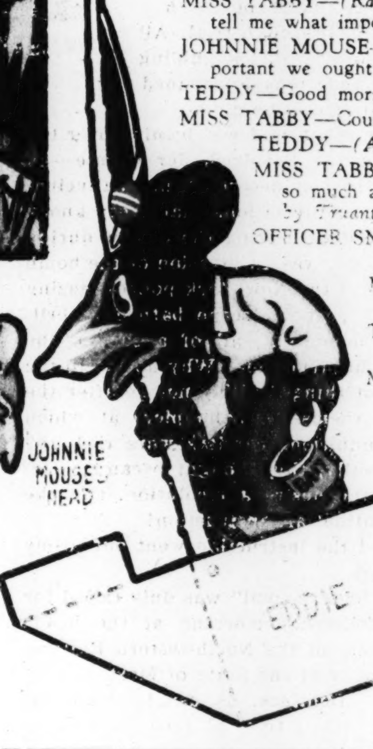
JOHNNIE MOUSE—Oh! That's better than a holiday!

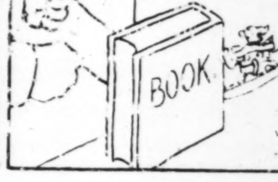
MISS TABBY—So Teddy and Eddie you may go back to your fishing and I wish you lots of luck.

TEDDY AND EDDIE—Oh, thank you, Miss Tabby. (Then, rushing off.) Hurrah! hurrah!

CURTAIN







DIRECTIONS: Cut out back-drop and pin it on a wall near the floor. Next, take two books and stand them at each end and about 5 inches in front of back drop. Then take characters, cut them out, and paste them on thin cardboard, folding flap at bottom so they will lean back a little. Attach a piece of thread about 15 inches long. Place the characters back of the book on the right hand side of the stage and draw them on the stage with thread as they are needed. The operator may talk for the characters, changing his or her voice as different characters go on the stage, or each character's part may be spoken by a different child. A flashlight can be used as a spotlight.

MUNY OP
DRESSOG

Nick Long Jr.

NICK LONG JR., is the second of the Muny Opera stars who will appear in this space during the Forest Park theater's season. Mr. Long, who is 27 years old, had his first stage role at the age of 9. Then he went to the movies, later returning to the stage where he won recognition with such stars as Queenie Smith in "The Street Singer," and in London with Fred Astaire in "Smiles."

Accompanying Mr Long are three costumes he wears in Muny Opera shows. Cut out the star and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress him in his proper outfits. The three types of costumes shown here are worn by Mr. Long in these roles in the following Muny Opera shows: 1—Lieut. Tranisch in "Bitter Sweet"; 2—Gaston de Flavigny in "White Lilacs," and this play takes place in the first half of the last century; 3—Henry in "Rip Van Winkle," and the Americans of the Dutch settlements often wore leather jackets.

I had likewise obtained the necessary machinery through the firm, and after the lead had been cut up, and the copper discs prepared in various thicknesses, the little tubes were taken away again, under cover, in darkness, to Dr. Scheele's laboratory, where they were filled with acid. We had got to this stage when one morning one of my sailors appeared in the office, carrying a case of medium size under his arm. He stowed the case in one of the drawers of my desk. It was a disturbing neighbor to have!

The detonators were all fixed to go off in 15 days, so they had to be disposed of as soon as possible. I took the man into the other room, where Weiser was sitting and asked him to summon the captains, the sailors and the Irish.

For good or for ill, our decision had been taken. With increasing belief in my loyalty to them, and in my intention that something should be done, the captains and engineers, my helpmates and go-betweens, rallied around me. They were all agreed that the new "system" must be given a fair and thorough trial. All they needed was a guiding hand, and I was determined that it should be mine.

One night, as I was leaning over the rail of the Friedrich der Grosse—an oasis in the desert of my hallucinations; hallucinations that every knock at the door, during the day or during the night, was an invasion of the bomb squad of the New York police—gazing at the peaceful scene bathed in brilliant moonlight, all of a sudden the thought struck me: Why not go to the root of things? Why not go after the piers themselves, the piers at which the munitions carriers were tied up? Gradually, this thought became a desire, the desire a resolution, and the resolution an instruction!

And the instruction went out to my helpers.

"Captain, I cannot possibly lend my hand to such enterprises."

Solemnly and gravely he took up the penal code of the United States of America and, adjusting his none too well polished pince-nez on his Roman nose:

"Paragraph No. 2345 of the penal code says"——

"To hell with the penal code," came from all sides.

Mr. Boniface came to the final conclusion that his objections on legal grounds might as well be ruled out.

MR. BONIFACE was a man of many parts. He dwelt in a small hotel, of no very good reputation, near the docks, and he had an extensive practice sweeping out the corners that the genuine lawyers had left for him. He was tall and lean, wore pince-nez, which kept on slipping down his nose, and he gave one on the whole the impression of a mangy hyena seeking its daily prey on the battlefield. I had to rely on my instinct, and I was convinced that Mr. Boniface would rather let all 10 fingers be chopped off than betray anyone who offered him the prospect of good fees.

Future events proved that I had not deceived myself with regard to Mr. Boniface.

Mr. Boniface became indispensable to us. He entered into close touch with the New York police, and many of the things he learned we found very valuable.

But back to the docks! One evening as dusk was falling, a powerful six-cylinder car stood at the appointed place on the coast of New Jersey. I jumped in.

Through streets and lanes, across lines of railway track, occasionally crossing fields, meadows, marshes and morasses, we finally landed before the gate of a shed, through the bars of whose doors a few inadequate lamps could be made out, indicating just how far the pier stretched out into the Hudson River.

One pier after another was inspected. Measurements were taken; distances were paced out.

TWO or three evenings were taken up by these minute inspections, and our plans rapidly matured: here we were, at the root of the evil, and the evil had to be destroyed—no matter what happened.

One of our visits took us to Black Tom, a rather curious name for a terminal station. It remains clearly in my recollection because of its quaint conformation, jutting out as it did like a monster's neck and head. To judge from the numerous railway tracks converging here, it appeared to be one of the chief points for the Allies' export of munitions. I could not help urging upon myself the advisability of giving Black Tom a sound knock on the head.

About a year later, when I was a prisoner of war in Donington Hall, one hot summer morning my eyes fell upon a large headline in the Times: "Explosion of C[illegible]f Pier of Allied Shipping, 'Black T[illegible]m' Blown Up by Enemy Agents."

I had my own opinion as to how it had come about, and who were the men behind the scenes!

My assistants used to come in the evenings to discuss plans. The Irish had thought out one. They knew their countrymen who worked on the docks as stevedores and lightermen and told me that these people were willing to plant our "cigars" on British munition transports. They had even chosen a ship, the Phoebus, which was to sail in a few days, and whose hold was packed with shells. I opened the drawer of my desk, which contained the case of detonators, and it was soon emptied. Next morning the dockers who were in the plot carried their barrels, cases and sacks on board the Phoebus, and as soon as they had assured themselves that they were unobserved, they bent down swiftly in a dark corner of the hold and hid one of our detonators among the cargo. When the Phoebus left for Archangel, with a cargo of high explosive shells on board, it carried two of these destructive articles in each of three holds.

We had subscribed to the Shipping News, which printed the daily reports of Lloyd's in London concerning everything to do with shipping and shipping insurance. We had calculated the date on which the accident was to take place. Suddenly we read:

"Accidents. S. S. Phoebus from New York—destination Archangel—caught fire at sea. Brought into port of Liverpool by H. M. S. Ajax."

This was our first success, and everything had happened just as we had planned. Our dockers had, of course, only put the detonators in the holds which contained no munitions, for we had no intention of blowing up the ship from neutral territory. If we had wished to do so we could have used different means, but we achieved our purpose without the cost of human life. When the ship caught fire on the open sea the captain naturally had the munition hold flooded to eliminate the most serious danger. None of the ships reached its port of destination, and most of them sank after the crew had been taken off by other vessels. In every case the explosives were flooded and rendered useless.

ON MY visits to the offices of the brokers who dealt in explosives I had seen a large number of British, French and Russian agents. At one of the large New York banks, which carried the account of "E. V. Gibbons Inc.," there was a manager with whom I soon became rather friendly, but who only knew that I was one of the partners of our firm and thought I was an Englishman. Such circumstances gave me an idea, which occurred to me when I was one day asked by my bank why I did not try to procure one of the contracts which the Allies were negotiating with American armament firms. These contracts were not for munitions alone, but also for military equipment of all kinds, from shoe leather to mules. I thought over a plan during a sleepless night and set to work next morning. I went to see a family that I knew very well—German-Americans whose sympathies were wholly with Germany. I required the help of the lady of the house, who had spent a long time in Paris and was particularly well acquainted with Colonel Count Ignatieff, Russian military attache in that capital.

Count Ignatieff played an important role in the European war game. It was clear that he could be of great use to me. He was celebrated far and wide as a connoisseur of claret. At my request the lady wrote him a letter conveying the information that an American merchant, Mr. Gibbons, desired to import claret into America, and she requested the Count to help him in the matter with his valuable advice.

A reply came by night letter to the effect that the Count would be delighted to be of service to Mr. Gibbons. My firm now came into action.

We now wrote another letter to the Count, suggesting that it would be advantageous for both parties if the Russian Army would employ our old-established and extremely well capitalized firm for their purchases in America.

Ignatieff replied at once. He wrote that we should first of all get into touch with the Russian agents in New York, who were there for the purpose of negotiating with American firms. He gave us full permission to use his name for reference, and made things easy for us by telling us to whom to go.

I SET out, and soon found one of the Russians who was living in a New York hotel, and who had come over to arrange for the supply of war material. I was Mr. Gibbons, and acted in a way that persuaded him that I was a 100 per cent American citizen. But the Russian was reserved. He had already given all the contracts that were available, and he invited me to return in six weeks. He then stood up to show me out. I thereupon drew out Count Ignatieff's letter, played with it a moment, and asked him whether he knew his distinguished colleague in Paris, the Military Attache Count Ignatieff. The agent looked [illegible] handed him Count [illegible]tte[illegible] He read it and was a [illegible]ged man. He immediately beg[illegible] my pardon, and we went up to [illegible] some desultory talk [illegible] he had not yet placed all his contracts for the immediate future, and he declared his willingness to hand all those that remained to "E. V. Gibbons Inc."

We went to a lawyer and put through an amazing deal. I received contracts to supply saddles, tinned meat, bridles, mules, horses, field-kitchens, boots, shoes, underwear, gloves, and small arms ammunition. I signed a dozen contracts.

I took the contracts to my bank. I obtained advances on them for a magnificent amount, and deposited the money, about $3,000,000, in a secret account at another bank.

I now awaited events. The goods were to be delivered in 45 days, but a fortnight after the signing of the contracts the Russian agents telephoned to ask whether we could possibly deliver sooner. They were prepared to pay a bonus. I was sorry, but it was out of the question. Two Russians came to see me. They told me that it was of the utmost importance to fulfill the contracts at the earliest moment, and showed me telegrams to the effect that things were getting serious for the Russian troops, who were beginning to suffer a shortage of everything. I was promised a large sum for every day I saved.

I thought deeply. If I persisted in my refusal they might do something that would upset my scheme. They might hurriedly buy up everything they needed and send it across. So I compromised.

"What are the most important items?"

The most important items were tinned provisions and infantry ammunition. I promised to give them an answer the same evening.

I HAD a hasty conference with Weiser and Boniface. Weiser shot out of the office, rang me up an hour later, and reported that he had succeeded in procuring the necessary tinned stuffs. He had purchased them in three different quarters, and I at once telephoned to the Russians that the provisions could be put on board as soon as they wished. Meanwhile I had myself looked round for ammunition, and eventually obtained as much as I wanted from brokers of all sorts.

The Russians were happy to hear my news. They came at once to my office and told me they had chartered a steamer so that the shipment could begin on the next day. I summoned my captains, and although I did not tell them exactly what I had done, I gave them to understand that we had been able to arrange for Allied supplies to pass through our hands, and that we should be handling the cases of ammunition and tinned foods from the brokers to the ship. They knew what they had to do.

I waited for four days in a state of fever. The Russians telephoned every day in their anxiety to obtain the horses and mules that I had promised them. I had no intention, however, of buying these. I sat in my office, with nerves on edge, until at last the Shipping News announced that the steamer had caught fire on the high seas, flames having broken out simultaneously from every corner of the vessel, that the crew had taken to the boats, and the ship had foundered. The crew had been rescued by A[illegible] [illegible] the Russians were wringing their hands in my office. I pretended to be overwhelmed and [illegible] the [illegible] provisions and infantry ammunition for two ships, and we carried out the same operation that had been so effective with the first consignment.

The day arrived when I had to deliver the remainder of the supplies. I had been told by my captains some time before that another ship or two could be loaded with war materials for the Allies, and that it was only necessary to make certain it could be done from the Black Tom Pier. I should continue to arrange for the cases to be stored in barges, after they had been taken from the trains, and the barges would then come alongside the steamer. I knew that it was safe to follow the advice of the experienced captains. By the appointed day I had purchased enough ma[illegible] one shipload.

The barges were packed to capacity and [illegible] little tugs [illegible] to tow them alongside [illegible] two steamers which were to take the cases on board. They did not reach the steamers, however, for one barge after another slowly but steadily heeled over, and finally they all lay peacefully together at the bottom of New York harbor. The tugs had quickly hove to and taken off the barges the few men who had been on them.

The Russian agents appeared next morning with pale faces in my office. It had still not occurred to them that our firm had some slight connection with their misfortunes, but they anxiously demanded the immediate delivery of the rest of the supplies they had bought of me. I spoke of strikes, of transport difficulties, and everything else I could think of. I finally told them straight out that I had no intention of delivering the goods. The Russian officers were struck speechless. I shrugged my shoulders; they grew wild, I remained calm. They began to abuse me, so I took my hat and left them. By the time the Russians were ready to take legal proceedings, the firm of "E. V. Gibbons Inc." no longer existed.

OLD MASTER PRINTS

THE Gallery of Old Master Prints is the twenty-fourth in a series of exhibits being featured weekly at the City Art Museum in Forest Park. Each display in this "Gallery of the Week" presentation will be reproduced in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine, with an accompanying description of the exhibit by museum authorities.

This gallery, located on the east side of the second floor, contains prints ranging in period from the fifteenth to the late eighteenth century. They are grouped by schools; and engravings, etchings and woodcuts are shown side by side as they occur in each school.

The arrangement begins with the Italian school at the right of the entrance. An "Ornamental Pan[illegible]" engraved in the niello manner serves to illustrate the connection of early print maker and metalworker, and a page from a fifteenth century edition of Dante shows a primitive example of engraved book illustration. In "Bacchanalian Group with Silenus" and other prints by Mantegna (1431-1506), we reach sophisticated work marked by distinctive handling, and capable of expressing nervous power and delicacy of modeling. Marcantonio Raimondi (1480-1530) though content to devote his skill largely to the interpretation of the ideas of others, attained a perfection in engraving that has been scarcely rivaled, as may be seen in the prints "Poetry" after Raphael and "The Climbers" after Michael Angelo. Prints by Canaletto and Tiepolo serve to illustrate eighteenth century Italian work.

Several primitive fifteenth century colored woodcuts introduce the German group. They are closely followed by the "Death of the Virgin," with its expressive Gothic realism, the work of Martin Schongauer (1440-91). But the engravings of Duerer (1471-1528) dominate German graphic arts with their command of subtle and expressive line. The exhibit includes such notable engravings as "Melancholia," "Knight, Death and the Devil," "The Great Fortuna," "Erasmus" and the "Little Passion" series and such woodcuts as "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the chiaroscuro "Ulrich Varnbueler," "Christ Bearing the Cross" and the monumental "Triumphal Chariot of the Emperor Maximilian."

In the Netherlandish group interest centers about the work of Lucas van Leyden (1494-1533) with its power to express human emotion as in the print "David Playing Before Saul." Three portraits from the "Iconography" by Van Dyck show the superb skill of the master's own hand with the etching needle. The Rembrandts are exhibited in a separate gallery. One of the earliest French engravers was Jean Duvet (1485-ca. 1561), whose individual style, tinged with mysticism, is illustrated by the print "The Wine Press of the Wrath of God." The incisive line of Callot (1592-1635) is shown in his portrait of "Claude Deruet."

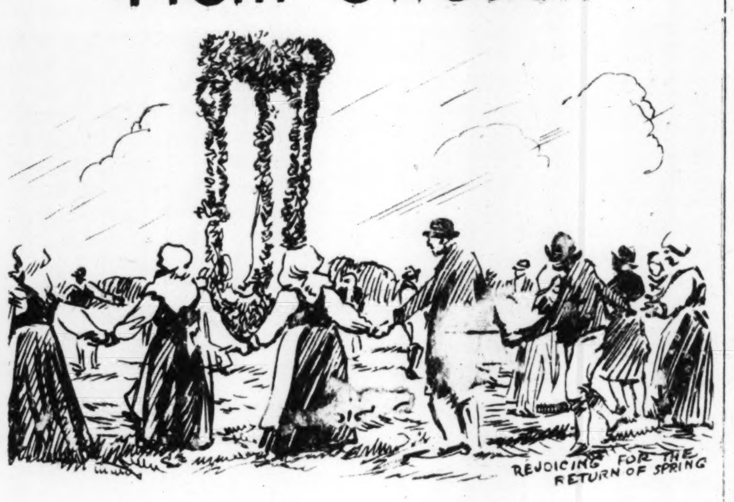
A St. Louisan's Travel Diary From Sweden



REJOICING FOR THE RETURN OF SPRING

By M. W. CHILDS

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff.

STOCKHOLM.

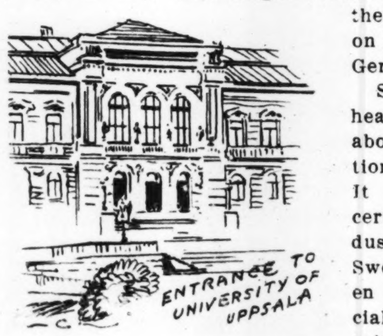
THE countries to the north, in the Scandinavian peninsula, are fortunately removed from the violent cross-currents of European dissension. They are not by any means cut off entirely from the effects of continental unrest, but one coming here from the continent, having traveled through France and Germany, cannot but feel the contrast—a freedom from tension, a kind of calm, a poise.

The Scandinavians seem to have maintained a sense of what is fundamental, deeper and more profound than the recurring waves of nationalism that beset Europe. They still celebrate in Sweden as public holidays the great nature days, the return of the sun to the earth on May 1, Midsummer's Day, June 24, and through the calendar other days that go back to the time of Odin and Thor, to the deepest roots of these northern people.

All through May and June there are days of rejoicing for the return of spring. And particularly the students in the universities observe these days. At Uppsala, the principal university in Sweden, about one hour from Stockholm, I saw the celebration for the return of the sun which goes straight back to the earliest Norse times.

The town of Uppsala is crowded, friends and relatives of students, returned alumni, curious visitors. All day the streets are thronged and the cafes filled. There is a boat race which is followed by a parade. It is a friendly, noisy, gay crowd. Young people in upper windows call down to friends in the narrow street. Girls and boys go locked arm in arm, wearing for the first time their white student caps. For that is one of the things that this day signifies. The dining room of the chief hotel is packed at dinner and there is much wine, much snops, much skoling, and everyone is very happy.

Then afterward, in the gathering dusk, the real ceremony takes place. That is something different from the easy, careless gaiety of the day. The crowd that stands on the hillside below the old Castle of Uppsala is quiet, waiting. At last the line of students, single file, begins to climb up the hill, singing, their young voices strong and clear on the dark air. As the head of the long line reaches the top, out on the plain, far out, the great bonfires flame up. As they flamed up long ago, when at the end of the darkest night, the longest night, the heralds on the hilltop sent word to the waiting villages on the plain that the sun had returned and the old fear that it had gone forever was dispelled again. That is at the heart of this ceremony and it still has meaning to the silent crowd and to the white-capped students who are singing on the hilltop.



ENTRANCE TO UNIVERSITY OF UPPSALA

Near the university town of Uppsala is Gamla Uppsala, old Uppsala. Many of the visitors who have come to the university take the occasion to visit old Uppsala, too. For it is here that "the earth itself speaks." Here are the barrows of the ancient Norse kings. There is the church that stands on the site of the temple of Odin, the temple that Adam of Bremen described in the eleventh century as glistening with gold and silver. About the church is a grove that may be the self-same grove in which the bodies of the victims of the sacrifice were hung. It was from Gamla Uppsala, from the little fjord that once came in there, that the vikings put out to sea. It is all very quiet and respectable and Sundayish now. You sit on the balcony of a rustic inn and drink mead out of viking horns. But a memory of the ancient past, the wild, turbulent strength of that past, persists in this northern race.

It may explain—the memory of that ancient, bold reality—their present calm, their poise. I saw a great labor parade on Sweden's labor day.

It was like a parade of some lodge or patriotic society in America, so orderly, so stalwart and resolute. And it included, besides the labor unions, all left wing groups.

There were 70,000 marchers and at least 30 brass bands. Slow, deliberate, measured. The red satin banners of the trade unions were bright with symbols, worked in gold and blue and silver, clasped hands, the emblems of the trades.

Then came the Communist sections. On their scarlet banners were worked in gold thread the hammer and the sickle.

AND after the Communists the anarchists under their banner and after the anarchists were groups of trade unionists who marched under the banners of Esperanto clubs, working in behalf of the international language. And there were companies of the unemployed. Sometimes they sang the Internationale, sometimes they gave cheers that were like college cheers, under the direction of a cheer leader.

Curiously, these cheers sounded in the crowded street, "Ra, ra, ra." By their appearance you could not have distinguished the anarchists from the trade unionists. They were all respectably, decently dressed. The remark of a Swedish person about the parade was typical of the public attitude, "They look very neat." Only once as the line passed along was there any applause and that was for a banner that said, "No Facism, No Reaction."

As that banner passed down the street there was scattering applause. It was a recognition of the fact that the German reaction has made itself felt here. The German influence has perhaps always been the strongest influence in the Scandinavian countries. It was Hjalmar Branting, the Socialist premier, who resisted the forces, and they were very strong forces, that sought to draw Sweden into the World War on the side of Germany.

So now one hears rumors about the reaction in Sweden. It is said that certain large industrialists in Sweden have given Hitler financial support. It is said that Hitler plans to draw Scandinavia into his Nordic alliance. And it is probably true that there are groups here which would welcome the reaction as a means of checking the power of labor and the Socialists. There exists a kind of Fascist group. A writer in the Social-Democratic newspaper has discussed the possibility of the need for a law prohibiting the use of political uniforms. But to the majority of Swedes the idea of such a law appears a little foolish. Why, they say, why should we have such a law? They say this with pride. It would be unnecessary, superfluous, such a law. They trust in the ancient wisdom, the deep-rooted sanity of the race, to reject such an idea.

OAKLAND ORANGE MUFFINS

Sift 2¼ cups flour (Moll's), 4 tsps. baking powder, 1 tsp. salt, 1-3 cup sugar; add grated rind of 1 orange. Combine juice of 1 orange and enough water to make 1 cup, with 2 egg yolks and 2 tbsps. melted shortening; beat in dry ingredients. Fold in stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Bake in muffin pans 25 mins. in Oakland oven at 400 degrees.

FORBES CREAM ITALIA

Dissolve ½ pkg. lemon jello in 1½ cups hot Forbes Culture-Ripened Coffee; add ½ cup Lange's Inspected Milk, ¼ tsp. salt, 1-3 cup sugar (Moll's), heat in double boiler. Beat yolks of 3 eggs, add 1-3 cup sugar and 1 tbsp. cocoa. Gradually pour hot coffee mixture into this. Return to double boiler, cook until thickens; cool, add stiffly beaten whites of eggs and 1 tsp. vanilla. Turn into mold and chill in Kelvinator. Serve with whipped Lange's cream, sweetened and flavored with Forbes coffee.

WARD'S CHEESE AND OLIVE CANAPES

Mash cream cheese with fork, season to taste, thin with Lange's Inspected Cream until of spreading consistency. Chop stuffed olives (Moll's); spread cheese generously on thin slices of toasted Ward's Soft Bun Bread and pile chopped olives around edge to make a border.

Mothers Who Know

Mothers who are familiar with the healthful, nourishing qualities of peas, serve them regularly to their children. They know the energy-building properties . . . vitamins, protein, mineral salts . . . contained in peas are important to the proper development of growing bodies and active minds.

ELCO FANCY SIFTED JUNE PEAS, available at your independent grocer's, are packed and hermetically sealed within a few hours after picking, so all the fresh-from-the-garden flavor and food values are preserved.

ELCO PEA SALAD

Drain 1 can Elco peas, mix with chopped celery, nut meats and one medium sized onion, chopped. Serve on lettuce with French dressing; garnish with strips of pimiento.

Exchange Elco labels for Eagle Stamps.
